Orange Squeeze

LAKELAND, Fla. (AP) — In the wake of freezing weather in Florida's citrus belt, the nation's housewives may find fresh oranges more expensive next week. But frozen orange concentrate conceivably could cost less.

Fresh fruit sales and shipments from Florida are under embargo until Feb. 1 while the giant citrus industry takes stock of losses from two successive nights of subfreezing temperatures.

Last week's hard freeze blanketed the lush central citrus belt, striking a damaging blow to the state's whopping orange crop.

Damage from the freeze likely will crimp fresh fruit sales, but it's expected to jack up concentrate output, which accounts for 70 per cent of production.

When the embargo is lifted next Monday and the harvest reassessed, "prices will probably go up on the fresh market because it's so small," said a spokesman for Florida Citrus Mutual, the state's big grower outfit.

"Concentrate volume is so large normally, that if fresh fruit is channeled into it, it shouldn't substantially affect prices," he said.

A spokesman for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's fruit and vegetable division said Monday there had been no significant increase in citrus fruit wholesale prices thus far, but that "most of the trade anticipates slight increases." Any such wholesale price increases should show up late this week, he said.

Increased Plantings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Farmers in 36 major producing states intend to plant six per cent more corn in 1971 than they did in 1970, the Agriculture Department announced Monday.

Increases in plantings for other livestock feed grains included: sorghum grain up 17 per cent; and barley up five per cent. Oats plantings were estimated at three per cent less than in 1970.

The report was based on a special survey of planting intentions for major crops.

The estimates were not totals expected for the entire country. They did, however, include the largest producing states for the respective crops.

Crop plantings were estimated at 70.1 million acres, compared with 66 million for the 35 states in 1970 and 67.2 million nationally last year.

Department officials earlier had talked of a national corn planting goal this year of 72.3 million acres, a 7.5 per cent increase from 1970.

The special survey was ordered to help clarify what farmers may do this year in view of another threat from corn leaf blight and to help the department set final requirements for 1971 programs.

The corn blight fungus helped reduce prospects last year by almost 15 per cent, from 4.8 billion bushels expected in July to 4.1 billion reported as harvested.

Officials have said they would like to see corn production at 4.8 billion bushels in 1971 to insure a plentiful supply of livestock feed.

Sorghum grain plantings were estimated at 20.2 million acres, compared with 17.3 million last year.

The crop Reporting Board said farmers intend to plant 45.9 million acres of soybeans this year in the survey states, compared with 42.9 million in them last year.

The special 1971 plantings estimates for Illinois and neighboring states and their percentage of acreage change from 1970 included:

Corn: Indiana 5,418,000 and 104; Illinois 10,442,000 and 100; Michigan 2,003,000 and 112; Wisconsin 2,907,000 and 105; Iowa 11,841,000 and 111; Missouri 3,301,000 and 108; Kentucky 1,167,000 and 100.

Soybeans: Estimated plantings of soybeans this year for major producing states and the percentage change from 1970 included:

Indiana 3,666,000 and 110; Illinois 7,604,900 and 110; Iowa 5,974,000 and 102; Missouri 3,758,000 and 106; Kentucky 757,000 and 10.

Defense Overcharges

WASHINGTON (AP) — The agency charged with eliminating excessive profits on space and defense contracts has reported that during fiscal 1970 it found private contractors overcharging the federal government by nearly $33.5 million, the highest overcharge total in a decade.

The Renegotiation Board, in its annual report to Congress, said that during the last fiscal year it made 123 determinations of excessive profits totaling $33,453,457. In 68 cases, the board said, contractors made voluntary refunds or price reductions of $18,168,705.

In the other 55 cases, the board ordered contractors to refund the excessive profits. Nineteen contractors have appealed the orders in U.S. Tax Court.

At the end of the fiscal year, 31 contractors had not responded to the refund orders but still had time to do so. In the other five cases, the deadline for response had passed and collection procedures were begun.

The 1970 total of $33.5 million was the highest since fiscal 1960 when the board found overcharges of $52.7 million.

The 1970 overcharges were up 33 per cent from fiscal 1969 when the board found excessive profits of $21.3 million. The increase reflects the most active period of Vietnam procurement buildup, the board said, and added that the determinations next year could be even higher. "Because of the time lag that necessarily results from a complete processing of the increased number of assigned cases, the full impact of the buildup is not yet reflected," the board's report said.

The Renegotiation Board is the only independent federal watchdog over government contracting. Since the board's creation in 1961, it has made 4,006 determinations of excessive profits totaling more than $1 billion.

The board does not conduct renegotiation of individual contracts. Instead it reviews the total profits made by a contractor on all of his renegotiable contracts during his fiscal year. This procedure allows the contractor to offset low profits or losses on one contract with high or excessive profits on others.

Only if his total profits on all renegotiable contracts are deemed excessive is he ordered by the board to make refunds to the government.

Claim Overthrow Of Uganda Chief

KAMPALA, Uganda (AP) — Army dissidents claimed the overthrow of President Milton Obote Monday, as he was heading home from the Commonwealth summit in Singapore, and warned other governments not to interfere.

A few hours after Radio Uganda announced the takeover, Obote arrived in nearby Nairobi, Kenya, and associates said he had established radio contact with Kampala.

"The army takes over power and warns all foreign countries to keep noses out of Uganda's internal affairs," said the Uganda broadcast. It made the victory claim after 12 hours of fighting with a rival faction of the armed forces in which an under-estimated number of persons were reported killed.

The broadcast said the revolt was led by Brig. Gen. Idi Amin, commander of Uganda's armed forces, and William Oryema, inspector-general of police.

Both leaders appealed for calm and urged the people to go back to work Tuesday.

The broadcast said all political prisoners would be set free and promised that elections would be held as soon as possible to choose a civilian government.

Obote, who has run Uganda's government for nine stormy years and survived one assassination attempt, was accused of permitting corruption in his regime, ignoring army demands for better living conditions and giving top government jobs to favored friends.

Obote, 45, became president of Uganda in 1962, ousting former President Sir Edward Mutesa, who was also king of Buganda, richest of the four kingdoms of Uganda.

Obote abolished the kingdoms, presented a new constitution and, a year ago, introduced "the common man's charter," which he described as a move to the left. In May of last year he nationalized 85 firms and the import and export business.

There have been rumors of unrest in Uganda for at least four months.

About 9.5 million persons live in Uganda, 300,000 of them in Kampala. The country is linked with Kenya and Tanzania in an East African economic community. The army totals less than 6,000 men.

Obote—a Protestant christened Apollo Milton—is the son of a tribal chief in northern Uganda.

He narrowly survived an assassination attempt in 1969 when he was cut down by a bullet as he left a political rally. The same year he was host for the first visit of a pontiff—Pope Paul VI—to black Africa.

A little less than five years ago, on Feb. 2, 1966, another African leader, President Kwame Nkrumah of Ghana, was toppled by an army coup while he was out of the country. Nkrumah was visiting Peking at the time and never did get back to Ghana. He now lives in Guinea.

Morton Testifies About Sentiments

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rep. Rogers C. B. Morton, President Nixon's nominee to head the Interior Department, defended his allegiance to environmental protection Monday against assertions that he has a dismal conservation record and has been a tool of corporate oil interests.

The Maryland Republican, former GOP national chairman, told an apparently friendly Senate Interior Committee the environment must be given a priority equal to that assigned to the economy or national defense.

"Otherwise," he said, "at some point in time, how far in the future we do not know, there will be no economy to enjoy, and practically no reason for defense."

Morton is expected to win committee endorsement and Senate confirmation easily even though Phillip S. Berry, president of the Sierra Club, questioned the wisdom of the appointment and said Morton is neither a distinguished nor a committed conservationist.

"Morton's own conservation record has been a dismal, lackluster performance," Berry said, "reflecting at best apathy toward the environment and at worst outright hostility toward many of the basic reforms necessary to correct past errors

He said Morton, as a member of Congress, has favored dams in the Grand Canyon, voted for what he called the environmentally destructive supersonic transport program, voted to weaken the 1970 clean air bill, and voted to weaken or end a host of other environmental protective measures.

The Sierra Club head said he is particularly concerned with what Morton might do on two issues: Continuance of the oil leases in California's Santa Barbara Channel and the building of an oil pipeline across Alaska.

On the Santa Barbara question, Morton testified he hopes to decide the issue within a month but pledged to leave no stone unturned to prevent a recurrence of the disastrous oil spill of 1969.

On the pipeline, he promised to do everything possible to assure the shipment of oil from the new discovery on Alaska's north slope in a manner that is both safe and compatible to the environment.

Morton, the first easterner in decades to be considered for the Interior post, was nominated late last year to replace Secretary Walter J. Hickel who was fired by President Nixon.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court guaranteed all criminal defendants Monday the right to seek a trial in a community that is not prejudiced against them.

The guarantee came in an 8-1 decision that upset the conviction of the Rev. James E. Groppi for resisting arrest during a civil rights march in Milwaukee in 1967.

The priest had been active in the civil rights movement, and he contended the jury at his trial would reflect community prejudice against him.

His plea for a change of venue was rejected out of hand, however, because resisting arrest is a misdemeanor in Wisconsin.

Justice Potter Stewart, speaking for the court, said Groppi should have had a chance to prove potential prejudice.

Justice Hugo L. Black dissented, saying the defendants are protected by their right to move for a new trial on grounds of prejudice after conviction.

Groppi, reached in Montreal where he had a speaking engagement, said he is very happy with the decision. He said he thinks his profession and white skin "played a part in the fact that I'm still out of jail."

The case was returned to Milwaukee, where Groppi will be entitled to a hearing on his prejudice claims if the state tries to reopen the prosecution.

In another ruling, the Supreme Court said employers may not automatically refuse to hire women with small children if they hire men in the same situation. The unsigned opinion said job applications from moth-

Dusk-To-Dawn Curfew Levied At Phnom Penh

PHNOM PENH (AP) — The Cambodian government imposed a dusk-to-dawn curfew throughout the capital Monday to combat an enemy war of terror spreading in the city's streets.

The order followed an attempt to bomb the South Vietnamese Embassy on a main boulevard and new attacks on the city's outer edges and the airport, already severely damaged by an enemy raid last Friday.

A Viet Cong cease-fire went into effect in South Vietnam for the four-day Tet lunar new year but the holiday is not observed in Cambodia except by minority populations of Vietnamese and Chinese.

In fact, many residents of Phnom Penh fear a heavy attack on the city during Tet, although officials doubt it.

The capital has been jittery ever since the airport raid and explosions are heard through the night. Some are the result of grenades thrown into rivers by Cambodian soldiers trying to keep enemy frogmen from blowing up bridges.

A dusk-to-dawn curfew was imposed Saturday on a few main thoroughfares that are the addresses of foreign embassies and government buildings. Traffic was allowed on other streets.

Apparently the new enemy attacks, the attempt on the South Vietnamese Embassy and the prospect of continued terrorism elsewhere, prompted the government of Premier Lon Nol to extend the curfew to the rest of the capital.

Shortly before the curfew was ordered an unidentified Vietnamese hurled a plastic satchel charge at the South Vietnamese Embassy but it did not explode.

Largest Ever Communication Satellite Rockets Into Orbit

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The world's largest communications satellite, capable of handling 9,000 simultaneous telephone calls, rocketed into preliminary transfer orbit Monday night en route to a stationary outpost high above the Atlantic.

A 13-story-tall Atlas-Centaur rocket blazed away from Cape Kennedy at 7:35 p.m. EST. Thirty minutes later the launch control center reported the rocket had thrust the Intelsat 4 payload into a wide elliptical orbit ranging from about 165 to 22,700 miles high.

Ground stations are to track the new satellite for more than a day and early Wednesday a radio signal is to trigger a motor aboard the craft to kick it into stationary orbit 22,300 miles above the Atlantic.

Here it will serve as a powerful space switchboard to relay telephone, television, radio and other commercial communications signals to and from stations in North and South America, Europe and Africa.

The launching had been postponed the three previous nights because of high-altitude winds.

Intelsat 4 is the first of eight satellites planned in this series. Each weighs 3,094 pounds, stands 17 feet tall and is 8 feet in diameter. Each can handle up to 9,000 simultaneous telephone calls or 12 color television channels.

Pronounce Apollo Astronauts Physically Fit For Mission

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The Apollo 14 astronauts were pronounced physically fit Monday to fly to the moon as the launch team started the six-day countdown for Sunday's launching.

Space agency doctors examined astronauts Alan B. Shepard Jr., Edgar D. Mitchell and Stuart A. Roosa for four hours and found no medical problems. Dr. Charles A. Berry, the astronauts' chief physician, declared them "certified and ready to fly."

After the physical, Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa went to the training building to rehearse in spacesuit simulators.

The countdown started right on schedule at 9 a.m. when test conductor Charles Henschel signaled the clock to begin at 102 hours. The count actually extends over a longer period, but there are five planned "holds" totaling 38 hours 23 minutes to provide for any necessary catch-up work.

The clock is to reach zero at 3:23 p.m. Sunday when the mighty Saturn 5 is to roar to life to start the astronauts on their way to the moon.

Shepard and Mitchell are to land in a rough highland area named Fra Mauro on Feb. 5 for a 33½-hour stay. During two outside excursions they are to deploy a nuclear-powered science station and hopefully collect rocks dating back 4.6 billion years to the creation of the moon.

After the Apollo 13 astronauts underwent their final major physical exam last April, doctors revealed all three had been exposed to German measles. Tests showed one of them, Thomas K. Mattingly, was not immune, and he was replaced on the flight by backup command module pilot John L. Swigert.

As a result of that incident, the Apollo 14 astronauts and their backups began a period of medical isolation on Jan. 11 purposely to minimize exposure to illness or disease.

They are restricted generally to three areas at the Kennedy Space Center, and only 112 persons are authorized to work directly with them. All, including the spacemen, were immunized against 10 common diseases.

Hit Revenue Sharing Nixon Plan Snags

WASHINGTON (AP) — While President Nixon intensified efforts with congressional leaders in behalf of his "new American Revolution," one of his major proposals ran into formidable House opposition.

The two men who will have a dominant voice in deciding whether and how Congress approves the sharing of federal revenues with states and cities made clear they dislike the proposal. And they told the President how they feel.

They are Rep. Wilbur D. Mills, D-Ark., chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, and Rep. John W. Byrnes, R-Wis., the top minority member. Without the committee's backing, the revenue proposal would have a hard time getting off the ground.

Mills and Byrnes were among many congressional leaders who met Monday with the President in one of a series of briefings. Their views didn't jibe with those of House Republican Leader Gerald R. Ford of Michigan, who voiced optimism over the revenue-sharing prospects.

Mills and Byrnes met privately with the President. They said they would give a hearing to the proposal to plow back to the states and local governments $16 billion in Federal revenues. No time was set for the lengthy hearings to get under way.

"I am perfectly willing to have hearings, but not for the purpose of promoting the plan—for the purpose of killing it," Mills told newsmen.

He added that he does not oppose lumping some federal grants into block allocations for such general purposes as education or job training, with local authorities having more to say about how the programs should be run.

Byrnes told the President "we have philosophical difficulties with revenue-sharing and are basically opposed to it."

One major opposition to the President's proposal is that it would share the revenues with few or no strings attached, virtually limiting the Federal government's role to that of money-dispenser.

The two House members promised prompt consideration of legislation to raise Social Security benefits 10 per cent through additional payroll taxes and to broaden welfare programs.

Revenue-sharing and welfare reform are high on the President's six-point program outlined to Congress last Friday.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said the President wants a hearing and a vote on all six proposals, which Ford said the President considers of equal importance.

The others include reorganization of some Cabinet departments, enhancement of the environment, broader health programs, and full employment.

Telling Blow For Religious Liberty

Speaking of "repression" in America, which is a popular pastime in some circles today, an embarrassing thing has happened in Wisconsin.

By a six-to-one majority, the Wisconsin Supreme Court has reversed the lower-court convictions of three Amish fathers who had refused to enroll their children in public high school.

Instead of ruling that the religious beliefs of the Amish must bow to the higher good of the state, as any decently repressive court ought to rule, the court found those beliefs sufficient grounds for exempting the Amish from the state's compulsory school attendance law.

Although education is a subject within the constitutional power of the state to regulate, wrote Chief Justice E. Harold Hallow, there is not such a compelling state interest in two years of compulsory high school education to justify the burden it places upon the First Amendment right of the Amish to the free exercise of their religion.

One need not agree with the particular beliefs of the Amish—one may even lament their denying their children an education beyond the eighth grade lest they be "contaminated" by the outside world—and still appreciate the decision as wholly in keeping with America's tradition of religious liberty, in search of which the ancestors of tens of millions of Americans, Amish or otherwise, came to this country.

The Amish way of life is not for most of us. In fact, it would be impossible, unless some plague devastated the population and left no more survivors than could support themselves on the available farmland.

But Amish kids aren't found in juvenile courts. Amishmen don't line up at the welfare office. Amish old folks aren't left for the state to care for.

America will have lost something precious if the day should ever come when there was no more room for the Amish and others like them.

The defense attorney for the Amishmen hailed the decision as a "landmark." It may well be that, especially if the state appeals to the U.S. Supreme Court and the Wisconsin court is upheld.

And it may be more. The Amish are one thing; less acceptable religious groups, whose numbers seem to be proliferating, may be quite another.

Suppose some father were to argue on the basis of the Wisconsin decision for the right to educate his children himself, or not educate them at all, in keeping with his personal religious beliefs.

Suppose the same question were to arise with regard to the children of one of these new multiple-marriage, communal, antiestablishment, hippie-type, drug- or sex-oriented cults?

Who is to say that one man's religious beliefs are not as valid as another's?

The courts can say, of course, and they may have to. The decision, however, would not be so easy to make as it was in the matter of the admirable Amish.

"Spoiling Operation"

Pentagon Officials Detail Cambodia Air Policy

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States has intensified its air power against North Vietnamese troops in Cambodia because the threat of an enemy offensive in South Vietnam has eased, Pentagon sources say.

But evidence suggests widespread American air operations in Cambodia for much of the last six months, although official U.S. spokesmen have tried to play down the scope. Only this week did the Pentagon finally acknowledge a wider range of air support of South Vietnamese and Cambodian troops in Cambodia. In a war in which semantics has assumed a significant role, the Nixon administration has backed away from the previously used narrow term "interdiction"—destruction or interruption of enemy supplies and troops—and moved to the broader "air combat and logistic activities," meant to include direct cover for friendly ground forces in Cambodia.

There are indications the administration delayed admitting the full scope of American air activity in hopes this would prevent even more restrictive actions by Congress, which has decreed no U.S. ground troops or advisers enter the Cambodian war.

But now Senate doves, aroused by reports of heavy U.S. air attacks in Cambodia, are talking about new hearings and complaining the administration has stretched the intent of Congress.

The administration has come out more openly now perhaps because eyewitness reports make it difficult to deny what's going on.

Pentagon officials say use of American air power has evolved as the situation has changed.

They claim the move to apply heavier U.S. air power against the enemy in Cambodia stems in large part from judgments, based on intelligence information, that the North Vietnamese are likely not to mount a major offensive in South Vietnam during the months ahead.

This, they say, opens an opportunity to set back the North Vietnamese in Cambodia to make sure they are unable to re-establish their old sanctuaries along the South Vietnamese border and their old major supply route from the sea.

This "spoiling operation" is aimed at improving the security situation in South Vietnam and permitting faster U.S. troop withdrawals Pentagon officials say.

Although there have been reports in recent weeks of increased North Vietnamese infiltration, Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said Wednesday "the threat in South Vietnam is substantially less than ... three years ago."

Laird did not link this to the gradual buildup of American air operations in nearby Cambodia, but other Pentagon officials did.

They Didn't Come To Praise Him!

Blount's Bad Directive

Soon after the announcement that Postmaster General Winton Blount would head the new U.S. Postal Service, Blount issued an order which demonstrates poor judgment and is of dubious legality. He directed that postal employees, including postal union leaders, "immediately cease any direct or indirect contact with congressional offices on matters involving the postal service."

This is not, to put it as temperately as possible, the way to get the federal mail service corporation off to a flying start. Instead of taking pains to rally postal employees in the common cause of making the new system work, Blount has succeeded in alienating them at the very beginning.

His motivation may be good. The official rationale put forward is that the order is intended to divorce the postal service from politics. It is true that this concept underlies the law authorizing the new setup; its sponsors wanted, among other things, to free the post office from the heavy hand of patronage. Few would quarrel with the wisdom of that.

Blount's insistence that all postal employees' contact with Congress be channeled through his congressional liaison office goes much too far, however. It undermines a right to which all citizens are entitled. There also is a serious question whether the Blount order does not violate federal law which specifically guarantees postal workers and other federal employees the right to petition Congress.

Big Money Backs Muskie's '72 Bid

By BRUCE BIONDANI
NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON (NEA) — Sen. Edmund Muskie has so many things going for him at this stage in the 1972 Democratic presidential nomination fight that his prospective rivals simply can't cope.

When you talk to knowledgeable people in 15 sample states around the nation, as I have just done, you get quickly beyond the obvious—the fact that Muskie had a head start because he was 1968 vice presidential nominee and did a lot of field foraging in 1969-70.

What's working for him as 1971 dawns is the tremendous, contagious momentum he is developing from that base, the fact that he is getting the money to fuel his chosen pace, and the fact that not too many influential Democrats want to shed fresh torrents of party blood so soon after the gorings of 1968.

The 15-state survey turned up astonishingly little interest in Sen. George McGovern, probably Muskie's chief rival today, and only the most occasional talk about such others as Senators Henry M. Jackson of Washington, Harold Hughes of Iowa, Birch Bayh of Indiana, and former Attorney General Ramsey Clark.

McGovern, South Dakota sources say, will drive hard in primaries everywhere. But few think he can get the big money. And the questioner has to be surprised at the absence of attention to him in such celebrated liberal centers as New York and California.

Everything seems to be meshing for Muskie. He gets money partly because his crowded calendar convinces givers he has the zest for the ordeal. The money helps him keep the hot pace.

His present trip to Europe and the Middle East is only his first foreign venture of the year. Tentatively, he plans visits to Southeast Asia and Africa.

Already his February date book is full and aides are penciling in for March and beyond. His separate political establishment in downtown Washington, many months old, is expanding and by March 1 will have a new top fund raiser and principal political operative among other newcomers.

Anyone who surveys key Democrats these days can't help being impressed by the overwhelming wish of many to avoid the bitterness and bloodshed of 1968, which culminated in the debacle at Chicago.

A Minnesota leader voiced this response: "Our people are bruised, battered and scared. They don't want anything like that again."

More is involved than just weariness with traumatic experience. Top Democrats have persuaded themselves that President Nixon is truly vulnerable, that two terms for a sitting president are not so automatic as of old. They don't want to weaken themselves with internal bleeding.

This attitude helps explain why Muskie so quickly is pulling committed support (a lot of it not yet open) from such surprising quarters as New York's liberal reformers. They want to win; they see Muskie making the big moves; they dismiss as ludicrous the fringe-liberal gestures toward Ramsey Clark and GOP Mayor John Lindsay.

The money thing works for Muskie in so many ways. A really big struggle for the 1972 nomination, with two or three key rivals, would drain off funds badly needed for the fall campaign. The party's undiminished $9.3 million debt puts the 1972

Ann Landers:

Denied Satisfaction Of Earning, Achieving

Dear Ann Landers: I married while still in college. Mom and Dad furnished our apartment and sent us a check every month for two years. We had more than enough to live on, yet they insisted on giving us money for birthdays, anniversaries, Thanksgiving, Christmas, Fourth of July—any occasion which could be used as an excuse.

I have graduated from college and am now working. My husband is getting a Ph.D. on a federal grant. We have everything we need and we don't need any more financial help. My parents can't understand that we want the satisfaction of doing a few things on our own.

Last night my father tried to slip me some money behind my husband's back. I refused to take it. My husband saw him and the four of us got into a terrific hassle. My mother called me "ungrateful." My dad said I was depriving him of his greatest pleasure. The relationship is becoming strained. It has deteriorated into a contest of wills. How can we settle this once and for all?—Poor Little Rich Girl

Dear Girl: Write your folks a letter and tell them you appreciate their generosity but now you and your husband are able to manage on your own. Explain that they MUST not deny you the satisfaction of earning and achieving, and that prolonged dependency is unhealthy and can be crippling. Ask them not to send any more money gifts. If they disregard your wishes, send the money back. Eventually when they realize you mean it, they'll stop trying to bind you to them with hoops of gold.

Dear Ann Landers: The letter from the beautiful, intelligent woman who was married to a drunk had a familiar ring to it. I, too, was beautiful and intelligent—or so everyone said. I made the mistake of marrying a lush, too. Whenever I kicked him out I always took him back —"for the sake of the children."

Was I kidding? My children needed a drunken father like they needed a hole in the head. We had no social life because the only people who will put up with a drunk are other drunks. The children often went to school exhausted and nervous from lack of sleep. Their father frequently stalked the house, ranting and raving, until five o'clock in the morning.

I stayed with that miserable man for 15 years. I kept telling myself he was a sick man and he needed me. One day I had to admit I was sicker than he was or I wouldn't put up with his lying and cheating. A woman has to be crazy to let her husband squander his paycheck when their children need shoes and milk.

I don't know why it took me so long to get smart (or should I say well) but I thank my lucky stars I finally made it. I hope you will print my letter for the benefit of other women who are back where I was 20 years ago. Now is the time to use your famous line, Ann. Tell them to wake up and smell the coffee.—Slow Learner

Law For Today

Q. My husband thinks he will live forever and keeps putting off making a will. What share of his property would I receive if he dies without a will?

A. It depends on whether there are children. In Illinois, if a husband dies without a will one-third of his personal property and real estate would be awarded to the widow and two-thirds to his child or children. If the wife dies first, then the entire estate of the husband, upon his death, is divided equally among the children. If there is a widow but no children, she receives the entire estate.

Journey Begins January 31

Shepard To Lead Latest Moon Venture

By HOWARD BENEDICT
CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — America is ready once again to challenge the moon, and the charge will be led by astronaut Alan B. Shepard Jr., the pioneer who became the nation's first spaceman a decade ago.

With the near-disaster of Apollo 13 fresh in their memories, Shepard, Stuart A. Roosa and Edgar D. Mitchell are to be launched on their nine-day journey at 3:23 p.m. EST Sunday, Jan. 31.

While Roosa orbits alone in the command ship Kitty Hawk, Shepard and Mitchell are to attempt to pinpoint landing in one of the moon's most rugged areas, the ancient, craggy highlands called Fra Mauro on the eastern shore of the Ocean of Storms.

They are to set the lunar machine they call Antares in a narrow valley nestled tightly among hills, ridges, craters and rocks as large as automobiles.

They go there in search of scientific knowledge. Scattered about Fra Mauro are rocks and dust from three ages of the moon: Imbrium, Copernican and Eratosthenian.

"We hope that here we will find rocks that date back to the birth of the moon, perhaps 4.6 billion years," Shepard explained. "We hope they will tell scientists much about the origin of the moon, and perhaps our earth and universe."

Fra Mauro also had been the target of the aborted Apollo 13 flight.

Shepard's team has less space flight experience than any previous Apollo crew. Shepard, a 47-year-old Navy captain, logged a 15-minute suborbital trip as he pioneered American manned space flight in his Mercury capsule on May 5, 1961. Air Force Maj. Roosa, 37, and Navy Cmdr. Mitchell, 40, never have been in space.

Shepard would not be on the crew had it not been for his desire and persistence to fly again after he was grounded by an inner ear ailment in 1963.

The ailment, called Meniere's syndrome, is an excessive buildup of fluid pressure in the inner ear. Among other discomforts, it caused Shepard to have a gradual degradation of hearing in the left ear.

Despite his good life, the proud, sometimes arrogant Shepard longed to return to space. His brief, 15-minute flight had only whetted his desire for more. When the Apollo program started, he said he wanted to go to the moon.

But his hearing in his bad ear was almost gone in 1968 when astronaut Thomas P. Stafford told about a Los Angeles doctor, William House, who had developed an operation for Meniere's syndrome.

"With NASA's permission, I went to California," Shepard said. "In order to keep the whole business quiet, Dr. House and I agreed that I should check into the hospital under an assumed name. It was the doctor's secretary who came up with it. So, as Victor Pouls, I had the operation and six months later my ear was fine."

Shepard was returned to flight status and declared: "I'll take anything I can get. The sooner I get off the ground the better."

Shepard, Mitchell and Roosa originally were assigned to Apollo 13, but were moved to Apollo 14, reportedly because Shepard was having training difficulty with the lunar module simulator.

There is no question now about the training. Apollo 14 has been delayed more than six months from its original July, 1970, launch date because of a combination of the cutback in the space agency budget and the need for spaceship redesign after Apollo 13's accident.

"This has given us more time to prepare than any previous moon crew," Roosa reported. "I personally will have almost 1,000 hours in the command module simulator by Jan. 31. That's more than twice the 415 hours that Mike Collins had before the Apollo 11 flight."

Apollo 13 was 205,000 miles from home, nearing the moon last April when an explosion ripped the service module, the section that contains batteries, oxygen and life support equipment for the command ship.

One oxygen tank ruptured and damaged the second, draining the command vehicle of most of its power and oxygen. But astronauts James A. Lovell Jr., John L. Swigert Jr. and Fred W. Haise Jr. limped home during four harrowing days, surviving on the systems of the lunar module.

After an extensive investigation, a review board criticized NASA and two contractors, North American Rockwell Corp. and Beech Aircraft Corp., for "a serious oversight" in the design and testing of the oxygen tank.

The newly-designed system in Apollo 14 includes three oxygen tanks instead of two, with the extra one isolated from the others; addition of a 400-amp battery that would provide enough electrical power to get the spaceship home from any point in their trip; removal of most electrical wiring and all combustible material from inside the tanks; elimination of stirring fans and thermal switches; electrical wires sheathed in stainless steel; closer monitoring procedures on the launch pad, and a better warning system to alert the astronauts and ground control in case of trouble.

Apollo 14 is to shoot into lunar orbit at 1:58 a.m. Feb. 4, following a three day flight. After a day in orbit, Shepard and Mitchell will transfer into the lunar module, separate and make the tricky descent to Fra Mauro, landing at 4:14 a.m. Feb. 5.

They plan to stay on the moon nearly 34 hours, making two outside explorations, each lasting four to five hours.

Within hours after separation, Shepard and Mitchell are to set foot on the moon, following the Apollo 11 and 12 crews of 1969.

Shepard will be the first down the ladder, at 8:50 a.m. "Our first EVA (extravehicular activity) will be concerned mainly with setting up a nuclear-powered science station and deploying several experiments," Mitchell explained.

Similar experiments placed on the moon by Apollo 12 still are sending back data. The devices record such things as moonquakes, meteor hits, magnetic fields, temperatures and radiation flow.

A new experiment on Apollo 14 is a mortar box which will fire four explosive grenades on command from earth after the astronauts have left the moon.

The grenades will impact at distances from 500 to 5,000 feet from the launcher. The impacts will be recorded by a set of three geophones and should provide information on the shape, structure and thickness of the moon's outer crust down to a depth of 800 feet.

The last part of the first EVA will be devoted to collecting rock samples near the lunar module.

Mitchell said they would like to bring back 60 to 70 pounds of lunar material but will be happy with as little as 25 pounds. He said the intent is to worry less about the volume and concentrate instead on fully documenting the material—by voice and multiple photographs of each sample.

To help them lug equipment and rocks, the astronauts will have a two-wheel vehicle that resembles a small rickshaw. The moon cart has containers for everything from cameras and film magazines to shovel, scoop and core tubes and 35 numbered bags into which samples will be placed.

After the first EVA, the moon-men will return to the LM to eat, sleep and recharge the oxygen in their backpacks.

The second walk is to begin at 5:30 a.m. Feb. 6 and will be a geology traverse in which the astronauts will travel to a series of craters and other terrain features to gather rocks and dig up samples from beneath the surface by shoveling and sinking core tubes.

The stroll will cover about 8,200 feet, but the astronauts will never venture more than half a mile from Antares. It will take them to craters which have been labeled with such nicknames as Valley, Cone, Outpost, Triplet, Doublet, and Weir, primarily for their shape.

Shepard and Mitchell hope to collect material from the three lunar ages.

If some scientists are correct, primordial rocks which formed our solar system might be lying at Fra Mauro.

The oldest rocks are expected to be found at the rim of Cone Crater, which sits atop a 400-foot-high slope. It is 1,000 feet across and 150 feet deep. It was formed by a relatively recent meteorite strike which supposedly cut through the younger Copernican and Eratosthenian Imbrium material.

The Apollo 11 and 12 astronauts returned a total of 120 pounds of lunar material which still is being studied.

So far the studies have raised more questions than they've answered. That's why scientists want to obtain samples from as many different geological areas of the moon as possible.

There are some of the preliminary findings: —There is evidence there were lava flows on the lunar surface at some time. But the source of the heat that caused the rocks to melt is uncertain. Some say it came from volcanoes, others that it was the result of large meteor impacts.

—Most of the rocks have the same elements as earth rocks, but in considerably different proportion. This has led most scientists to discard a long-held theory that the moon was once a part of the earth.

—Three new elements have been discovered.

—There is no evidence of water, nor any living, previously living or fossilized material.

While Shepard and Mitchell are on the moon, Roosa will continue orbiting 70 miles overhead. He'll busy himself with camera assignments and scientific observations. He'll photograph, among other things, the crater Descartes, presently the No. 1 landing choice for Apollo 16 next year. Apollo 15, set for a July, 1971, launch, will attempt to land at Hadley-Apennine, a plain cut by a large gorge that runs along the base of the Apennine Mountains.

Shepard and Mitchell are to launch Antares from the moon at 1:44 p.m. Feb. 6, docking with Kitty Hawk two hours later. They'll fire themselves back toward earth at 8:35 p.m. that day, with landing in the Pacific Ocean scheduled for 4:01 p.m. Feb. 9.

After Apollo 14 only three more moon flights remain, with completion set for mid-1972. Three previously planned missions were cancelled by NASA because of congressional budget cuts which have trimmed the space agency budget from a peak of $5.9 billion in 1966 to $3.2 billion this year. In the same period, the number of persons working in the space program has been reduced drastically from 420,000 to 145,000.

Following Apollo will be Skylab, a modest three-man earth-orbiting space station which will use Apollo hardware. Three different crews will visit this laboratory for periods up to 56 days in 1972 and 1973. They will conduct scientific engineering and medical experiments to set guidelines for future long-term space stations.

After Skylab, the U.S. man-in-space program is uncertain. NASA had hoped to have a six-to-12 man station in orbit by 1975, servicing it with a reusable shuttle craft that would fly between earth and the laboratory somewhat like an airplane.

But Congress has been increasingly tough about voting funds for manned space flight, and the earliest NASA can hope to have a station-shuttle system operating is 1978.

COMPLAINING THIEF
BECKENHAM, England (AP) — Philip Goodhart, a conservative Member of Parliament, got himself re-elected to the House of Commons in 1970, but the year had its downs too, he tells constituents. In a New Year's message he reported:

"As far as I was concerned, the most surprising single event was the telephone call I received in the early hours of an autumn morning, when the man who had broken into our house a few days before rang up and complained about the quality of the objects he had stolen..."

EARLY TREATMENT
LONDON (AP) — Early treatment cuts the death toll from cancer, a new British survey shows.

A study of 100,000 people carried out in 1961 concluded that about half the patients treated early for cancer during the year survived for at least another five years. In cases where treatment began late, only 8 per cent of the men and 17 per cent of the women survived 5 years.

Betty Canary One Nurse's Family

(... or, By Flu Possessed)

Lives there a woman with heart so true, when her family's all down in bed with the flu, hasn't said at least once, "What's a lovely girl like me doing in this pesthouse?"

Naturally, she doesn't ask this until the crisis is about over. Or, in plain words, until they all stop verging on pneumonia and scaring her to death three times a day.

The thought never occurred to me until temperatures had been normal for 24 hours straight and they were sitting up pale and weak, but heartily devouring bowls of fruit.

Then, as I suddenly emptied the 40th paper bag filled with used tissues, I thought of telephoning the nearest women's lib organization to see if they'd stake me to a one-way ticket to Jamaica.

When I made my rounds with fresh pitchers of water and two of my children started singing "Here Comes Florence Nightingale," I decided Jamaica wasn't far enough, but Hawaii sounded fine.

Then my husband came tottering into the kitchen hoarsely complaining, "I guess I'll just have to fix my own tea," and I seriously considered the South Pole. Sure, it's cold there, but would I be surrounded by a group of snivellers?

As I washed sheets and crawled under beds retrieving crayons, books and doll clothes, I grumbled.

A waitress, nurse, cook, retriever of lost articles, that's all you see in me!

Must be nice having someone at your beck and call, I guess! Sure is great knowing you don't have to wake yourself up at three in the morning for medicine!

If I were completely free, who would change your bed and wipe your forehead and fix your juice and feed you soup, that's what I'd like to know?

I'm rather glad now that I

CLOTHES CARE TODAY

By RUTH E. HOWARD

The collar of a garment, along with the set of the sleeves, is the most delicate point of its construction, and it is here that two apparently identical garments immediately betray their difference in quality and price.

While there are no problems at all in selecting a becoming style of collar for a long and slender neck, there is far less choice for short, thick ones. The latter type always looks best in a shawl collar or a plain V neckline, and is usually not at all flattered by most of the high, wide, and exaggerated styles. Some of these may, however, be adapted to a short neck if they are set quite far away from the base of the neck, which always creates an illusion of greater length.

All collars, even the white shirt collars, receive expert treatment at HOWARD'S, 121 S. EAST ST., PHONE 245-2215. We do reliable work because we take the time to make this business a career. Ask Ingredient Listing On Detergent Packages WASHINGTON AP) — The Federal Trade Commission proposed today that soap manufacturers publicly admit phosphates contribute to water pollution and tell consumers exactly how much of the chemical is in each recommended amount of their products.

The FTC said the rule would allow the public to compare for the first time the phosphate contents of detergents.

Under a proposed regulation made public today, all detergent advertising and each package of the soap would have to clearly and conspicuously state:

"Warning: Each recommended use level of this product contains () grams of phosphorus, which contributes to water pollution. Do not use in excess. In soft water areas, use of phosphates is not necessary."

The proposed rule, which cannot become final until approved by the five-member commission following a public hearing, also would require a list on detergent packages of all ingredients by their common names.

That provision would include enzyme additives, which have been criticized for possible harmful effects on humans, said Wayne Cooper, the FTC lawyer who wrote the proposed rule.

Phosphates are put in detergents to soften water so that other ingredients can do an effective job of cleaning. The detergent industry, while admitting privately that phosphates do contribute to water pollution, maintains they are the safest water softening ingredient available.

The Soap and Detergent Association, whose members include most detergent makers, took issue with the FTC proposal.

"Any need for phosphate information for the consumer has already been met by the industry, which announced on Nov. 9, 1970, that household laundry and dishwasher detergents would be labeled nationally as to the per cent of phosphorus in the formula, and also its equivalent in grams per recommended use level."

But Cooper said the decision to issue the proposed rule came after review by the FTC of the voluntary disclosure plan proposed by the association. He said the disclosures by at least some of the association's members appeared "clearly deceptive and totally inadequate."

He acknowledged the industry probably would fight the proposal possible on the basis of the cost of changing packages.

Phosphates in rivers and lakes of the United States have been blamed for an alarming increase in the growth of algae, which use up oxygen in the water and pose a hazard to other forms of water life.

YOUR BIRTHDAY AND HOROSCOPE

TUESDAY, JANUARY 24 —

Born today, you are a highly emotional person with a tendency to confuse minor and major issues when faced with too many things going on at once. You will have to learn early in life to keep things around you simple, to keep main issues from becoming complexities of side issues. Otherwise, you will not be able to organize mind and body into the harmonizing whole that is needed for you to gain real success in life. Consistency and practicality must be cultivated.

You have a kind of self-assurance which works extremely well when matters are in harmony with each other. All else being equal, no one can successfully compete with you where confidence is concerned. You know your talents and abilities and have supreme faith in your being able to apply them well to whatever is at hand. You need only to keep facts separated and issues under control to fulfill your potential.

Sometimes tempted to take short cuts in order to achieve success in shorter time, you are to be warned against giving in this way. If you are wise, you will take whatever time is necessary to assimilate every detail and aspect of your work; only in this way will you be able to produce something of real value. Any other success will be purely temporary.

To find what is in store for you tomorrow, select your birthday and read the corresponding paragraph. Let your birthday star be your daily guide.

Jim: "Declarer's first consideration in no-trump play is to look around for ways he can develop tricks to add to the sure ones he started with."
 Oswald: "If he can develop enough tricks to guarantee his contract by going after one specific suit, he should go after that suit. If he can attack two or even three suits, he should start with the suit that will allow him to go after the others later on."

Jim: "South has seven top tricks to start with. He can surely get one more in spades and two more if West holds the king. He will get one extra trick in hearts if the trick breaks 3-3; one extra trick in clubs if the finesse is on; two extra tricks in diamonds if the suit behaves very nicely or one extra trick if the suit behaves fairly well. The prospects are pleasing, but a careless declarer might well get himself set."

Oswald: "If he attacks spades at trick two, East will get on lead with the king and shift to a club. South will play the queen. West will take his king and clear the suit before South has a chance to develop a diamond trick and another game will have disappeared."

Jim: "If South attacks diamonds at trick two, he will be able to keep the dangerous hand out of the lead. The winning play is to take the first trick with dummy's ace of hearts, lead a diamond and play the eight or ten. This will lose to West's jack, but he can't hurt you in clubs. South will have set up his third diamond trick and will be left with time to knock out the king of spades."

Oswald: "Should West hold four diamonds to the queen-jack, South won't be able to set up a third diamond trick; but he will still have time for other suits."

LEE MUELLER Out-Of-Joint Americans Ready For Revolution?

By LEE MUELLER
 NEW YORK (NEA) — Despite President Nixon's many assertions to the contrary, there is a feeling among Americans that something is wrong with the country.

The evidence keeps pouring in. Every day, something or someone in our great nation won't work. Sometimes it's the washing machines and the wildcats—you know, of course, about wildcat strikes. Then it's the underarm deodorants and the policemen or maybe the fellows down at the electric plant.

The seams of the great corporate structures are popping. Things keep unraveling. Exploding. What has happened? What went wrong? What is wrong? Of the many theories on this subject, which blame everything from Mrs. Nixon's meatloaf to dull razor blades, perhaps the most intriguing is contained in a survey being conducted by Daniel Yankelovich, Inc., on Madison Avenue.

The trouble with America, the survey indicates, can be traced to the contract breakdown between manufacturers and consumers since World War II.

The Yankelovich firm, says vice president David Holzman, does surveys for government and industry. Unlike the Gallup and Harris polls, which concern themselves with political issues, Yankelovich studies social trends. The trends, according to Holzman, add up.

Social trend:
 "Less acceptance of authority among workers. Among young people and professionals, there is a growing desire to do work that is meaningful and allows self-expression. The blue-collar worker is not so concerned with self-expression. He says, 'I want more money because this is a lousy job.' The blue-collar worker is growing very dissatisfied."

Social trend:
 "A greater rejection of advertising hypocrisy. For more than 20 years, television advertising has dictated the attitudes of consumers. People can find love and happiness, it is shown, in pucker-powerful mouth-washes, smooth shaves, stockings, certain brands of meatballs, aftershave lotions and clean shirt-collars."

"The housewife is catching on. One asks, 'I don't know if cleaner than clean is really good?' She has learned, finally, that she is not that much more loved because she produces clean laundry. Parents now instruct children on the credibility of TV ads. They actively resent overstatement and speak out against it."

Social trend:
 "Revolution. This remains a very practical, materialistic country. The Communists can shout for years, but the thing that galls Americans most is failure to produce. If there is a revolution, it will be because manufacturers continue to fail in providing what they promise the consumer."

"We've been told by television advertising to be very hedonistic, to live for today ('You only go around once...') all our lives. The white consumer apparently has bought it. The black consumer bought it, too, and he's been very upset because he couldn't get it..."

Social trend:
 "A changing value system. We're told to be hedonistic from 5 p.m. till midnight, but then we're supposed to get up, take an Alka-Seltzer, put on a clean-collared shirt and go to work like good boys. This sets in motion a kind of schizophrenia—it's all too much of a contradiction. It causes a serious wrench on our value system."

To correct this mess, says Holzman, manufacturers must stop promising happiness in an unbreakable tube or consumers must cease believing advertisements altogether.

In the meantime, Holzman advises us to listen to the words of radical philosopher Herbert Marcuse, who contends:

"Consumerism will be the grave-digger of capitalism."

TODAY'S THOUGHT
 By BILL BUCHANAN
 We live in what is considered an affluent society. Yet, for debatable reasons, our country's welfare costs have sky-rocketed. Our people are able, ready and willing to support a welfare program handed on a basis of need but realize it is difficult at times to determine who is worthy or unworthy for relief.
 The problem dates back much farther than most people realize. While the socio-economic conditions were different from today, the Pilgrims faced it in colonial days with a strict dictum—"No work; no eat." Their attitude was actually based on the Scriptures... Paul, for example, was a strong supporter of charity for the poor, but he objected to and condemned the able-bodied charity seekers who could but would not work. It might be well for welfare and relief officials to remember there is NOTHING in the Bible that approves or encourages charity to able-bodied people who are unwilling to work and think the "world owes them a living."

THE DOCTOR SAYS

Women Need Not Be Bald
Save Your 'Crowning Glory'

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Dear Dr. Lamb—I am scared and don't know where to turn. I'm 28 and have three children. Other than an operation for appendicitis I have never been ill. Four years ago my hair started falling out and it falls out by the fistful. I go to the beauty shop every Saturday. A young operator told me I'd be bald in two years. I can't sleep or eat and just the thought starts me to cry. My husband says it is all foolishness, but I would rather be dead than bald. Would you please tell me who I should see or what to do to help me? We don't have much money, but I'd gladly go to work if necessary.

Dear Reader—Baldness in women is more common than you might think, although it usually occurs in later years. Of course, you are not bald YET. There are a lot of causes for baldness. Sometimes it is the result of a glandular disturbance. The small gland at the base of the brain sometimes is injured in childbirth and leads to multiple gland problems. The thyroid gland function is important, too.

Nervousness sometimes causes a loss of hair—even in patches. This may be a contributing factor in your case.

Another cause for loss of hair is frequent use of harsh chemicals in beauty treatments. That trip to the beauty parlor every Saturday may be costing you more than money. Considering some of the things that are done to hair, it is a wonder that any of it survives.

I think you really ought to go see a skin specialist (dermatologist). He can tell you if you also need some studies for endocrine gland function or if you just need to stop all those hair treatments.

If your loss of hair is caused by nervousness, perhaps knowing this is the cause will help you to relax and nature will solve your problem.

Since you don't have much money, why don't you drop the beauty parlor off your list of expenses for awhile and merely shampoo your hair at home (not too often) for a few weeks and see what happens? Don't use bleach or tint or other beauty preparations.

About one-third of diabetics can be treated with dietary management alone. The figure might be even higher if all those who are overweight really lost all their excess fat. I have personally seen many people who had diabetic blood reactions become completely normal after significant weight loss.

Many people fail to realize that their living habits include the regular use of drugs. Coffee or colas contain caffeine, which is a drug. If you need a tranquilizer, you don't need a stimulant. The two drugs would counteract each other.

Do you know anyone who has violent reactions after drinking alcohol? Usually, these people have brain damage, according to Dr. George Thompson, a Los Angeles psychiatrist. Dr. Thompson found that these people had abnormalities in their brain wave (EEG) similar to those reported in certain types of epilepsy (psychomotor). As little as two drinks can precipitate the reaction in some people and they may not even remember the incident afterward.

Please send your questions and comments to Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D., in care of this paper. While Dr. Lamb cannot answer individual letters, he will answer letters of general interest in future columns.

Polly's Pointers

Their Views Vary
On Rug Cleaning

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—I want to tell Mrs. P.K. that I have light gold wool carpet and have cleaned it several times by making a very sudsy solution of detergent and water. I just rub the suds (not the water) into the carpet with my hand, then take old bath towels and rub in this suds, which cleans and dries at the same time. I only do an area about 2 by 2 feet at one time and it really looks beautiful.—MRS. J.R.B.

DEAR POLLY—Tell Mrs. P.K. to put away her suds and back away from that wool carpet. My husband sells, installs and cleans carpets and has had to replace many because a woman tried to save money and shrunk her carpet. Also, some of the spray and foam cleaners have grease bases and attract dirt. Call a professional service. Back away from that carpet quickly and cautiously.—ELIZABETH

DEAR GIRLS—I have used Mrs. J.R.B.'s method and found it most satisfactory on large rugs. I do not have wall-to-wall carpet. This freshens and brightens the rug but should not be used exclusively as professional cleaning is necessary periodically. Elizabeth's letter should serve as a caution to those who may be inclined to saturate a rug or carpet. Too much "wetness" could cause shrinking. Using the suds only should not even moisten the pad, which must not get wet. Thoroughly vacuum the rug first, then use ONLY the suds and keep whipping them up if they die down. An egg beater is good for this. The rug used for such wiping will soon show how much loose dirt is being removed.—POLLY

DEAR POLLY—I, a non-smoker, was faced with an embarrassing situation when a child gave me a cigarette case as a gift. I did want to give her the satisfaction of seeing me use her gift so use it to hold lipstick that I carry in my purse. It is just the right size and keeps the covers from coming off the lipstick.—KATH-LEEN

Polly's Problem
DEAR POLLY—We ordered our mobile home special with double-insulation between the outside walls. There does not seem to be any insulation between the inside walls. I would like to know an inexpensive way to either put something on the walls or, preferably, between the walls to make them sound-proof. Thank you for any help.—RUTH

Boyle's Mailbag

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — Things a columnist might never know if he didn't open his mail:

Science has found that children react to noise even before birth. Tests showed that it caused the unborn infants to kick and also increased their heart beat.

Does your wife protest if you bring too many visitors to your home? Pat Nixon has it worse. A million people a year tramp through the White House.

Cold enough for you? Well, it might cheer you up to know at least that heat waves aren't as deadly as they once were. Only about 175 persons a year in this country are killed by summer heat. The toll in 1901 reached an all-time high of 9,508.

More than 15 million surgical operations a year are performed in the United States, and even members of the medical profession question whether they are all necessary. One operation is performed annually for every 13 persons. This is twice the rate that prevails in England and Wales, which have proportionately only half as many surgeons.

Golf, so popular today, resembles a game that earlier found favor in ancient Rome. It was played with a leather ball stuffed with feathers.

Household hint: To prevent the sun from fading your printed washables, Ma'am, why not turn them inside out before hanging them on the line to dry?

No music: The world's first phonograph record was made by Thomas A. Edison in 1877. What melodic message did it bear? None. It consisted of a recitation of "Mary Had a Little Lamb" by the playful inventor.

Signs of the times: On the deck of Copacaban owner Jules Podell: "Too many people are trying to enjoy today the fruits of success they hope to gain tomorrow."

Nature Notes: Some kangaroos live mostly in trees, and move along its branches like small bears. The ferocious weasel sleeps so soundly that it can be picked up by its tail without waking it. Rattlesnakes grow a new tail button every time they shed their skins. Polar bears use only their front legs in swimming and have been seen 200 miles at sea.

Worth remembering: Behind every successful husband stands a surprised mother-in-law.

Shakeup: Fires that follow an earthquake can be more damaging than the quake itself. The famous San Francisco earthquake in 1906 caused only an estimated $24 million property loss; the ensuing fire $500 million more.

Trundle Bed

A trundle bed was not a child's crib. Popular in the 18th and 19th centuries in England and America, it was a low frame bed designed to roll under a larger bed when not in use. It was sometimes called a truckle bed.

Manson, Three Women Followers Convicted

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Charles Manson, shaggy leader of a cult-like clan of hippie types, was convicted Monday of first-degree murder and conspiracy along with three women followers in the savage slayings of actress Sharon Tate and six others.

The state said it will ask the death penalty for all.

The defendants, who staged wild outbursts during their seven-month trial, sat passively as verdicts were returned on the 27 counts against them.

After jurors were polled, Manson muttered audibly, referring to them: "I think they're all guilty." After the verdicts were all in, he shouted at the judge: "We're still not allowed to put on a defense. You won't outlive that, old man."

The jury of seven men and five women, who had deliberated 42 hours and 40 minutes since receiving the case Jan. 15, was ordered to return to court at 9 a.m. Thursday for the penalty phase of the trial. They will continue to be sequestered.

The prosecutor said he has about 50 witnesses ready for the penalty trial. The defense has said it will put on a case as long or longer than the state's, seeking life imprisonment instead of the death penalty on a contention there still is doubt as to guilt.

Death or life imprisonment are the only possible verdicts for convictions on first-degree murder.

Under California law the same jury that returns a first-degree murder-conspiracy conviction must meet again at a second trial to fix the penalty. Had the verdict been second-degree murder, the penalty would have been an automatic five years to life and there would have been no penalty trial.

The defendants were charged with murder-conspiracy in the August 1969 slayings of the beautiful actress and four visitors to her mansion, and in the killings a night later of a wealthy merchant couple.

Manson, 36, was accused of ordering the killings to touch off a race war he believed was heralded in a Beatles song, after which he expected to take over power.

Other defendants: Susan Atkins, 22; Patricia Krenwinkel, 23; and Leslie Van Houten, 21.

Miss Van Houten was charged with conspiracy in all the killings, but with murder only in those of market owners Leno and Rosemary LaBianca.

The verdict capped a trial in which the state called 84 witnesses and the defense rested without putting on a case. The transcript ran nearly six million words and there were 297 exhibits.

The prosecutor in final arguments called the killings "monstrous, macabre and nightmarish...perhaps the most inhuman horror-filled hour of savage murder and human slaughter in the annals of recorded crime."

He called Manson "someone with a sick and morbid lust and preoccupation with death." The women, he said, were Manson's "robots and zombies."

The defense argued that someone other than the defendants might have done the killings. Attorneys said Manson was being prosecuted for his unpopular life style, and that if the women were really robots they couldn't perform premeditation needed for first-degree murder.

The case first made headlines Aug. 10, 1969, when a maid found bloody bodies of victims at the Tate estate. The eight-months pregnant honey blonde actress, 26, wife of director Roman Polanski, lay stabbed on the living room floor near that of Jay Sebring, 28, Hollywood hair stylist and her onetime fiancé. Outside were the bodies of Polish playboy Wojciech Frykowski, 37, and his girl friend, coffee heiress Abigail Folger, 26. Slain in his car was Stephen Parent, 18, shot as he left after visiting the caretaker.

"Pig" was smeared in blood on the door. A towel "hood" covered Sebring's head. Police called the slayings "ritualistic."

The next day, a few miles away, the LaBiancas were found stabbed to death amid bloody scrawlings.

For four months police were baffled. Then, acting on a tip from a woman who said Miss Atkins told of the killings while the two shared a jail cell, police made mass arrests of Manson and his family, then living in a remote commune near Death Valley.

Two Freighters Collide Near Galveston

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One man died and another was critically injured in the collision of two freighters in a fog bank 88 miles southeast of Galveston, Tex., on Monday.

The Coast Guard said the ships were locked together, drifting at sea. A third ship was standing by.

The two injured men were taken off the third ship in a Coast Guard helicopter from New Orleans, but one was dead on arrival at a Houston hospital, hospital authorities said. Names of the two men were not immediately available.

Both ships involved in the collision were registered in Venezuela. The Coast Guard identified them as the 420-foot Roraima and the 382-foot Anzoategui.

The White House listed the figures Monday, based on the latest census and tax statistics, to show how the tax-sharing pot of new revenue would be split up.

Population is the main factor, plus a little bonus for the amount of revenue the states raise themselves.

California's total for a full year, leading the list, would be $590 million. New York is second with $534 million and Alaska would be at the bottom of the list with $8.5 million.

Nixon's revenue-sharing program also calls for an additional $11 billion—$10 billion in "old" money already scheduled and $1 billion in "new" funds that would be allocated to the states for six special uses. These allocations are not yet available.

The state-by-state breakdown in millions of dollars follows: Alabama $82; Alaska $8.5; Arizona $51.5; Arkansas $43; California $590; Colorado $60; Connecticut $59; Delaware $13.5; District of Columbia $23; Florida $167.5; Georgia $107.5; Hawaii $23.5; Idaho $20; Illinois $220; Indiana $116; Iowa $74.5; Kansas $54; Kentucky $78; Louisiana $101.5; Maine $23; Maryland $92.5; Massachusetts $136; Michigan $229; Minnesota $107.5; Mississippi $61.5; Missouri $96.5; Montana $19; Nebraska $39; Nevada $14; New Hampshire $15; New Jersey $154; New Mexico $32; New York $534; North Carolina $113.5; North Dakota $20.5; Ohio $212.5; Oklahoma $63.5; Oregon $57; Pennsylvania $246; Rhode Island $21.0; South Carolina $56.5; South Dakota $19.0; Tennessee $87.0; Texas $143; Utah $28.5; Vermont $2; Virginia $104.5; Washington $92; West Virginia $41.5; Wisconsin $124.5; Wyoming $11.5

Washington (AP) — The states of California and New York would lead the nation with more than half a billion dollars in the first full year of President Nixon's new $5-billion general revenue-sharing plan.

This would be "new" money to be distributed as grants to the states on a no-strings-attached basis.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Banking Committee called Monday for a federal investigation of a decision by Penn Central railroad directors to purchase a $10-million insurance policy to protect themselves, the company and key officers financially against claims of wrongdoing.

In demanding an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said the agency should have discovered the insurance policy before it was disclosed by The Associated Press.

The AP reported Monday that Penn Central's directors had voted to buy the Lloyd's of London insurance policy in June 1968—as the railroad was chugging toward bankruptcy court. The directors decided the company should pay the $305,000 premium for the three-year policy.

In a statement, Patman said, "It is atrocious that a regulated industry could be allowed to provide its officers and directors this wall of protection against the public and the stockholders."

"It appears that this $10-million policy was sought at the very time that Penn Central was at the height of its questionable acquisition of nonrailroad properties all over the nation."

"In light of what the Banking committee has already discovered... it is easy to see why the directors felt that they needed some protection against charges of wrongdoing," Patman said.

Cambodia

Two American demolition experts, dressed in civilian clothes and staying at a hotel, disarmed the bomb.

The Vietnamese were captured and taken to police headquarters.

Newsman were allowed in the streets during Phnom Penh's curfew hours—6 p.m. to 6 a.m.—but were warned by the military they must be particularly careful and to halt immediately when ordered to do so by soldiers.

The curfew affected about 99 per cent of Phnom Penh's 1½ million people.

North Vietnamese and Viet Cong troops were reported deployed in villages north of the airport. Nevertheless, U.S. Air Force cargo planes kept up the delivery of arms, ammunition and other supplies to Phnom Penh.

Six C-130 transports landed with about 120 tons of supplies Monday. This was the largest number since flights were resumed Saturday after being halted because of the destructive attack on the airport.

Two U.S. 7th Fleet helicopter carriers were withdrawn from the Gulf of Siam from where they had been providing combat support for Cambodia operations.

The move came after 5,300-man South Vietnamese task force ended an operation to reopen Cambodia's Highway 4, the main supply route from Phnom Penh to the port of Kompong Som on the Gulf of Siam.

South Vietnamese headquarters claimed the highway was safe after a 12-day operation and pulled back 1,500 marines to their base at Neak Luong, 30 miles southeast of Phnom Penh.

The 3,300 rangers, engineers and artillerymen who participated with the marines in the Highway 4 campaign were withdrawn to South Vietnam, with some of them slated for leaves to go to their families for Tet.

The Viet Cong's four-day cease-fire went into effect for South Vietnam at 1 a.m. Tuesday, Saigon time, which is 13 hours ahead of Eastern Standard Time.

The South Vietnamese prepared to usher in the Year of the Pig—based on the ancient Chinese calendar—with the most festive celebrations in recent years.

The Saigon government declared its own cease-fire for Tet, a 24-hour stand-down beginning at 6 p.m. Tuesday, Saigon time. It is being observed also by American and other allied forces.

Youth Charged Early Sunday

A Jacksonville young man was arrested shortly after 1:15 a.m. Sunday at Top's Big Boy Restaurant, 1000 West Morton, after an alleged altercation with a city police officer.

Charged with resisting arrest and disorderly conduct, 19-year-old Morris Rattler of 901 Beesley. He was released after posting $200 bond. According to the report, the arrest came when Rattler got into a scuffle with police officer Don Seymour. The incident is still under investigation.

ers can be turned down only if "conflicting family obligations" are shown to affect their work adversely.

The ruling was unanimous, but Justice Thurgood Marshall attached an opinion saying he fears the court has bowed to "ancient canards about the proper role of women."

The case, testing the ban on sex discrimination under the 1964 federal equal job rights law, involved Mrs. Ida Phillips, a mother of seven young children who had tried for a factory job at the Martin Marietta Corp. Plant in Orlando, Fla.

The decision reversed an interpretation by the U.S. Circuit Court in New Orleans that employers could routinely refuse to hire women with small children.

The case was sent back to a federal court in Florida "for fuller development of the record and for further consideration."

In a third ruling the court barred retrial of defendants when the jury is dismissed by the judge.

The 6-3 decision, expanding protection against double jeopardy, involved Milton C. Jorn of Salt Lake City, who was accused of assisting in the preparation of fraudulent income tax returns.

Before the trial had progressed the judge, Willis W. Ritter, discharged the jury so that witnesses could consult their lawyers about protection against self-incrimination.

When the government sought to bring the case up for a new trial several months later, the judge granted a defense motion for dismissal on the ground that termination of the earlier trial amounted to an acquittal and a new prosecution would place Jorn in double jeopardy.

The government, in an appeal, argued that Jorn could be tried again. Six justices said he could not because the Constitution protects Jorn from two prosecutions for the same offense.

Before beginning a four-week recess, the court granted a hearing to the Justice Department in its efforts to block Greyhound Corp. from taking control of Armour Co. the nation's second-largest meat packer.

Mississippi was given permission to sue Arkansas for ownership of a stretch of the Mississippi River a few miles west of Greenville. Navigation channels cut by Army Engineers a generation ago have changed the flow of the river and caused a boundary dispute between the two states.

"In light of what the Banking committee has already discovered... it is easy to see why the directors felt that they needed some protection against charges of wrongdoing," Patman said.

VICTIM OF HUNTER'S SHOT — One of the last of north America's bold eagles sits in a cage at Ontario's Point Pelee National Park, the victim of a hunter's shot which forced amputation of the right wing tip. The huge bird, a bandage over the stump of its right wing, will be given to the Ontario Department of Lands and Forests to spend out the rest of his life in a game preserve. He cannot fly.

Stockyards At Chicago Sued For Closing

CHICAGO (AP) — A federal judge took under advisement Monday a suit brought by a group of Illinois meat industry representatives to prevent the scheduled closing of the Chicago stockyards next Monday.

Judge Hubert Will of U.S. District Court said he would rule Wednesday whether he has jurisdiction to issue a temporary restraining order to keep the stockyards open.

The Union Stock Yard and Transit Co., operator of the yards, is the defendant in the suit.

The suit was filed by the Chicago Livestock Exchange, a group of commission men who work in the yards, and several individual buyers, sellers, farmers and feeders. It asked that the closing be delayed until suitable alternate facilities could be obtained.

An attorney for the Union Stock Yard and Transit Co. argued Monday that there is no federal statutory basis for Judge Will's intervention. The attorney, Calvin Sawyer, said the federal Packers and Stock Yards Act does not require government permission to abandon stockyard operations.

Sawyer also said the plaintiffs have no share in the stockyards losses, which he set at more than $2,000 a day. He said the exchange also had no obligations in the yards' maintenance.

An attorney representing the exchange, Edward M. White, said the stock yards act provides that stockyard operators must give "reasonable notice" of their intent to cease operations.

White said the Union Stock Yard and Transit Co. did not announce its intent to shut down operations until October, 1970. He said this constituted insufficient notice since the exchange would not be able to provide alternate facilities until Aug. 1.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The chairman of the House Banking Committee called Monday for a federal investigation of a decision by Penn Central railroad directors to purchase a $10-million insurance policy to protect themselves, the company and key officers financially against claims of wrongdoing.

In demanding an investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Rep. Wright Patman, D-Tex., said the agency should have discovered the insurance policy before it was disclosed by The Associated Press.

The AP reported Monday that Penn Central's directors had voted to buy the Lloyd's of London insurance policy in June 1968—as the railroad was chugging toward bankruptcy court. The directors decided the company should pay the $305,000 premium for the three-year policy.

In a statement, Patman said, "It is atrocious that a regulated industry could be allowed to provide its officers and directors this wall of protection against the public and the stockholders."

"It appears that this $10-million policy was sought at the very time that Penn Central was at the height of its questionable acquisition of nonrailroad properties all over the nation."

"In light of what the Banking committee has already discovered... it is easy to see why the directors felt that they needed some protection against charges of wrongdoing," Patman said.

FINE TOURNAY SET NEXT YEAR

NEXT YEAR'S Jacksonville High school Four-Team Tournament shapes up as quite an interesting affair. It is almost certain that the same four teams will be entered next season, with Decatur High and Edwardsville returning contracts already, and Chicago Austin in on a verbal agreement. All four teams carry the 'young' tag this year and all four should be potential powerhouses in 1971-72. Jacksonville, of course, does not have a senior on the squad, starting four juniors and a sophomore. Austin has among the returning 6-5 junior forward Charles Bellizzi, 6-4 junior center Adam Sutton and sophomore guards Leroy Miller (6-1) and Dave Wilson (6-0). Edwardsville has an underclassman-dominated squad and what is regarded as the school's best and tallest freshman club ever, led by classy frosh Greg Ahart. Decatur will have 6-6 junior center Mike Moore leading next year's squad.

SPEAKING OF the JHS meet and in answer to many queries as to why the same set of officials worked an entire session (two games), JHS Athletic Director Bob Kraushaar commented Monday, "It may be a good idea for us to try to go with two sets of officials for each session, or at least try to get younger officials. It is always hard to get good officials and it may be even harder to get that many for the tournament if we go to two sets for each session." Many observers felt Tommy Gushleff and Francis Gant of Granite City, who worked the two games Saturday night, were noticeably having trouble keeping up with the action in the two running-type contests. Both officials mentioned to this writer at halftime of the title game that they were bushed and felt there was no way they could do a good job working two games in one night. Most other tournaments, even those involving the smaller schools, have different sets of officials for each game.

Other Tournament Observations

OTHER OBSERVATIONS on the JHS tourney: We were impressed by the composure of Chicago Austin coach Edward Cottrell and his players, especially during the game Saturday night. It is no secret that officiating varies between areas of the state, with the games called closer in the south. Austin outscored Edwardsville by 20 points from the field but lost 70-69, with 27 fouls called on Austin to nine on Edwardsville. Many coaches and players might have reacted more noticeably than did Cottrell and his club. ONE OF THE best performances, in this writer's opinion, may have gone unnoticed by many. Ron Fairfield, JHS' 6-5 soph center, did quite a job on Decatur's Moore in the championship game, giving up only one bucket when they were head-to-head. MIKE IRELAND, who teamed with Pittsfield High coach Don Pollard to work the afternoon session, is the son of Chicago Loyola coach George Ireland and a former Notre Dame basketball player. THE SATURDAY evening crowd was perhaps the smallest ever for the final session of the tournament, after a meager Saturday afternoon gathering, but Kraushaar adds, "We made some money on the tournament, but we have done better. All three teams were quite pleased with the tournament and the facilities and they all want to come back."

Sizemore, Briles Off List

APPROXIMATELY 100 tickets still remain for the St. Louis Baseball Cardinal Caravan here Friday noon. Two changes which could not be helped have been revealed by St. Louis Speakers Bureau Director Ken Daust in a phone call Monday. Daust informs that newly-acquired infielder Ted Sizemore will be unable to make the trip due to business commitments in Los Angeles, and that pitcher Nelson Briles will not be available as his daughter is scheduled for surgery Friday morning. That leaves infielders Dal Maxvill and Dick Schofield and infielder-outfielder Joe Hague as the players to appear here, along with minor league manager Joe Cunningham and front office personnel Jerry Lovelace and Daust. Tickets, for $2.50 including the luncheon and beverage to be provided by Anton Gaudio Distributor, are available at the Elm City Cafe, Chamber of Commerce, Andy's Place, Club Herald, any member of the sponsoring Ambucs club and this writer. If all tickets are not sold, there will be a few on sale at the door. IN ANSWER to a recent query from this corner, IHSA vice-president James Brim provided the list of schools participating in the various IHSA activities, some of which may be surprising. A total of 760 schools participate in basketball, 470 in baseball, 354 in cross country, 353 in golf, 68 in gymnastics, 485 in music, 381 in speech, 119 in swimming, 203 in tennis, 599 in track and 298 in wrestling.

Apparent New Routt Record

IN THE RUSH of tournaments last week (this writer sat through no less than 16 games in six days) several items were overlooked by this department. From all that we can gather, Routt High school's Jerry Green, a high-jumping 6-1 who scores against much taller opponents and now rates as the area's leading scorer, established a new school one-game scoring record recently with his 43 points against Perry. Green, who hit 18 of 33 from the field and seven of nine free throws, apparently broke the one-game mark of 41 set by Fred Curtis in the Waverly Tournament in 1960. Veteran Routt observers and Rocket coach Gale Thoroman believe the 41 mark to have been the previous high. Thoroman indicated that he turned Green loose in the second half and gave him a shot at the record. JACKSONVILLE HIGH grad Chad Ormiston is averaging 11.0 points per game through the University of Minnesota freshman team's first four games. Ormiston was hitting 57.6% from the field and 75.0% from the charity stripe, as the young Gophers ran up a 3-1 mark. The squad, which has three players averaging higher than Ormiston has beaten Metropolitan Junior College 117-67, Austin Junior College 115-60 and Winona State Junior Varsity 70-69, while losing to the Marquette University frosh 65-58, averaging 90 points per game to 63.2 by the opposition. The Gophers are led in scoring by 6-7 Stan Krebs (18.8), guard Keith Young (17.0) and 6-5 Tom Mulso. The Minnesota frosh will be playing at the University of Illinois Feb. 6 prior to the varsity meeting between the two schools. CANTON HIGH school coach Don Gideon, whose club lost to Jacksonville High 74-69 Jan. 16, turned in his resignation to the school board two

LSU Knocks Off Tennessee 80-70

BATON ROUGE, La. (AP)—Louisiana State's Tigers knocked favored Tennessee out of a tie for the Southeastern Conference basketball lead by beating the Vols 80-70 Monday night.

The Tigers' who hit on 60 percent of their field shots on the way to a 43-33 first half lead, led by as much as 21 points in the final half. The Vols, ranked eighth nationally, scrambled to within 10 points at the end.

LSU is now 4-2 in SEC competition and 8-5 over all. Tennessee is 12-3 for the season and 5-2 in the conference. The Vols came into the game tied with Kentucky and Vanderbilt for the SEC lead.

Routt, ISD Play

IVC, PMSC Hold Area Spotlight

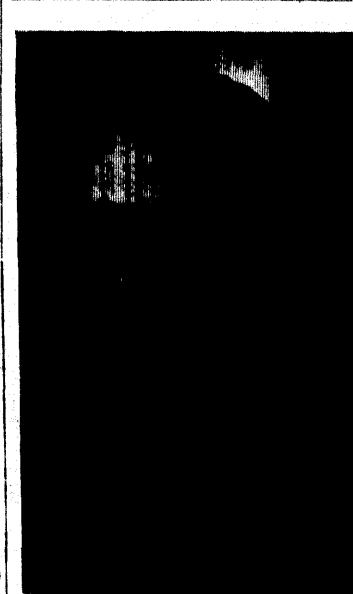

The biggest game of the year to date in the Illinois Valley Conference and a full slate of action in the PMSC Conference highlight a 12-game local and area high school basketball schedule Tuesday evening.

North Greene travels to Hardin Calhoun for a head-on clash with Calhoun in the IVC headliner. Both clubs stand 3-0 in league play and will tangle again at White Hall Feb. 26. North Greene, which finished third in the Winchester Tournament last week, stands 10-4 on the year, while Calhoun, the consolation bracket champ at Winchester, holds a lofty 11-3 rating. Each of the other clubs in the IVC have at least two losses.

Both Jacksonville clubs in the PMSC are in action this evening, with ISD hosting unbeaten Triopia and Routt visiting Chandlerville in a battle that could well decide second place in the standings if not a share of the top rung.

ISD (5-7 overall and 0-3 in the league standings) will be seeking to avenge a 58-40 loss to Triopia (17-0 and 3-0) in last week's conference tournament won by Triopia.

Routt (10-4 and 3-0) will be seeking to retain a piece of the league lead with Triopia and set up a showdown match with the Trojans in Jacksonville Feb. 19. Chandlerville, a 56-41 loser to Triopia in regular season play and a 60-48 loser to the Trojans in the title game of the league tourney last week, stands 2-

Top College Rating Latest Controversy

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Who's no. 1?

Coach Al McGuire of the second-ranked Marquette Warriors thinks UCLA should remain in the top spot in The Associated Press major college basketball poll.

Notre Dame's Johnny Dee, on the other hand, says his team is the only logical choice.

Southern California's Bob Boyd says it's what every team in the country is aiming for.

UCLA, ranked No. 1 a week ago, lost its first game of the season Saturday to ninth-ranked Notre Dame to provoke the speculation. Southern California was ranked third, behind Marquette. The latest rankings will be disclosed Tuesday.

"I don't think we deserve to be in first place in the polls, at least not for now," McGuire said.

"UCLA has been at the top for several years," the Warrior coach said Monday. "To knock them out of the top will take a couple of losses."

McGuire, generally outspoken, was abnormally quiet concerning his team's chances for the No. 1 ranking. Before the season began, however, he was very vocal about the poll.

Dee, however, thought his team should have the top ranking now.

"So maybe they won't like it at Marquette, but in my book Notre Dame is No. 1 in the country," Dee said.

It was two weeks ago that Marquette defeated the Irish, 71-66, holding Notre Dame's Austin Carr to just four points in the first half. The All-American guard candidate finished with 22 points against Marquette, but exploded for 46 against UCLA.

In his own way, McGuire lent support to Dee's assertion.

"UCLA faced an extremely tough schedule physically in playing Loyola Friday night in Chicago and at Notre Dame Saturday afternoon," McGuire said. "They even lost an hour going to South Bend, Ind., which is on Eastern time, so they wound up playing two games in something like 15 hours."

"UCLA is very, very good—they deserved the No. 1 ranking," said McGuire, who watched the televised contest against Notre Dame. "That Sidney Wicks is the best forward I've ever seen."

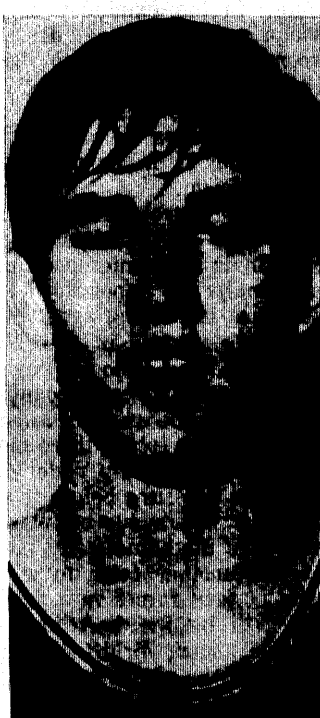

Boyd, whose team is playing in the shadow of UCLA, was not as positive-sounding as Dee.

"We're quite likely to be given consideration as No. 1," he said. "If we are No. 1, I don't want to minimize it. Every college and university in the country is trying to do the same thing."

Prep Spotlight

Steve Ewing

Gene Tillitt

Kim Kirchner

Mike Boeker

Bruce Loewy

Ron Brown

Tuesday's Prep Spotlight features a pair of players from three teams which placed high in tournament action last week.

Steve Ewing and Gene Tillitt are two of the big reasons the Rushville Rockets are currently enjoying one of their most successful seasons in several years, capped off by the title in the 49th Annual Winchester Invitational Tournament last week. Ewing, a 5-11 senior letterman, is averaging 12.2 points per game in the balanced Rushville attack. Ewing has been in double figures in nine of 15 games and a season-high of 20 points. Tillitt, 6-1 jumping-jack junior, is hitting at a rate of 10.6, with double figure scoring in nine games and a high of 20 points.

Kim Kirchner and Mike Boeker are key performers in Chandlerville's 12-5 mark and runner-up honors in the PMSC Conference meet last week. Kirchner, a 5-10, 170-pound senior three-year veteran, has been in double figures in eight games and a season high of 16 points. Boeker, a 5-10, 165-pound junior, has been in double figures in 11 outings with a high of 20 points.

Bruce Loewy and Ron Brown team with 6-4 Dan Little to give the improving Meredosia Indians one of the tallest front lines in the area. Loewy, a 6-5, 195-pound junior, is averaging right at 12 points per game with double figure scoring in 12 of 16 games and a high of 20 in one game. Brown, a 6-3, 185-pound junior, has a one-game high of ten points.

Kinsella Sullivan Winner

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — John Kinsella, a tall wedge-shaped 18-year-old only seven months out of high school, Monday became the 41st winner of the AAU's Sullivan Trophy for the nation's outstanding amateur athlete.

The Indiana University freshman, first human being to swim 1,500 meters under 16 minutes, is only the second male swimmer to win the award.

"There were five or six other boys as deserving if not more so," the 6-foot-3 blond with a bass voice told an AAU news conference.

His opinion wasn't shared by his Indiana coach, Doc Counsilman, or AAU President John B. Kelly Jr., himself a Sullivan Award winner in 1947 as an oarsman.

Kelly called on Counsilman for a few words, calling him "the top collegiate swimming coach in the nation today."

"I had very little to do with it," protested Counsilman. "The credit goes to his high school coach at Hinsdale, Ill., Don D. Watson."

Watson, attending the ceremony, passed on the praise to Kinsella who holds world freestyle records for 400 and 1,500 meters and the American records for 500 and 1,650 yards. Kinsella also shares the world record set by an 800-meter freestyle relay team in Tokyo last summer.

"I got him as a skinny 11-year-old in age group swimming," said Watson, an old buddy of Counsilman who swam for the Indiana coach when he was at the University of Iowa.

"He had huge shoulders even then," Watson said. "He worked with weights to develop his body. He can stand a lot of work. He doesn't tire easily."

Kinsella said he'll swim whatever events Counsilman wants in the 1972 summer Olympics but expects to compete in the 200, 400 and 1,500-meter freestyle events.

The young swimmer said he thought his best chance to improve his records was in the 1,500 freestyle.

Tensi Announces Pro Retirement

DENVER (AP) — Steve Tensi, quarterback for the Denver Broncos of the National Football League since 1967, said Monday he is retiring from professional football and will seek a job of college coach.

The Cincinnati native and 1967 Florida State graduate said the series of injuries that have plagued him over the past three seasons led to his decision. He was sidelined during the last few games of the 1970 season because of a sore arm, earlier had undergone surgery for back and shoulder injuries, and also suffered two broken collarbones during his career.

The Broncos acquired Tensi in a trade with the San Diego Chargers for Denver's first draft choices in the 1968 and 1969 seasons. Tensi passed for 5,253 yards while with Denver, completing 348 of 810 attempts including 38 touchdown passes. His best game was against the Chargers in 1969 when he completed 19 of 26 passes for 301 yards and three touchdowns.

Hialeah Park is in its 45th thoroughbred racing season.

MIAMI — (NEA) — "Some day," said Jim Finks, "we're going to come down here with a 7-7 record and win it all."

Jim Finks is the general manager of the Minnesota Vikings, who had the best regular season record (12-2) in professional football but stumbled in the first divisional play-off. And so Finks was a nonpartisan spectator as he strolled into the Orange Bowl for Stupor Bowl V which, from the beginning build-up, was dedicated to mediocrity.

Really, no one close to the pro sport contended that the Baltimore Colts and the Dallas Cowboys were the two best teams in the National Football League, though conceding they made it to Miami the hard way.

Even the players who had just finished prancing on the polyturf were sensitive to their low public esteem.

"Hey, rabbit," shouted defensive tackle Fred Miller to defensive tackle Billy Ray Smith in the exultancy of the victorious Baltimore dressing room scene, "all those good teams watched TV today."

There was a smirk in his broad smile as he said it, but just saying it, he acknowledged the criticism.

The way pro football is set up today—with divisional and semifinals and conference finals and finally the Super Bowl—the odds are increasing against the best two teams in the NFL, finally making it to the logical denouement. A team can go 14-0 during the regular season, but it still has to win three more games consecutively under tremendous pressure before it can figure it had a successful season. It is mathematically possible for another team to win a total of four games in a season and still be the best in Pete Rozelle's superworld (of course, the other 13 games have to be ties and a 1-0-13 record would qualify the team for the play-offs).

That's not saying it's all bad. Economically, pro football's version of the Shaughnessy play-off system makes sense. And not every season will produce a Colts-Cowboy matchup in which the offense mustered by the two contenders was ridiculous. The one team (Baltimore) led by a creaky 37-year-old quarterback who, opportunely as it turned out, cracked his ribs, the other team led by a scatter-winged quarterback who isn't even entrusted with calling his own plays.

So it became the Stupor Bowl, with the new world champions giving up the football on seven turnovers—four lost fumbles and three interceptions—which theoretically should have meant a rout. And the losing Cowboys, obviously superior in personnel except in the vital offensive spot, turning over the ball four times themselves, getting nicked for 120 yards in penalties and even kicking the ball into the hands of alert John Mackey for one of the two Baltimore touchdowns.

"It was," admitted John Sandusky, the defensive coach of the Colts, "a lousy game, but great for the fans. And great for us."

"If I was ever going to have a heart attack, I'd have had it right then," said Tom Matte, the season-long injured Colt back who watched the game roaming the sidelines in shorts and T-shirt.

To be fair, both the Colts and the Cowboys showed off superb defensive units, verifying the pregame expectations that it would be a defensive battle. Center Billy Curry of the Colts also wanted to explain the incessant ball juggling which finally led to the decisive field goal by Jim O'Brien in the last five seconds of the game. "The lucky breaks," he said, "come when you hit somebody or when you're alert. Those things just don't happen."

I'm not sure the Minnesota Vikings or the Detroit Lions or the Oakland Raiders, who played Super Bowl V in their living rooms, will ratify his plea. But they won't be cashing individual winners' shares of $15,000 either.

Esposito, Orr Keep Hot Pace

NEW YORK (AP) — Imagine a hockey player with 77 scoring points in 46 games and not leading the league.

That's the situation facing Boston's fabulous Bobby Orr in the National Hockey League scoring race.

Orr has accumulated 30 goals and 47 assists for 77 points but he is still 13 points behind teammate Phil Esposito, who remains on a record pace at the top.

Esposito has 90 points on 44 goals and 46 assists and is only 10 points short of being the first NHL player to go over 100 points in two separate seasons. Esposito set the record with 126 points two years ago and finished with 90 including 43 goals last year.

Orr, of course, won the NHL scoring title with 120 points last season, and with 32 games remaining, could match that total this year. But it may not be enough to catch Esposito.

West. Kentucky Nets 117-72 Romp

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP) — Western Kentucky, with Jim McDaniels scoring 31 points, trounced Austin Peay 117-72 Monday night in an Ohio Valley Conference basketball game.

The 7-foot McDaniels scored the first points in the game and the Hilltoppers went on to hold a 61-33 halftime edge over the shorter Austin Peay squad.

VERMONT BOWLERS TAKE SPOTLIGHT

Vermont, Ill. bowlers were high in the standings in two of the three divisions Monday after the first weekend of the six-week 23rd Annual Illinois Valley Handicap Tournament now in progress at the Bowl Inn in Jacksonville.

The Vermont Bowl team held the team lead with a 3,107 pin total, with Heel's Five of Jacksonville in second spot with 3,087 pins. R. Bedwell and E. Reedy of Vermont with a 1,304 total were second in doubles, with D. Campbell and J. Campbell of Decatur leading on a 1,346 count. J. Hoffman and N. Reed of Decatur were third at 1,284.

F. Reed of Ashland held the lead in singles with a 66 series, followed by G. Walsh of Athens at 66 and B. Carhart of Decatur at 64.

Bowlers from a three-state area will be competing in the event.

CUBS INK FOUR MORE CHICAGO (AP) — Four more players came to terms Monday to boost the total of signings by the Chicago Cubs to 15.

The latest to agree were outfielders Brock Davis and Adrián Garret and pitchers Roberto Rodríguez and Earl Stephenson. All four spent most of last season in the minors.

Pete Reiser, Rocky Bridges, Norm Sherry and Fred Koenig will coach this year under Manager Lefty Phillips of the California Angels.

NEW YORK (AP) — Miller Barber's $25,000 victory in Sunday's Phoenix Open vaulted him within $623 of Tom Shaw, the top money winner in the PGA Tournament Players Division so far this season, and put him on top of the exemption points list.

Barber, who wasn't even in the top 10 before he carded a 23-under-par 261 in Phoenix, boosted his earnings to $29,129 for second place behind Shaw.

He also picked up 25,000 points for a total of 25,429. Billy Casper is second with 24,075 and Bob Lunn third with 23,625. Lunn also is third in the money with $26,218.

Frazier-Ali Bout Already Sold Out

NEW YORK (AP) — Boxing fans gobbled up the last of 19,500 Madison Square Garden seats for the March 8 Muhammad Ali-Joe Frazier showdown Monday while promoters of the world heavyweight title fight announced they have topped the $6 million mark in pledges for closed-circuit television rights.

The rapid-fire sale of the remaining 4,000 Garden seats, at $20, $40 and $75 each, assured a live gate of approximately $1,250,000—the largest ever for an indoor bout. The around-the-world, closed-circuit telecast is expected by the promoter to bring in additional revenue of up to $9 million.

"The arena is clean," said a spokesman for the Garden, which is co-promoting the fight with a syndicate headed by Jack Kent Cooke, after the last tickets were sold within two hours Monday morning.

The Garden immediately began sale of tickets for the closed-circuit telecast at the sites it has been awarded by the Cooke group, Fight of Champions, which owns all the ancillary rights to the fight.

At a Garden press conference, Cooke's partner, Jerry Perenchio, said basic guarantees for the rights to the live telecast of the fight, still more than six weeks away, have totaled "about $6.7 million."

He said additional closings are being concluded rapidly, with about 90 per cent of sites in the United States and Canada already set.

The guarantees by successful bidders for the television rights are to be applied against a percentage of their gross. Madison Square Garden has guaranteed an additional $700,000, against 70 per cent of the live gate, to Fight of the Champions.

Ali, who has made a successful comeback after an enforced, three-year hiatus while he battled a draft-dodging charge, and Frazier, the generally-recognized titleholder, each will receive $2.5 million—the largest purses in history for a single fight.

Feel ABA Could Stay With NBA

NEW YORK (AP) — An All-Star game between the rival pro basketball leagues? Rick Barry, Joe Caldwell and Al Bianchi, who have been on both sides of the fence, think the American Basketball Association would hold its own.

Although such a game will have to wait until there is a merger between the ABA and the older National Basketball Association, the big difference right now is the 7-foot-2 inches of Lew Alcindor of the NBA, the trio agreed.

"Take Lew and put him with the nine best players in our league and see what happens," said Barry after he and Caldwell, both former NBA All-Stars, led the East past the West in the ABA All Star game Saturday in Greensboro, N.C.

"The forwards and guards are not much different. It would depend on how our centers held up."

"I think we could hold our own because of our outside shooting, particularly if they just took 10 players from each league," added Caldwell, who recently jumped to the ABA, from Atlanta to Carolina.

"In one game, anybody could win," Bianchi said. "but we'd really have to help out on the bigger people on defense. Over the long haul there may be a difference in the leagues, but even over a long haul we wouldn't be embarrassed."

Bianchi, a former player and coach in the NBA, now coaches Virginia in the ABA and handled the East in the fourth annual ABA classic.

"We would have to play super team defense. Alcindor is going to get his points, but on the whole this league has better shooters. There's little difference on offense. The outcome would depend on defense."

Barry, who jumped leagues several years ago and now is with the New York Nets of the ABA, gave the NBA the edge in experience, and in having more outstanding players such as Oscar Robertson and Jerry West in any NBA All Star lineup.

He felt, however, that the ABA had the edge at the forward position.

"If you take the four best in the NBA and the four best here," he said, "the NBA is in trouble. Billy Cunningham and Dave DeBusschere are great for the NBA, and they've got Jerry Lucas."

"But we'd put Dan Issel at forward, along with Caldwell," Barry didn't have to mention himself, after leading both leagues in scoring during his five-year pro career. There also are Bob Netolicky and John Brisker.

And the ABA has one added weapon, which Caldwell pointed out.

"We might win, especially if we played with our red-white and blue ball," he said. "That would dazzle them."

DOLPHINS STREAK TO 91-76 RUNAWAY

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — Sixth-ranked Jacksonville University relied upon the giant size of Artis Gilmore and a balanced scoring attack for a 91-76 victory over small, scrappy South Alabama Monday night.

The South Alabama Jaguars proved well drilled, smooth ball handlers and good shots. But could not handle the 7-foot-2 Gilmore and 7-foot Pembroke Burrows.

Gilmore, as usual, controlled the boards. He pulled down 19 rebounds, just under his nation leading average of 23. He scored 15 points.

Clan Mat Club Faces 5 Matches This Week

The record-setting MacMurray College wrestling squad faces five matches in four days, later this week, during an Ohio-Indiana trip which could bring national recognition to the Highlanders of Coach Pete George.

MacMurray, currently 10-1 in dual meets, will take on perennial college wrestling power Hiram College and Malone College in a double-dual on Wednesday (Jan. 27) at Hiram, Ohio; meet Denison University in a 7 p.m. dual on Thursday (Jan. 28); and complete the tour with a double-dual versus the University of Evansville and Ohio Northern University on Saturday (Jan. 30) at Evansville.

According to Coach George "the four-day trip represents the toughest test we have faced this season — both in terms of the number of matches and the competition we will encounter."

Hiram, coached by 1967 MacMurray graduate Pete Brann — who ranks fifth among all-time Highlander wrestlers — "has been a power in college wrestling for several years, and will undoubtedly provide stiff competition."

Also viewed with apprehension are Ohio Northern, which ranked 11th in N.A.I.A. rating last season, and Denison, a 12-

2 record holder in 1969-70.

Leading the MacMurray attack to date have been junior co-captain Kent Youngren (150 lbs) and freshman standout George Murray (158 lbs), who hold 16-1 records on the year. Mid-season totals also show sophomore co-captain Joe Willett (190 lbs) at 13-2; freshman 167-pounder Joe Kenny at 11-2-2; two-year veteran Jon Maple (177 lbs) at 9-3-1; and sophomore stalwart John Wator (142 lbs) at 12-5.

Completing the tour squad will be freshman Kirt Kradle (118) 7-3; Ken Glueck (126) 8-4-2; heavyweights Rex Anderson 4-6 and Gary Smith 1-4; freshman Jerry Getter (134) 0-2; and senior Bob Stanley 0-0.

MacMurray's current 10-0 mark ties the school record for most dual meet wins in a season, which was set in 1966-69 during Coach George's first year at MacMurray. The mark also extends MacMurray's winning streak to 12; a new college record.

In individual statistics, Youngren is two pins away from tying Bob Kellogg's record of 11 falls in a season. Kellogg, a 1968 MacMurray graduate, was the NCAA College Division National Heavyweight Champion in 1967.

Computer To Play Big Role In Draft

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — It's any given round the computer will indicate the value of almost every worthwhile prospect in college football.

A high rating, for example indicates a potential star during the first year for a rookie. The next highest grade means a potential first year starter. The third highest rating is a potential starter. Other ratings indicate which players will make the 40 man rosters, which are taxi squad possibilities, and which should be rejected.

BLESTO VIII grades are based on football intelligence, aggressiveness, second effort, growth potential, position, and traits such as pose for a quarterback, his ability to scramble, size, speed, injury history.

The computer later in the draft will provide quickly listings of players already taken by round, the up-to-date status of all 26 participating teams, and listings by position of the size, or speed of the highest ranked players left.

Computers have been used by pro football teams before in analyzing players, but this is believed to be the first effort to obtain immediate information on the draft itself.

Representatives of the eight BLESTO teams will make their selections by telephone to draft headquarters in New York. In

Vortman High In Statistics

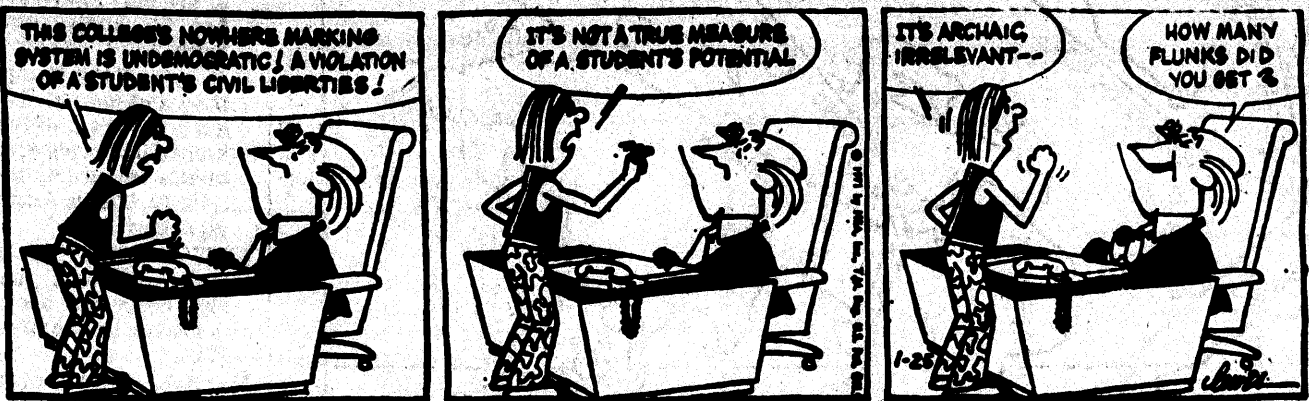

ILLINOIS COLLEGE's leading scorer Glen Vortman, a graduate of Bluffs High school, ranks high in the District and National NAIA free throw statistics. Vortman led District 20 NAIA figures with 42 of 46 free throw tries (91.4%) at the last reporting period, and hit five of five at Westminster last Saturday. The same report placed Vortman fourth in the nation, with Willie Stubbs of Manchester, Ind., leading with a 41-43 reading.

BLUFFS HIGH school grad Lee Frederick is freshman basketball coach at Northern Michigan University this season and his charges are off to a 5-0 start, averaging 90.6 points per game to 79.6 by the opposition.

Renfro Leads NFL To Convincing Win

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mel Renfro of the Dallas Cowboys, the focal point of a controversial tipped pass in the Super Bowl, came to the Pro Bowl an unhappy man, proclaiming his innocence. But he left today a happy man, admitting his guilt.

The strange transformation took place in the Pro Bowl Sunday when Renfro returned two punts 82 and 56 yards for touchdowns in the fourth quarter while leading the National Conference All-Stars to a convincing 27-4 triumph over their American Conference colleagues.

For a crowd of 46,222 it was exciting. For the NFL it staked another claim to superiority over the AFC. And for Renfro it lessened the pain of the Super Bowl defeat seven days earlier.

"It takes some of the bite out of that," Renfro said afterward. "I was real upset when I got here. I felt read bad about losing. It was sad coming off the Super Bowl loss. I didn't say much all week. I just stood around."

While he was standing around, still thinking about the pass that led to Baltimore's first touchdown in the Super Bowl and contributed to their victory over the Cowboys, Renfro had an opportunity to look at films of the controversial play.

And he admitted he tipped the pass, making it a legal play. "I didn't think I touched it," he explained. "But I saw the films, and the ball changed direction, so I must have touched it."

In the Pro Bowl, whenever he touched something, it produced points for his team, beginning in the third period. The NFC led only 10-3 at that point with a 23-yard pass by San Francisco's John Brodie to Dave Osborn of Minnesota the only touchdown in the game.

Then Renfro tipped a pass by Oakland's Darryl Lamonica, Fred Carr of Green Bay intercepted and the NFC built its lead to 13-3 on a field goal by Minnesota's Fred Cox. Jan Stenerud of Kansas City got that back for the AFC just moments later when Cecil Turner of Chicago fumbled a punt—but that fumble was the turning point.

Until then, Turner and Renfro had been aligned side by side on punt returns. But when they came off the field after the fumble, Coach Dick Nolan called the two returners aside. "After the problem Dick told me to get back and field everything I could while Cecil fielded the short ones," Renfro revealed.

The strategic change enabled Renfro to field the two punts in the fourth quarter—and break the game open.

But while it was Renfro's returns that furnished the finishing flourish, the NFC statistically, at least, clearly established its superiority in the first test of strength between the all-stars of the two conferences.

Over-all, the NFC gained 337 yards to 146 for the AFC, 12 yards to 66 rushing and 225 to 80 passing.

Brodie totally obscured his AFC counterpart, completing 10 of 26 passes for 186 yards. Lamonica hit on only four of 21. Osborn, who caught the lone touchdown pass of the game, grabbed four passes in all for 56 yards and was the leading ground gainer with 45 yards in 10 tries.

Defensively, the NFC front four, manned at different times by Deacon Jones of Los Angeles, Bob Lilly of Dallas, Claude Humphrey of Atlanta and Alan Page, Carl Eller and Gary Larsen of Minnesota, continually harassed Lamonica and his replacement, Miami's Bob Griese.

While neither NFC quarterback—Brodie and Fran Tarkenton of the New York Giants—was dumped for a loss, the AFC passers were struck down five times.

But what the statistics showed—the AFC wasn't about to buy. "There's no conclusion about the conferences to be drawn from the game," said AFC Coach John Madden. "Neither team controlled the ball, and both defenses were hitting and tackling well. The score may look worse than the way the teams played."

"I wouldn't think this game showed the NFC was ahead of the AFC," said Oakland center Jim Otto. "And I wouldn't think a game like this can be the true test of the two conferences. It's more difficult to get fired up for a game like this than a regular game."

But Otto did admit that the first AFC-NFC Pro Bowl was far more than an exhibition game in which the game's greatest stars paraded their individual talents.

"There was rivalry out there," he pointed out. "You could feel it. But they seemed more together and more fired up than we were."

ASHLAND — An Ashland High School senior, Patsy Kelly, has been selected after audition, as a member of the All State Chorus to appear before the Illinois Music Educators which will meet in Peoria Thursday, Friday and Saturday, Jan. 21-23. The All State Chorus, along with the All State Band and Orchestra, will present a concert at 1:30 p.m. Saturday, the 23rd, in the ballroom at the Pete Marquette Hotel.

NEW YORK (AP) — It will cost the American Basketball Association about $20 million to sign 33 players selected in its college draft because of the bidding war with the rival National Basketball Association, says ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph.

Dolph's estimate Sunday came in the aftermath of a busy weekend for the league, which held its annual draft of the nation's college stars and an East-West All-Star game in Greensboro, N.C.

Providing a big chunk of the Dolph estimate would be Artis Gilmore, Jacksonville's 7-foot-2 center picked in the first round by the Kentucky Colonies. Gilmore reportedly is seeking a $2.7 million contract.

The ABA was reported by the Charlotte Observer to have authorized a $2 million, five-year contract for Gilmore at a league meeting in Memphis, Tenn., last Nov. 18.

Dolph said the ABA had reached agreements with agents reportedly representing the collegians, but denied that they had actually signed contracts.

"The stories out of Greensboro, N.C., are shot full of inaccuracies," Dolph said, referring to reports that Gilmore, Howard Porter of Villanova, Jim McDaniels of Western Kentucky and Ken Durrett of LaSalle had signed contracts.

However, he added, "Some of the players mentioned have not signed and others not mentioned have signed with agents. We haven't talked to any players, only agents who say they can deliver certain players. We have reached agreements with those agents."

Dolph defended the ABA's action of signing players with college eligibility remaining, pointing out that a college player is not allowed to have an agent under NCAA rules.

"If a kid has signed with an agent, he already has broken the eligibility rule," he said.

McDaniels was picked by Utah, Porter by Pittsburgh and Durrett by Virginia, all in the first round. The other first round picks were Elmore Smith of Kentucky State, by Carolina; Cliff Meely of Colorado, by Denver; Willie Sojourner of Weber State and Dana Lewis of Tulsa, by Virginia. Randy Denton of Duke, by Memphis and Stan Love of Oregon, by Texas.

The other two rounds were: Texas—Sidney Wicks, UCLA; Roger Brown, Kansas, and Mike Sczerbiak, George Washington. Pittsburgh—Levi Wyatt, Alcorn A&M, and Jim O'Brien, Boston College. WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Edward M. Kennedy Monday proposed the federal government set up an agency to direct an all-out fight against cancer.

The Massachusetts Democrat introduced a bill in the Senate to establish a National Cancer Authority, an independent agency whose task will be "to develop as rapidly as possible a comprehensive nationwide program for the conquest of cancer."

The legislation would provide $200 million to the agency in its first year of operation—fiscal year 1972—and $400 million for the second year. Funding the third year would be at the $600 million level.

Kennedy's proposed legislation is identical to recommendations made by the National Panel of Consultants on the Conquest of Cancer and to a bill proposed by former Sen. Ralph Yarborough, D-Tex., during the past session.

Vice President Spiro T. Agnew won the honor last year.

Leading other best-dressed categories were Sen. Edmund Muskie, D-Maine, government; Gene Barry, acting; Dan Rostenkowski, comedian; and Cary Grant, screen.

Rick Larson, Sophomore from Princeton, Ill., is the biggest basketball player in the University of Denver's history. He stands 7 feet 2 inches and weighs 255 pounds.

WINDER, Ga. (AP) — Sen. Richard Russell, dean and president pro tem of the Senate and advisor to five presidents, has been buried beside his mother and father in a family cemetery on a pine-covered north Georgia hill.

An estimated 1,500 persons, including an official delegation led by Secretary of State William Rogers and Defense Secretary Melvin Laird, braved a biting cold wind and rain Sunday to attend.

A sizeable delegation of state officials and legislators was led by Gov. Jimmy Carter, who must now select a man to finish Russell's term, which runs through 1972.

Carter has said there will be no decision for at least a week and probably longer.

Barber's 23 Under Nets Phoenix Title

PHOENIX, Ariz. (AP) — "There were some absolutely unbelievable scores out there," Miller Barber drewled after the final round of the $125,000 Phoenix Open Golf Tournament.

And his was the most unbelievable of them all, a remarkable 261 total, 23 under par on the flat, short, little desert layout named the Arizona Country Club, a par-71 course that yielded some of the lowest scores in the history of the pro tour.

Barber, a moon-faced 30-year-old veteran, fired a solid 65 in the final round Sunday to pick up $25,000 for his fifth triumph.

But even with his total, one of the lowest recorded since Mike Souchak set the record of 257 in 1955, even with that stunning performance, he won by only two strokes and didn't nail it down until the final hole.

Billy Casper, the Masters champ, who had a season-low 62 on the final round, and veteran Dan Sikes shared second at 263. Sikes had a final 64.

Dave Hill, who holed out an eight-iron shot on the fly for an ace on the 153-yard seventh, Homero Blancas and Rod Curi followed at 264. Hill and Blancas had 67s and Curi a 65.

Paul Harney, who held a one-stroke lead going into the final day, still had a shot at a share of second—at worst—when he came to the final hole, a 485-yard par-five.

He was on in two, but took four putts to get down, missing from two feet, and again from less than six inches. He finished with a 71 for 265 and was one of six tied at that figure. That last putt cost him about $2,200.

Arnold Palmer had a 66 for 267, U.S. Open champ Tony Jacklin a 67 for 268 and PGA title holder Dave Stockton a 68 for 269.

"I really didn't realize I was shooting that good," said Barber, who stopped off to call his wife in Sherman, Tex., immediately after finishing. "I was just fortunate enough to make some shots when I needed to. The scores were unbelievable."

"The course was in good shape. The greens were the best I've ever seen here, holding good and putting good. And the weather was just marvelous the whole time. Not a breath of wind. Everybody was reaching for par-fives in two. Put them all together and that's the reason for the scores."

NEW YORK (AP) — It will cost the American Basketball Association about $20 million to sign 33 players selected in its college draft because of the bidding war with the rival National Basketball Association, says ABA Commissioner Jack Dolph.

Dolph's estimate Sunday came in the aftermath of a busy weekend for the league, which held its annual draft of the nation's college stars and an East-West All-Star game in Greensboro, N.C.

Providing a big chunk of the Dolph estimate would be Artis Gilmore, Jacksonville's 7-foot-2 center picked in the first round by the Kentucky Colonies. Gilmore reportedly is seeking a $2.7 million contract.

The ABA was reported by the Charlotte Observer to have authorized a $2 million, five-year contract for Gilmore at a league meeting in Memphis, Tenn., last Nov. 18.

Dolph said the ABA had reached agreements with agents reportedly representing the collegians, but denied that they had actually signed contracts.

"The stories out of Greensboro, N.C., are shot full of inaccuracies," Dolph said, referring to reports that Gilmore, Howard Porter of Villanova, Jim McDaniels of Western Kentucky and Ken Durrett of LaSalle had signed contracts.

However, he added, "Some of the players mentioned have not signed and others not mentioned have signed with agents. We haven't talked to any players, only agents who say they can deliver certain players. We have reached agreements with those agents."

Dolph defended the ABA's action of signing players with college eligibility remaining, pointing out that a college player is not allowed to have an agent under NCAA rules.

"If a kid has signed with an agent, he already has broken the eligibility rule," he said.

McDaniels was picked by Utah, Porter by Pittsburgh and Durrett by Virginia, all in the first round. The other first round picks were Elmore Smith of Kentucky State, by Carolina; Cliff Meely of Colorado, by Denver; Willie Sojourner of Weber State and Dana Lewis of Tulsa, by Virginia. Randy Denton of Duke, by Memphis and Stan Love of Oregon, by Texas.

Business — Market Wrapup

Business Mirror

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — For many years most Americans have judged their light bulbs primarily on the basis of watts, although it now seems that watts never really did tell the buyer how much illumination to expect from his purchase.

Every day in this age of the consumer you experience a shock of this sort, as the activists and advocates and regulators peel off the veneer that once kept us uninformed and relatively unconcerned.

But from now on the light bulb market will be different. A Federal Trade Commission regulation "Relating to Incandescent Lamps—Light Bulbs," signed last July 23, went into effect today.

The FTC has ordered that more light be shed on bulb sales, specifically as it relates not only to wattage, which always was revealed, but to lumens and life expectancy, which almost never were.

All three items must now be listed, either by being printed on the bulb itself or on the casing in which the bulb is contained.

The studies that led to the new ruling descended deep into a dark pit of equations and formulas that would have thrown the designers of income tax regulations into a paroxysm of jealousy. But for dimmer wits, the essentials:

—Wattage is the electric power consumed. It doesn't tell you how much light is coming from the bulb. If you want to investigate further in your dictionary, you may look up "ampere" and "volt," which combine to make wattage.

—Lumen, we now learn, is the measurement of light output. You would be wise to accept this as fact, but if you insist, the lumen is the unit of measurement of light flux or flow. It's probably what you thought wattage was.

—Life expectancy is based on the average laboratory life in hours. It refers to hours during which the light may be expected to burn. Off hours don't count, which is why the light in the attic seems to last forever.

The problems that led to the new regulation might never have developed if all companies saw things the same way, and for a while and to some extent, they did. The bulbs they made offered an average of 750 hours service.

The advertising didn't always reflect this, however. "Same light for less money," they advertised, or "Outlasts ordinary bulbs." And the truth was that bulbs could be made to last many times that length of time.

Congress, Treasury Use The Squeeze Play

By CARLTON SMITH

If you're a taxpayer, you have a friend in Congress — providing that you have upward of $30,000 a year of unearned income. This friendship may, indeed, relieve you of paying any taxes at all next year.

If you're a taxpayer of modest means who has been trying to lay up a bit of cash against the spectre of lean retirement years, things are different. You don't seem to have many friends.

There a plot afoot to extract a few extra tax dollars from savings accounts that formerly allowed you to stretch the retirement buck just a little. And, don't feel resentful. After all, the government has to make up somehow the money it's going to lose on those high-bracket types who are getting the tax relief they need so badly.

Let's take the good news first. Until the Tax Reform Act of 1969 was passed, there was a good deal of grumbling here and there about well-heeled individuals who paid no income tax at all. This was possible if you arranged your investments carefully with regard to so-called "tax preference items," such as real estate, mines and oil wells, which produced tax-free income.

The 1969 act left such income tax-free up to $30,000, but on amounts over that there would be a "minimum tax" of 10 percent. Thus, if you had $40,000 a year of income formerly tax-free, you would now have to pay almost as much tax as a 40-hour-a-week breadwinner earning $4.85 an hour.

This was obviously a gross injustice, and it has been remedied by Rep. Jack Miller of Iowa. As Congress was rushing to adjournment (debate limited to three minutes, no roll-call votes), his amendment to Sec. 301 of the tax law whizzed by.

It will enable some people with large tax-free income, especially from investments in mining, to return to the good old days of paying no income tax.

So much for the good news. Meanwhile, elsewhere in Washington, there were other people worrying about tax-deferred savings accounts. Described several months ago in this column, these special accounts enable a person looking forward to reduced income in retirement years to sequester savings. No interest is paid out for periods up to 15 years. The tax ruling has been that since interest is not being received, it's not taxed until finally paid. If you defer it until retirement, when you drop into a lower tax bracket, the interest when finally collected is taxed at a lower rate.

Thus a worker who had saved $30 a month for 10 years, and who upon retirement dropped from the 22 to the 17 per cent tax bracket, might save an average $35 or $40 a year on taxes.

Can't have that, of course. Anybody with all that money rolling in should pay the full choke at tax time, right? So the Treasury Department has notified savings institutions that it intends to disallow the tax deferral in the future.

If you have such an account, established prior to last Aug. 25, you're probably safe from having to pay tax on accumulated interest. But interest on deposits added after that date seems likely to be taxed from now on.

The matter will be settled later this year, after public hearings. The outlook for the survival of tax-deferred savings accounts doesn't seem very good. Maybe you'd better think about buying a mine.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market Monday demonstrated its upward mobility for the eighth straight session as it fashioned a solid gain.
The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials climbed 4.31 points to close at 865.62. Out of a record 1,086 issues traded on the New York Stock Exchange, 878 advanced, and 541 declined. The previous record was the 1,085 issues traded Dec. 30.
Trading on the Big Board, although below Friday's record 21.68 million shares, was nevertheless heavy at 19.05 million shares.

Analysts attributed the market's progress today to the same factors that they said fueled the advances of the preceding sessions: ever easier money and bright prospects for the economy, particularly in the form of higher corporate earnings.

New yearly highs on the Big Board were reached by 184 issues and new lows by 1.

The New York Stock Exchange index of some 1,200 common stocks advanced 32.35 to 8,656.2. The Associated Press 60-stock average advanced 4.31 to 302.4. Industrials were up 1.0, rails were up .2, and utilities were off .1. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index was up .40 to 95.28, a 1970-71 high.

Gains were scored by farm implements, electronics, and glamor stocks. Aircrafts, oils, and airlines were lower. Other groups were mixed.

The most-active Big Board issue was Sperry Rand, up 1 1/4 at 28 1/2 on a volume of 321,200 shares.

The American Stock Exchange index climbed .14 to 24.07. Of the 1,147 issues traded, 574 advanced, while 340 declined. Volume declined to 5.08 million shares from 5.63 million shares Friday.

Auto Accidents On State Roads Kill Fourteen

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Fourteen persons were killed in traffic accidents on Illinois roads and highways over the weekend.

Delmar Arnes, 60, of Waukegan died late Sunday in a collision at U.S. 41 and Illinois 137 near North Chicago.

Four persons died Sunday in a collision near the Mississippi River bridge east of Louisiana, Mo., inside the Illinois state line. The victims were William L. Hindbaugh, 20, Anna Marie Hindbaugh, 11, and Allen L. Hindbaugh, 6 weeks, all of Quincy; and 15-month-old Jodi Sharp of Jacksonville.

The relationship of the Hindbaughs family was not learned. Thomas L. Skortz, 63, of Ashley was killed Sunday on a blacktop road near U.S. 460 south of Ashley.

George Willis, an East St. Louis taxi driver, was killed Sunday in a collision on Illinois 158 near Millstadt.

Bobby L. Johnston, 20, of Cincinnati, Ohio was struck and killed Sunday night by an automobile as he hitchhiked along a country road near Woodford.

Three persons died Saturday in the collision of a camper truck and car on Illinois 29 south of Pekin. The victims are Ken E. Taylor, 34, Pekin, and Maurice L. Turcott, 25, of rural Chillicothe, both occupants of the car; and Raymond DeWitt, 38, of Green Valley, driver of the camper. DeWitt's wife and five of their children were injured.

Erwin Lebahen, 22, of Calumet City was killed Saturday when his car collided with a Penn Central freight train in Calumet City.

A Moweaqua teen-ager was killed Saturday near Taylorville. Donnie DePriest, 18, was thrown from his car after the vehicle went out of control.

Ernest L. Prud, 23, of Joliet was killed Saturday when his car struck a parked vehicle.

HIGH COURT TO REVIEW ARMOUR. GREYHOUND MERGER

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Supreme Court decided Monday to review the merger of Greyhound Corp. and Armour & Co., the nation's second largest meatpacker.

The court acted on an appeal by the Justice Department which claimed the Greyhound takeover violates terms of a 1920 Supreme Court decree that prohibited Armour from being in the grocery business.

The review will begin with a hearing, probably in April, with a final decision expected by the term's end in June.

Through subsidiaries and divisions Greyhound provides industrial catering services and operates restaurants, cafeterias and other eating facilities. Greyhound's food operations yielded revenues of about $124 million in 1969.

Greyhound replaced the General Host Corp. in May 1970 as intended controller of Armour. The Justice Department had opposed the General Host plan also as a violation of the 1920 decree since General Host operates some 800 grocery stores as well as restaurants, lodges and coffee shops.

CORN AND WHEAT FUTURES LOWER

BOARD OF TRADE NL

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavy liquidation sent corn and wheat futures prices sharply lower on the Chicago Board of Trade Monday and tended to influence late profit taking in soybeans futures. Oats prices were lower.

At the close, wheat was 2 1/2 to 3 cents a bushel lower, March 1.68 1/4; corn as 1 1/4 to 2 1/4 cents lower, March 1.54 1/4; oats were 1/2 to 1 1/2 cents lower, March 77 1/2 cents; and soybeans were 3/4 lower to 1/2 higher, March 3.10 1/2.

The network also took the view that since people still smoke in real life it would be unrealistic to prohibit in some TV plays.

Western Oil Firms Threatened With Widespread Nationalization

TEHRAN (AP) — The Shah of Iran has threatened Western oil companies with widespread nationalization in the next decade.

Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi told a news conference Sunday that Iran might take over the refining of its oil when present contracts expire in 1979.

Two Injured In Collision On Myrtle St.

Two persons were injured about 3:45 p.m. Sunday in an accident on the Myrtle Street Road near Mauvaster Creek, northeast of the Jacksonville city limits.

One of the drivers, 16-year-old Sheila Dougherty of 960 East College, complained of apparent minor mouth and leg injuries but did not seek immediate treatment.

A passenger in the other car, Stan Boots of a Duncan street address, was treated at Passavant hospital for a cut on the head—also apparently minor. Boots was a passenger in a car driven by Kevin Knapp of Murraryville.

Morgan County Sheriff's deputies said Knapp was slowing to make a left turn off Myrtle Street when struck in the rear by the Dougherty car.

BBC REJECTS APPEALS FOR SMOKING BAN

LONDON (AP) — The British Broadcasting Corp. rejected Monday appeals from viewers for a ban on smoking on television.

The British government is waging a campaign against smoking, but a BBC spokesman said many regular smokers found TV appearances "unnerving experiences, and the familiar ritual of a cigarette helps to steady their nerves."

The network also took the view that since people still smoke in real life it would be unrealistic to prohibit in some TV plays.

TEACHERS ORDERED BACK TO WORK

LOCKPORT, Ill. (AP) — Striking teachers who have closed Lockport's three high schools for the past week have been ordered by the school board to return to work by Wednesday or the board will assume they have resigned.

The back-to-work edict was received Saturday by striking teachers in registered letters. The letters were signed by William Brill, board president.

Richard Manley, union president, called the letters an "idle threat" and said they would be ignored by the teachers.

The school district employees 185 teachers. All but five are on strike.

"The oil companies then will come only as buyers and customers and take our oil to its destination," he said. "We shall then invest in the countries in which the oil is sold. This would make us partners in a downstream operation right to the gas station. That is my hope and my goal."

The ruler of one of the biggest oil producers in the Middle East, the Shah said that unless the companies and producer nations reach a new price agreement by Feb. 3, the 10 members of the Organization for Petroleum Exporting Countries will join in counter-measures that "might be anything, including a stoppage of oil."

But the Shah said the negotiations have not deteriorated into a crisis and won't so long as the companies do not try to "bluff us or put on such pressure that they think they can make us surrender."

OPEC nations produce about 85 per cent of the world's oil outside the United States and the Soviet Union, principally for heavily industrialized Japan and Western Europe. In the event of a shutdown, Western Europe's reserves are thought to be enough for almost three months' demand while Japan's are much less.

The OPEC nations are demanding from 16 international companies price increases of about 20 cents a barrel plus hikes in their tax cut from 50 per cent to 55 per cent. The companies have offered a five-year agreement with prices adjusted annually to compensate inflation, but they want a uniform agreement for all 10 nations.

The Iranian ruler said that is unacceptable but that his country and the other Persian Gulf states—Iraq, Kuwait, Saudi Arabia, Abu Dhabi and Qatar—would accept the extended agreement if its price index were based on international commodities markets.

If the companies insist on a global rather than a regional settlement, the Shah said, the OPEC would demand one similar to Venezuela's new law, which provides for a tax increase of up to 60 per cent. In addition to Venezuela and the Persian Gulf countries, the OPEC includes Libya, Algeria and Indonesia.

National Health Insurance Bill Introduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bill designed to give all Americans comprehensive national health insurance was introduced in the Senate Monday.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass., one of the co-sponsors, said the legislation is needed to "end our current health crisis."

The bill would provide health insurance to all persons residing in the United States. Services covered would include the prevention and detection of disease, care and treatment of illness and medical rehabilitation.

Nursing home care, psychiatric care, dental care and prescription drugs would not be covered under the proposed legislation.

The measure would go into effect on July 1, 1973, if passed. A similar proposal was introduced in the last session of Congress but no action was taken on it.

New Plumbing Law Gets Tentative OK From City Council

The Jacksonville city council Monday approved the first reading of an ordinance adopting the Illinois Plumbing Code Law of 1969. The adoption of the state code or an alternate approving the use of plastic pipe in local construction was required by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development as a condition for approval of the city's workable program.

Plumbing ordinance that is inconsistent with the state code is abolished. Another provision allows the city council to adopt any amendments to the state code as they are enacted.

Tentative approval of the state code came over the dissenting vote of Alderman Charles Quinn. Quinn had reservations about adoption of the state code because he believed the existing ordinance was "stricter" and offered more protection to the individual homeowner.

Alderman Ken Kolberer agreed with Quinn and noted that the state plumbing inspector who was present at last week's meeting conceded that point.

The Federal Housing Administration also requires a provision for plastic pipe in order to qualify for loans from that agency.

Urban Renewal Director John Pine and Alderman Dale Brown reported on their trip to Washington, D.C. last week to check on the progress of the city's urban renewal program.

Brown told the council "I feel our visit hurried the program along by a couple of months." He said they answered questions put to them by HUD officials who "didn't seem to have any other requirements" for the city to fulfill.

The pair met with the number three man in HUD and visited the offices of Senators Percy and Stevenson as well as Rep. Paul Findley.

The council approved payment of $5,511.64 to Doyle Plumbing and Heating, $1,251.50 to Cassler and Associates and $250 to Foreman, Rammelkamp, Bradney and Hall, attorneys at law, in connection with the recently completed Anderson Clayton water main.

Anderson Clayton will pay the city for all costs incurred with the improvement.

Finance Committee Chairman Cornell Kane furnished each alderman with a copy of the annual budget report. Kane asked that all city departments have their budget requests for the coming fiscal year in his hands by Feb. 15.

Resolutions were passed authorizing the purchase of 9,000 city wheel tax stickers at a cost not to exceed $427.35 and authorizing Treasurer Rose Cosgriff to enter the city's safety deposit box to redeem a certificate of deposit at the Elliott State Bank.

Alderman Rex Hazelrigg voted against the wheel tax sticker resolution because it was not submitted to competitive bidding.

State Senate Committees Cut From 21 To 12

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A streamlined structure which will reduce the number of Illinois Senate standing committees from 21 to 12 was announced Monday by Sen. Cecil Partee, D-Chicago, President Pro Tempore.

At the same time, Partee named the Committee chairmen and vice chairmen for the 77th General Assembly. All are Democrats.

Partee said the new organization will mean individual senators will serve on fewer committees, assuring greater participation and attendance.

"This will contribute to more detailed examination and discussion of proposed bills and amendments in committee," he said.

One of the important assignments went to Sen. Esther Saperstein of Chicago, who as education committee chairman will preside at hearings on bills dealing with proposed state aid to nonpublic schools and implementation of the new constitution's provision for appointment of the state school superintendent.

Two black members, Sens. Fred J. Smith and Charles Chew Jr., of Chicago, were given chairmanships. Smith was placed in charge of welfare and Chew will head the transportation committee.

Sen. Kenneth Course of Chicago was appointed revenue chairman and Sen. Thomas G. Lyons of Chicago appropriations committee chairman.

Other committee chairmen include:

Agriculture and conservation, Sen. William Lyons, Gillespie; elections, Sen. Theodore Swinarski, Chicago; executive, Sen. Robert E. Cherry, Chicago; financial institutions, Sen. Robert McCarthy, Decatur; judiciary, Sen. Bernard Neistein, Chicago; labor and commerce, Sen. Sam Romano, Chicago; and local government, Sen. Daniel Dougherty, Chicago.

In a group designated as service committees, the chairmen are: assignment of bills, Sen. James H. Donnewald, Breese; committee on committees, Sen. Smith; and senate operations, Sen. Thad L. Kuehah, Chicago.

City Churches Enter Movement For Ecumenism

Calling the division of their churches "scandalous," a minister and a priest said yesterday they hope their "dialogue sermon" Sunday will signal the beginning of closer religious ties between Jacksonville's Protestant and Catholic churches.

The sermon at the Centenary United Methodist Church, by the Rev. Donald Batz, pastor, and Msgr. Michael O. Driscoll, of Our Saviour's Church, was the culmination of Christian Unity Week last week.

Rev. Batz said the sermon was to do more than acknowledge "neighborliness of two churches on the same street."

"The greatest fear about the sermon was that we were like parade horses in a public arena," he said. "I'm hoping that dialogue groups will spring up among the people of all persuasions to talk about reunification of the church."

"If, as St. Paul says, the church is 'the Body of Christ,' Msgr. Driscoll said, 'it is a scandal to find it so mutilated and even deturcated in our time.'"

The sermon reflects "the realization in church hierarchy that reunification of the church is among the top priorities," according to the Rev. Batz.

The mandate for a single church, he said, is biblical.

"One cannot possibly read the new testament without losing constantly reminded of the mandate to seek the oneness of our faith. Christ's priestly prayer at the Last Supper, found in the Gospel of John, is that 'They all be one.'"

Msgr. Driscoll said the churches are not re-examining the causes of their division.

"Little is to be gained by a recitation of the abuses leading to and following the Reformation (when the Protestant church was established)," he said. "There are many fingerprints on the headman's axe."

"Both admit mutual responsibility and go forward," the monsignor said.

He and the Rev. Batz said the biggest areas of disagreement include the primacy of the pope, dangers inherent in private interpretation of the scriptures, the varying beliefs about the Eucharist or Lord's Supper, the devotion to Mary, and forgiveness of sin through confessions.

Msgr. Driscoll said, however, "When you start cataloging the things we all believe in, it is in that, I think our hope for unity lies."

According to Rev. Batz, unity is also emphasized "by a one-

Cars Collide On W. Lafayette

One slight injury was reported as the result of a two-car accident about 3:15 p.m. Sunday at the intersection of West Lafayette and Sandusky.

City police said a car driven by 48-year-old Martha Lorton of 416 Jordan was southbound on Sandusky when she collided with an eastbound auto, driven by Raymond Lewis of 316 East Lafayette.

Lewis said the Lorton car ran a stop sign. Miss Lorton said she didn't know what happened. She was ticketed for failure to yield the right of way.

A passenger in the Lewis car, 22-year-old Edward Mathers of Chapin, complained of a minor injury but did not require hospital treatment.

Two boys, transferred to Barnes hospital in St. Louis.

Judge Says Two Jailed In Jersey Murder Stay Put

JERSEYVILLE — Associate Judge Creel Douglas, presiding in the Jersey County Circuit Court, ruled Thursday that Fred Russell Congleton and James Edward Mize of Alton, charged with murder, remain in the Sangamon county jail until time of their trial.

The defendants' attorneys, John Self and Claude Davis, appointed by the court, sought to have the two returned to the Jersey county jail citing that the distance to be traveled to consult with the defendants was a denial of the right to adequate counsel.

Judge Douglas cut off testimony regarding the condition of the jail, which had been placed on a critical list by the state, and took judicial note of the conditions at the jail. He indicated that the prisoners could either be brought to Jerseyville for consultation with counsel or the attorneys could be compensated for trips made to Springfield to confer with their clients.

The two men are charged with the murder December 13 of James Brooks and three days after their arrest by Jersey County Sheriff Gerald Nairn were moved to the Springfield jail for security reasons.

The defendants' attorneys entered a motion to quash the indictment against them and hearing on the motion was continued by Judge Douglas until February 8.

State's Attorney Alvin H. Pettit was given until February 8 to comply with defense motions for supplying to counsel for defense a list of witnesses to be called by the state; copies of defendants' statements and all other pertinent documents and evidence.

Gov. Ogilvie Releases State's First Report Of Crime Statistics

SPRINGFIELD, ILL. — Gov. Richard B. Ogilvie today released the first official report of Illinois crime statistics in the history of the state.

The report, "Crime In Illinois—1969," is a pilot survey of criminal activity for that year and marks the first phase of implementing Illinois' Uniform Crime Reporting system, Ogilvie said. The report was made possible through funding from the Illinois Law Enforcement Commission.

Legislation requiring mandatory crime reporting for all Illinois law enforcement agencies was passed by the first session of the 76th General Assembly. The legislation prescribed that the Illinois Department of Law Enforcement "shall be the central repository of crime statistics for the state," the governor noted. He continued:

"This document represents the first step by the department toward establishing a uniform crime reporting system for Illinois. Effective management of our law enforcement establishment in Illinois, on local, county and state levels, is dependent on the same premises that lead to effective management of any enterprise. And the most important of these premises is the fast collection and dissemination of accurate and relevant information."

Law Enforcement Director Herbert D. Brown said any attempts to draw conclusions from the statistics in this first report must be made with caution. This report, he said, relies heavily on data now being reported to the FBI by Illinois law enforcement agencies for the FBI Uniform Crime Report.

"This is the first report, and we must acknowledge that there is room for improvement," Brown said. "For one thing, only 278 of more than 800 Illinois law enforcement agencies are represented in the report. All the major agencies are represented, and during 1971 the department will exercise its statutory authority to require every police agency in the state to participate in the study, resulting in a more comprehensive annual publication."

The department's bureau of identification, headed by Supt. Gary D. McAlvey, is responsible for putting the crime reporting system into effect. Under the new program, local agencies periodically will report criminal statistics to the bureau, which eventually will act as the sole reporting agency for Illinois to the FBI, Brown said.

Using 1965 as the base year for all computations, the report shows the state's overall crime rate increased 38 per cent, compared to a 63 per cent increase nationally and a 65 per cent increase in the four neighboring states of Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Wisconsin. These states, including Illinois, make up the East North Central Region.

Two major categories, which include seven crime classifications, were used to establish an index of crime in order to measure trends and crime distribution. One category, violent crimes or crimes against persons, consists of murder, forcible rape, robbery and aggravated assault. The other category, property crimes, consists of burglary, larceny over $50 and auto theft.

Compared to the national index, the Illinois crime index since 1965 is significantly lower in every classification except murder, Brown said.

Property crimes "included 80 per cent of crimes in Illinois in 1969 as compared to 85 per cent for the region and 87 per cent for the United States," the report states. "Property crimes represent an increase of 19,202 crimes over 1968 and 59,265 over 1965, an increase of 14 per cent over 1968 and 43 per cent over 1965."

A breakdown of the value of property stolen and recovered in Illinois in 1969 shows auto theft representing "57 per cent of stolen property dollars and 79 per cent of dollars recovered."

Furs represent the smallest amount stolen and the smallest amount recovered.

The FCC stated that it was up to the licensee to determine how they can most effectively meet the needs of its hearing impaired viewers and the FCC will observe the developments. If the results are not satisfactory, they will set rules toward the adoption of minimum standards.

Organizations of and for the deaf welcome the FCC directive. The Illinois Association of the Deaf has tried to get Illinois stations to provide better service along this line. Robert R. Anderson, IAD TV committee chairman states that all TV stations in Illinois and neighboring states have been sent a detailed report listing the needs and desires and favorable response has been limited. He believes this FCC warning will bring results.

Mayor Fines Two Licensees For Violations

Mayor Dan F. Lahey, liquor control commissioner for the City of Jacksonville, announced Monday morning that fines would be assessed against two retail liquor stores for selling liquor to minors.

Philip Morris Package Liquor Store, 301 South Main, was fined $100; and Butch's Lounge, 213 West Morgan, was ordered to pay a fine of $125.

The two retail establishments appeared at a liquor control commission hearing last Thursday where evidence was presented by state and city police.

Both instances involved selling liquor to persons under the age of 21.

Simon: Shortage Predictions 'Becoming Only Too Accurate'

WASHINGTON — Senator Charles Percy, R-Ill., holds up a newspaper article questioning the wisdom of daylight time as he directs a question to Federal Energy head William Simon during a hearing of the Senate Investigations subcommittee Friday. Percy, a member of the subcommittee, told Simon he has been flooded by complaints from constituents on the time change.

Judge Asks Nixon For Explanation

WASHINGTON (AP) — A federal judge on Friday asked President Nixon to submit a personal letter spelling out his claim of privilege on five White House tapes that have been subpoenaed by the Senate Watergate committee.

U.S. District Judge Gerhard A. Gesell at the same time threw out one of the two subpoenas the committee served on the President demanding all documents of 25 White House and Nixon re-election aides bearing on Watergate matters.

The two subpoenas had been served on the President on July 23.

Gesell's order said the subpoena for the documents "is too vague and conclusory to permit a meaningful response...and is wholly inappropriate given the stringent requirements applicable where a claim of executive privilege has been raised."

The committee asked the court to enforce the subpoena after the President claimed executive privilege, arguing that turning over the tapes and documents would invade presidential confidentiality.

Samuel Dash, chief counsel of the Senate committee, said he agreed with the judge that the documents subpoena was vague and very broad. At the time, Dash said, the committee did not have enough evidence to be more specific about the materials it wanted.

Four of the tapes subpoenaed were among the ones given by the prosecutor and all are of conversations between Nixon and John W. Dean III, who was then his counsel.

The fifth concerns a March 28, 1973 meeting — a time when Dean said he told the President he, Dean, had legal problems because of his post-Watergate activities "and therefore could be involved in an obstruction of justice."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Despite the public's effort to use less gasoline, predictions of a 20 per cent gasoline shortage are "becoming only too accurate," federal energy chief William E. Simon said Friday.

Simon, in testimony before a Senate subcommittee, declined to speculate on whether the shortage would force the administration to resort to rationing.

The Senate is to vote next week on legislation that would give President Nixon the authority to order rationing and take other steps to cope with the energy crisis.

Simon said he was encouraged by the latest gasoline consumption figures, which reflected a 9.8 per cent drop in use last week. But Sen. Edward M. Gurney, R-Fla., said the figure for the week before was less than one per cent.

Simon said he would order oil companies to switch to the maximum production of gasoline as soon as he was certain fuel oil was sufficient for the nation to make it safely through the winter.

He strongly indicated that the administration is preparing to order a rollback in the price of propane and some domestically produced oil. "There definitely is," said Simon when a reporter asked if there were prospects of a rollback.

He said any rollback would apply only to "new" oil, which has been freed of price controls and is selling at $10.35 per barrel.

Simon told the subcommittee on investigations that new propane regulations to be published soon hopefully would bring about a "substantial reduction" in the price of the fuel. Propane prices have tripled recently.

Meanwhile, another Senate subcommittee was told it now appears that in the current winter season, customers of interstate gas pipelines will suffer curtailments of 509 billion cubic feet of natural gas.

The testimony came from Walter E. Rogers, president of the Interstate Natural Gas Association of America, who said the curtailments represent a 20 per cent increase in shortages over the 1972-73 season.

He said the curtailments will increase in future winters unless government and industry make an effort to boost diminishing supplies. He said gas price deregulation would be a step in the right direction.

Other developments: —The Labor Department has created a task force to deal with the increasing number of energy-related auto industry layoffs. Secretary Peter J. Brennan said Friday the force will be composed of Chicago regional Labor Department officials and state employment officials from Michigan, Ohio, Illinois and Indiana.

—The Energy Office said Friday that crude oil stocks may have decreased only 800,000 barrels last week instead of the 8.6 million reported by the American Petroleum Institute. Officials said the discrepancy turned up in the institute's own figures and could not be immediately explained.

The Energy Office said institute figures indicate there will be enough fuel oil available to see the nation through the rest of the winter, even if it becomes colder than normal.

API statistical expert John Hodges said he could not immediately explain the difference between the two figures, but would check on it quickly.

Envision More Electricity Cuts

LONDON (AP) — The government canceled on Friday plans for ending the three-day work week and said more electricity cuts may be needed because of a threatened coal miners' strike.

The message to hundreds of thousands of Britons was clear — little hope of quickly seeing their shrunken paychecks returning to normal and the possibility of colder and more dimly lighted homes and offices.

Energy Minister Patrick Jenkin told the House of Commons the Conservative government of Prime Minister Edward Heath refuses to bow to "the brute force" of the miners' union.

Jenkin said Thursday's decision by executives of the miners' union to recommend approval of a strike in a miners' vote added a "new dimension" to Britain's crisis.

The miners want raises beyond the government's anti-inflationary limit of 7 per cent increases.

Jenkin said the relatively mild winter had brought coal savings which permitted the government to envisage a four-day work week or perhaps even a five-day week.

Those hopes, he said, were dashed by the threatened coal strike. Jenkin did not elaborate on the possible need for additional power cuts. Reduction of electricity, which was ordered to save fuel, led to reduction of the work week.

The miners are expected to start balloting late next. Union leaders were confident that the strike appeal will be approved by far more than the 55 per cent union membership that is required.

Insurgents Shell Phnom Penh Again

PHNOM PENH, Cambodia (AP) — Insurgents reported to be using captured American-made artillery shelled Phnom Penh on Friday for the second day in a row and blasted the capital's airport.

The two-day shelling killed at least 47 persons and wounded 130, the police said.

The insurgents sent 33 more shells whistling into the mostly residential sections Friday, accounting for 3 of the dead and 13 of the wounded.

Ten shells hit the runway area Friday of Phnom Penh's big Pochentong airport, 3 1/2 miles west of the city. In the capital, some residents in the southern parts of the city constructed crude bunkers and fled to the shelters when the bombardments resumed.

The government ordered that a 7 p.m. curfew begin Friday night, forcing people off the streets two hours earlier than during the curfew in the past year.

Government intelligence sources said the rebels apparently are using some of the 30 American-made 105mm howitzers that government forces lost in the last 3 1/2 years of the Cambodian war.

Western observers said they believed Thursday's artillery barrage was aimed at President Lon Nol's palace. Most of the shells hit a crowded housing area about 400 yards west of the palace.

President Suspends Wheat Import Quotas

WASHINGTON (AP) — An order Friday by President Nixon lifting import quotas on wheat so that more grain can be brought in from Canada actually may result instead in substantial flour shipments from Europe, a trade spokesman said.

Nixon suspended wheat and flour import quotas until June 30 to head off a possible shortage of bread grain for American consumers this spring. A record new crop is predicted but the reserve is the lowest in 27 years.

Fred Mewhinney, a vice-president of the Millers National Federation, said the U.S. flour trade in his view has expressed "no clear need" at this time for Canadian wheat.

"But we could see a considerable amount of flour come in and perhaps rapidly," Mewhinney said. "I guess we're going to have to sit tight and see what happens."

Mewhinney told a reporter he thought most of any flour imported as the result of Nixon's order would come from European Community countries. But, he said, there is "no shortage of flour whatsoever" at this time.

The proclamation by Nixon removed a quota of 800,000 bushels of milling wheat a year, a lid which had been in effect most of the time since 1941. It also removed a flour quota of about 4 million pounds annually.

The trade official said one drawback for U.S. flour millers in buying Canadian wheat is that prices there are currently higher than those in this country. In addition there is an import duty of 21 cents per bushel on wheat and 52 cents per hundredweight on flour.

Nixon's quota order did not remove those tariffs.

Record wheat exports in mid-1972 have drained U.S. wheat reserves to the lowest since 1947.

The Agriculture Department, in a report Friday, said the stockpile next July 1 will be down to 178 million bushels. The estimate was 4 million bushels lower than USDA experts had computed only two days earlier. On Wednesday the July 1 reserve was put at 182 million bushels. Last summer the wheat stockpile was 438 million bushels, considered low even then.

Deputy White House press secretary Gerald Warren said the administration does not expect actual wheat shortages before the new crop begins to be harvested in May and June in the southern plains.

The 1974 wheat crop has been forecast at a record 2 billion bushels up from 1.7 billion last year. Agriculture officials say that will be enough to meet all domestic and export needs in the following year.

Start Full-Scale Pullback Friday

By The Associated Press

Israel's invasion forces, hauling captured Soviet-built weapons across the Suez Canal, started full-scale withdrawal from the west bank of the waterway Friday.

Israel's state radio said the pullback would permit Egypt's divided armies to regroup to offensive strength.

Under the terms of the disengagement agreement initiated by U.S. Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger, Israeli troops, tanks and arms were moving out of the southern occupation zone starting at Adabiya port, south of Suez City.

Well-placed military sources in Tel Aviv said the southern zone, below the desert highway connecting Suez and Cairo, would likely be clear of Israeli troops by Monday. This would lift the three-month siege of Suez City and its 15,000 civilian inhabitants, and open the canal for Egypt's marooned 3rd Army of about 20,000 men to cross back into Egypt.

Israel's military command confirmed the withdrawal had officially begun, following a final agreement Thursday between chiefs of staff Lt. Gen. David Elazar and Maj. Gen. Mohamed Abdel Ghanyel-Gamasy of Egypt.

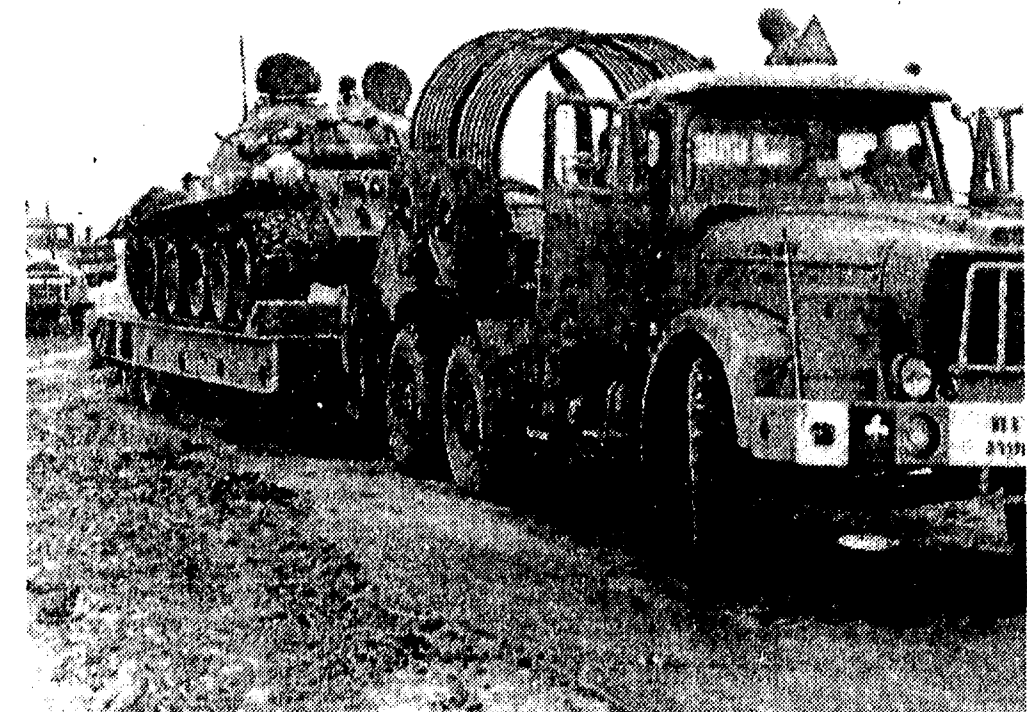

The pullback began in near secrecy, with no outsiders or foreign newsmen permitted to watch. Defense Minister Moshe Dayan personally banned correspondents from observing the operation.

The Israeli state radio said that after all Israeli occupation troops were across the canal and in the Sinai Desert, Egypt could reorganize the 1st, 2nd and 3rd armies that have been divided by the Israeli presence since the October war ended. A state radio correspondent said the armies were believed to be "in fairly good shape," despite the 3rd's having been cut off and encircled for three months, living on supplies delivered by the United Nations.

In the Sinai Desert east of the canal, Israeli troops could clearly be seen digging positions on the two new lines Israel is to hold under the agreement. One of the lines, for lightly armed and limited numbers of forward units, was about 12 miles from the canal and the main line was about 20 miles from the channel, north of the Mitla and Giddi mountain passes.

In return for Israel's pull-out, Egypt is to reduce the size and firepower of its forces east of the canal. The thinning out reportedly will leave Egypt with only about 7,000 men instead of two armies, with 30 tanks and no anti-aircraft missiles.

Solzhenitsyn and the Panovs

The well publicized cases of Alexander Solzhenitsyn and of Valeri and Galina Panov exemplify the continued Soviet repression of mind and spirit. These are notable but far from unique instances of the Kremlin's sustained effort, for all its professed interest in detente with the West, to crush and negate freedom of expression throughout the Soviet Union.

It is evident that the Soviet leadership are motivated by fear of exposure of their inhuman policies. The Panovs, dismissed from their places as principal dancers in the famed Leningrad Kirov Ballet, are being so vindictively punished for the sin of wishing to emigrate to Israel. The Kremlin plainly fears the effect they might have, once permitted to enter the free world. Solzhenitsyn is subjected to harassment and vilification because he dared to publish his devastating expose,

"Gulag Archipelago," in a Western country.

The Kremlin is taking extraordinary measures to keep Solzhenitsyn's work from the Russian people's ken. West German radio broadcasts of Russian language readings from "Gulag Archipelago" are being jammed.

The Kremlin policy has backfired in one respect. In large part because of American protests over treatment of the Panovs, the Kirov Ballet's scheduled tour in our country has been canceled. In one respect this is a sad turn of events; performances here by the Kirov, one of the world's greatest ballet companies, had been keenly anticipated. Cancellation of its tour is gratifying, though, as a further sign that the West abhors and condemns continued Soviet attempts to silence voices that bespeak the free human spirit.

Compassion in Public Aid

There is a moral for all of us, wherever we live, in a New York episode involving a blind man's plea for an allotment to feed his guide dog. The moral is that humane considerations should be given high priority in public assistance.

A New York state Supreme Court judge has ruled accordingly in the case of Fernando Vega. Vega receives $98 every four weeks from the New York City Social Services Department, but was refused an allotment to pay the $20 a month he has to spend to feed his guide dog, Ista, since he acquired it last April. He was told, by both city and state aid authorities, that nothing in the law provides for such an expenditure.

In his ruling on appeal Justice Sidney A. Asch made the indisputable contrary point that the law makes the government responsible for caring for the blind. He rightly said that denial of support for a guide dog without reasonable grounds was capricious and arbitrary.

The judge also declared: "There is no indication that the conditions in this case received any regard whatever. The denial of this claim might have been made by computer."

This is the heart of the matter: computerized thinking evidently took precedence over humane concern for the situation of a blind man dependent on his seeing-eye dog. Whenever something like that happens, the precious quality of compassion has been eroded.

In the Agnew Tradition

There has been some thought that with former Vice President Spiro T. Agnew retired from the scene in disgrace, no one would be around to get off any really vituperative remarks about the press. President Nixon himself disabused the public of this notion by taking some news conference time to complain about "vicious, distorted" coverage of his troubles, but without Agnew the attack does lack the sort of continuity it once had.

A new star has just appeared in the sky, one who gives promise of being able to take Agnew's place in vilification of the press. The reference is to the newly chosen House minority leader, Rep. John J. Rhodes of Arizona.

Rhodes delivered himself of the following the other day at a strategy meeting of the National Federation of Republican Women in Ponte Vedra Beach, Fla.: "Like sharks around a beleaguered swimmer, the news twisters — and there are many of them among the ranks of the highly respectable news media — are beating the inky sea in a frenzy, trying to close in for the kill."

With anti-press stuff of that calibre, who needs Spiro?

Arms Race Dims Mideast Peace Hopes

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

Scarcely noticed in a blizzard of developments, a second-string arms race around the Arab East periphery makes for melancholy commentary on long-range hopes for tranquility in that sensitive region. The Middle East ordinarily is complex enough. The world oil crisis made matters vastly more complicated, and what goes on in the Persian Gulf area might look to a detached observer at times as if dictated by some sort of demented logic.

The whole Middle East long has been vulnerable to the perils of a superpower showdown. After each explosion, Moscow proceeds to rearm Syria and Egypt and Washington to rearm Israel.

Yet there is a suspicion Moscow used its leverage as a source of arms to squeeze Syria into at least listening to settlement proposals. There's a similar suspicion that the United States used access to American arms as an arm-twisting device in Israel. There is even a Tel Aviv report that Israel is producing electronic weaponry to reduce her dependency on U.S. arms.

For all of this apparent fear of arms buildups, however, an odd picture is unfolding of spirited Western competition to peddle arms in the Arab East. Lately British, French and Americans have been prowling the Persian Gulf area seeking arms deals with sheiks and princes. This began before there was any thought of a settlement on the war fronts, even before the October war began.

The French and British both landed arms contracts in the Arabian peninsula before the outbreak of the October war. Now French diplomacy is highly and competitively visible in Saudi Arabia in the wake of a new deal to deliver weaponry plus industrial equipment and knowhow in return for a guaranteed flow of oil.

The United States professes anxiety about "maintaining the arms balance" in the Middle East, but Americans also are heavily involved in the competition to sell arms in the Gulf area.

The Arab East's northern tier is made up of two potentially powerful elements, one with large amounts of Russian arms, the other possessing large amounts of U.S. military hardware.

South of that tier there is the spectacle, for example, of Abu Dhabi, a tiny desert emirate of 80,000, spending oil riches for a swarm of French Mirage jets, perhaps 32 in all. Abu Dhabi has an army of 8,000 with Pakistani, Jordanian and British officers, an unlikely match for any strong enemy.

Pakistanis, experienced with sophisticated weaponry, play an important role that probably irks India, Pakistan's perennial enemy. The Moslem sheiks regard the Moslem Pakistanis as possible protectors. At the same time, Pakistan is believed to have a deal for use of the Abu Dhabi jets in case of an emergency of its own.

Pakistanis also are in evidence in Saudi Arabia, again in collaboration with the French.

Long before the October war, King Faisal had embarked on a billion-dollar arms modernization program. Western salesmen rushed to get in on it. The Saudis had ordered 170 jet fighters, among other things, from the United States to beef up an existing force of 70 planes. Just after the October war began, U.S. officials said talks with Persian Gulf Arabs on arms would be held in abeyance, but the process still seems to be alive.

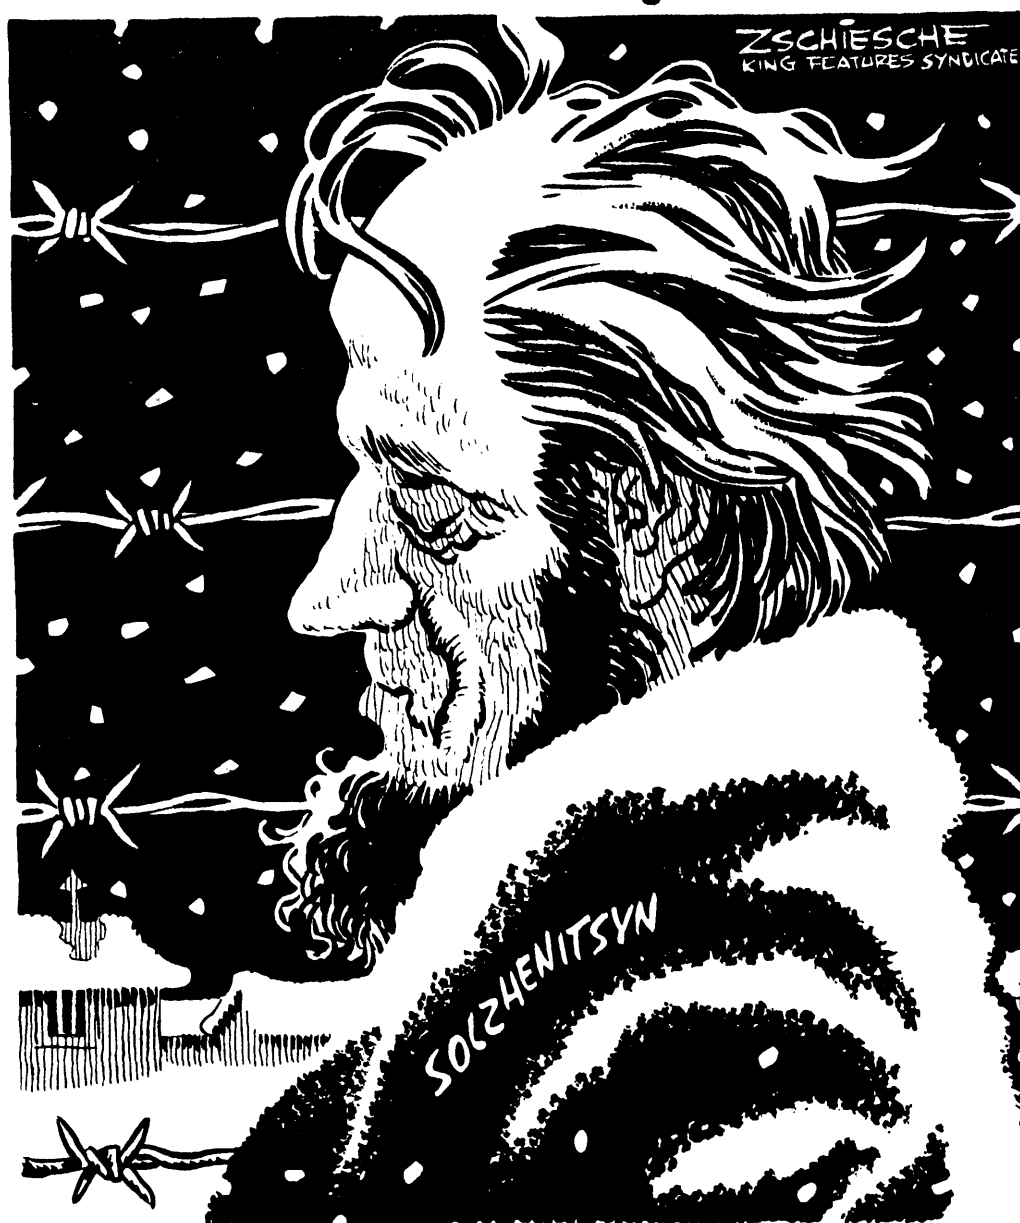

The picture now is of a northern tier of the Arab East, dominated by Arabs heavily armed by the Russians and Iranians heavily armed by the Americans, while Arab oil rulers to the south arm against a possible threat from regimes in the north. All this ferment bubbles inside an already explosive over-all Middle East situation.

about the "secret killer," high blood pressure, but you have never said anything about low blood pressure. My mother has had it for years and it worries me terribly, although she isn't the least bit concerned.

Can low blood pressure be dangerous? What should be done about it? Mom doesn't like doctors and hasn't seen one since my little sister was born six years ago. What do you say? — Charleston, W. Va.

Dear Chas: I say it's time for her to see a doctor, whether she likes them or not. Sometimes low blood pressure is a symptom of real trouble. Your mother might have a thyroid problem, anemia or perhaps there's an infection somewhere in her body. Ann Landers: Used as Cover-up For Bi-sexual Husband

Dear Ann Landers: In a recent column a reader reported on the Gay Lib parade. That was quite a letter. More recently millions of Americans had a chance to view first hand the Gay protester who brushed by the security officers at NBC and brazenly tried to take over the Today Show.

I'm writing about another kind of problem, however — one that is shared by more wives than you realize. What is she to do when, after several years of marriage, a woman discovers she is being used as a cover-up for a bisexual husband who prefers men?

My husband is a professional man, an accomplished liar, quite masculine — even sexy-looking. I've tried counseling and the final evaluation revealed that my husband has no respect for women and even less for wives.

I believe homosexuals should be permitted to marry each other. It would then preclude them from ruining the lives of women they use simply as decoys. Do you think we will ever live to see the day when homosexuals can legally marry each other? — The Cover Girl

Dear Girl: Yes, I do. But not for the reason you mentioned. Many homosexuals feel that the existing tax laws discriminate against them. They believe that since they live as a "married" couple they should be permitted to file joint income tax reports.

Dear Ann Landers: I wish you could help me to say thank you to a teenager I met during my stay at Holy Cross hospital. All I know about her is that her first name is Debbie, and she is a Candy Stripper who works Mondays and Wednesdays.

When I was a patient recently this darling teenager did small favors for me like brushing my hair, writing letters, feeding me, and straightening the bedclothes. She often came during her lunch hour when she was off duty to do "extra" things. I would wait for her and I always felt better in her presence. The two things I remember most about Debbie are her smile and her warm personality.

On my last day I did want to say goodbye to her but a nurse's aide informed me that Debbie had hurt her back while lifting a patient and she was in the emergency room waiting for X-rays. I left without saying thank you.

I hope you will print this letter, Ann. So often we hear of the teenagers who are in trouble and rarely does anyone mention the good things others do. — Grateful

Dear G.: Here's your letter of thanks to Debbie. Now, may I add mine, not only to her, but to all the Candy Strippers who do such a wonderful job.

Dear Ann Landers: You have made it a point in your column to warn people

Bruce Biossat The blame, like an oil slick, spreads

WASHINGTON (NEA)

The spate of conflicting studies we are getting about the probable extent of the oil shortage in the months just ahead are no help to a puzzled public, especially since no one in high authority tries to reconcile them.

The circumstance reminds me of World War II. One week a special food agency would soberly report that dire food shortages loomed, and the next the Department of Agriculture would forecast the exact opposite. Both reports would draw headlines, but their differences were never explained and Americans were left to toss a coin.

In the current situation, obviously the users of home-heating oil, some industries, motorists who depend on gasoline to get to work, and various others are deeply affected by the immediate fuel outlook.

Right now, the federal energy boss, William Simon, seems to agree with reports which say the near prospect may not be as severe as the Nixon administration originally forecast.

You can take your choice between independent judgments blaming the President's people for poor estimates, and Simon's contention that an easing outlook may flow from unforeseen oil company diversions of foreign fuel to our shores, from a highly cooperative public response to calls for conservation at home and on the road, and from other factors hard to predict.

Just about the most foolish thing for anyone to say, however, is that there really is no shortage, that the whole thing is an oil company-Nixon administration collusive plot.

Even the most disparate of the forecasts agree that some measure of a real shortage exists.

One need not, in saying this, hold any brief for the oil industry. It may very well have made a flock of internal decisions in pursuit of its self-interest which have worked to the detriment of the nation. But this doesn't mean the industry is sitting on secret oil surpluses.

Ask the makers of vinyl for phonograph records, the petrochemical industry, the producers of special plastics vital to certain sophisticated military devices. They are all hurting. How does it serve the oil industry's self-interest to slash into the supplies of such customers as these?

The fact is, blame for our immediate predicament can be widely spread. Yes, certain warnings were sounded years ago. But the call was hardly above a whisper in a nation and a world which seemed to believe reserves were endless.

In an article in the newest issue of "Scientific American," David J. Rose, nuclear engineering professor at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, contends strongly that the fault lies in many places.

The oil industry is not exempted, charged among other things with increasing (under some government tax incentive) its dependence on overseas refinery capacity rather than adding to domestic capacity as fuel demands rose.

But, at the other extreme in the supposedly detached, independent agencies like universities and public information groups, Rose finds that few "found it either interesting or rewarding to illuminate the issue."

He chides the automobile industry for paying almost no attention to fuel conservation, noting that the modern automobile engine has an efficiency of less than 20 per cent (fossil-fuel power plants are more than twice as efficient.) Rose saves his longest and most devastating indictment, though, for the federal government. He argues it has never had a long-range energy policy, brands this a "major social failure," and furnishes many specifics. These, and the long-range outlook, deserve a second report.

Hirohito Marks Golden Wedding Anniversary

TOKYO (AP) — Emperor Hirohito celebrates his golden wedding anniversary Saturday with little fanfare compared to his splendid wedding in 1924.

Hirohito, who went through a devastating war and saw his centuries-old divine status stripped away, "asked us himself to make the golden wedding anniversary as modest and informal as possible because Japan today is in difficulties," said an official of the Imperial Household Agency.

The day's events will include a tea, a luncheon party and a musical program — none of them formal. In the evening, the 72-year-old emperor and 70-year-old Empress Nagako will dine with their two sons, Crown Prince Akihito and Prince Hitachi, and their wives.

For part of the day, the palace grounds will be open to visitors, something that usually happens only for New Year's greetings on Jan. 2 and on the emperor's birthday, April 29.

Biographer Of British Royalty Murdered Friday

LONDON (AP) — James Pope-Hennessy, official biographer of British royalty, was murdered Friday, police said. The author, whose works included a life of Queen Mary, was found bound, gagged, and beaten in his elegant London home.

He died later in a hospital, and doctors said the cause was "inhalation of blood from facial wounds."

The 57-year-old author, who was engaged on an official biography of the late Sir Noel Coward, was found on an upper landing of his Georgian house in Ladbroke Grove, in west London.

Police said he had been severely beaten about the head and that the house had been ransacked.

Police rushed there when Pope-Hennessy's valet, Leslie Smith, 25, reported he disturbed intruders after returning from shopping shortly before noon.

Smith said he struggled with the intruders and was stabbed but managed to escape to tell the police.

A foreman of a work crew outside the Pope-Hennessy residence said he saw a man stagger out of the house with his face and hands covered in blood.

He said he sent two workmen to the police station just across the street to call an ambulance, and then a second man ran out and down the street.

Scotland Yard said a third man was later taken to a hospital with stab wounds after collapsing on a busnear Pope-Hennessy's house. They said the man was being interrogated and two others were being sought.

Pope-Hennessy, who was unmarried, was an author of international distinction. He first won fame with his biography of Dowager Queen Mary in 1969.

In 1970 he became a citizen of the Irish republic.

EX-POW KILLED IN CAR CRASH

AUBURN, Calif. (AP) — A former American prisoner of war in Vietnam was killed in a car crash on his way to give a speech Thursday night.

His wife, not knowing he was dead, made the speech for him when he failed to appear, a family friend said.

The California Highway Patrol said retired Navy Cmdr. Robert J. Schweitzer, 41, was driving at high speed on Interstate 80 between Auburn and Sacramento when his car struck the center guard rail.

The patrol said the car flipped end over end down the median strip of the freeway, and Schweitzer was thrown out. No one else was in the car. He was pronounced dead at a local hospital.

HANG-UP DEPARTMENT:

WHAT'S BEYOND IT?
IS IT LOCKED?

Sure, these are the questions a door raises. Jesus once said, "I am the door." His teachings have opened for millions a more meaningful, purposeful and satisfying life.

Yet people still get hung up on the questions of a locked door and what's behind it. The atheist says there's nothing beyond the door. The agnostic says we'll never know because it's locked. And the spiritually-hesitant just say, "I wish I knew..."

Sheer logic says try the knob. Common sense says grasp it firmly and turn. Those who have say it's amazing what rewards we discover with one twist of human initiative.

It's like going to church next Sunday when you haven't been there in years.

Hope Deepens With Memory

By HAL BOYLE
NEW YORK (AP) — Memory is man's greatest crutch and most dependable hope. When times are bad, he is cheered by remembering worse days he survived and found joy again. Memory tells him there is no reason the miracle cannot be repeated. And so, as memory deepens, so does hope. You've got quite a heartful of memories yourself if you can look back and remember when — Herbert Hoover was perhaps the most admired man in America for his relief work among the refugees of World War I. The only time the average man went to a dentist was when he had to have a tooth pulled. If it proved a real tug-of-war, the dentist would sometimes reward the patient with a free shot of bourbon or rye. About all that young boys knew of the mysteries of sex they learned from watching a girl's school gym class work out in mid-dies and bloomers. Doctors never had to worry about running out of gasoline as they drove horses and buggies. People began to gossip about a young couple if they went to an amusement park and made more than two trips through the Tunnel of Love. Your literary tastes were regarded as pretty low if you were seen reading a paperback book.

Dogs were born and lived out their lives without ever having to undergo the indignity of wearing a collar and leash. During the summer in small towns the liveliest place after midnight was in the local cemetery. During winter at least a third of the pupils in the nation's grammar schools usually had runny noses. Being poor was no disgrace. No matter how bad times were, a man usually had at least one neighbor who he felt was worse off than himself. Heaven to a young man was Saturday night and two whole dollars of his own to spend on his best girl. A showoff was a guy who openly bragged that he had been up in an airplane not just once but twice. The largest bill most people had seen was a $20. The bank was the only place where you could cash a $50 bill — and even then the teller usually wouldn't do it until he had conferred with the manager. If you talked at a dinner party, you didn't run to a welfare board. The prevailing philosophy was "try, try again." Those were the days — remember?

Stephen Hermes Has Straight A's At Indiana U.

Stephen C. Hermes, son of Mrs. Sallie O'Meara of Route 2, Jacksonville, has just completed his third semester at Indiana University where he is currently working toward the Master of Business Administration degree in accounting. During the past semester he was selected as a member of Beta Gamma Sigma for his academic record at Indiana. It is the highest scholastic honor that a student in business administration may achieve. He was also initiated as a member of Beta Alpha Psi, the national professional accounting fraternity, in accounting. For the past semester, Mr. Hermes received a 4.0 grade point average on a 4.0 scale for his course work. He is a Teaching Assistant in accounting at Indiana University and plans to sit for the CPA exam in May. Hermes is a graduate of Routt High School and Illinois College.

No Change in Matches
CHICAGO (UPI) — A 19th century English chemist is responsible for more fires, in a manner of speaking, than any other person in history — millions of them each day. John Walker, according to Encyclopaedia Britannica, in 1827 invented the friction match containing phosphorous sulphate. Walker's match is essentially the same as in use today throughout the world.

POLLY'S POINTERS
Curious tot needs shielding

By Polly Cramer

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY — My built-in range has push buttons on the front so our 13-month-old son is frequently turning on a burner even though I try to watch him every moment. It is impractical to keep him out of the room since we have a kitchen-den combination. He moves or climbs over chairs or any other barriers I put in his way. Slapping his hands does not keep him from going back later. I know he will eventually outgrow this but I hope some other mothers will give me some ideas as to how they keep their children away from such burners. He certainly needs to be better protected now. — MRS. J.F.

DEAR POLLY — My Pet Peeve is with store managers who do not realize how difficult it is for housewives who live 10 or 15 miles away from the store to reach home without warm dairy products, melted ice cream, etc. I do wish these items were at least placed on the last aisle of the grocery instead of the first. — JUDY M.

DEAR POLLY — Bonnie could try soaking her pink stained white nylon sweater in a solution of dish-washer detergent and warm water. Dissolve the detergent in hot water and then add to the warm water. This should be done in a non-aluminum pan. The amount of detergent depends on the hardness or softness of the water. Repeat with more detergent each time until stains are gone. Soak at least one hour. Different stains take different lengths of time. I find this is also good for making yellowed white nylon slips and uniforms really white again. — BARBARA.

DEAR GIRLS — Colors that nylon picks up from other garments are very difficult (almost impossible) to remove. Go into such a project knowing there may be no improvement and the garment already lost.

I tried the dishwasher detergent on nylon underwear and it could "take it" but a nylon sweater, particularly one that is loosely woven and may not have too much body, may be another story. Often we misjudge synthetics and think they are one thing and they are another so the reaction could be completely different. I always feel if something is a loss anyway I am willing to make a try and take the consequences. Color remover, made by dye companies, will remove color from nylon but color that has bled from something else may be another matter. — POLLY.

North's one-diamond response is an example of modernistic bidding. Modern experts tend to use step responses. Thus, when they respond to a club opening they bid the lower of any two four-card suits. With two five-card suits they still bid the higher one. South actually managed to make six when the defense forgot to lead diamonds. He won the heart lead with dummy's ace because he wanted to keep entries to his own hand. Then he led a club and finessed his jack. West won with the queen and led a second heart to South's king. Now South played out his king and queen of trumps; led a third trump to dummy's ace and played dummy's last club. He then finessed his 10 spot as a safety play to guard against the possibility that East held all missing clubs. South's contract was safe if the finesse lost. When it won he received the added bonus of shutting out East's ace of diamonds, since he was able to discard dummy's three diamonds and one heart on the good clubs. He made the last two tricks by ruffing his diamond and dummy's last heart.

Claim Papers Deed Was Falsely Dated

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (AP) — The deed for President Nixon's donation of his vice presidential papers to the National Archives was signed long after his eligibility had expired for tax deductions he claimed for them, the California secretary of state's office said Friday.

SAN ANTONIO — Airman John H. Dale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard E. Dale of 215 Third St., Carrollton, Ill., has been assigned to Chanute AFB, Ill., after completing Air Force basic training.

During his six weeks at the Air Training Command's Lackland AFB, Tex., he studied the Air Force mission, organization and customs and received special instruction in human relations.

The airman has been assigned to the Technical Training Center at Chanute for specialized training in the aircraft equipment maintenance field.

Airman Dale is a 1971 graduate of Carrollton High School.

David Oliver, acting chief of the FEO office of oil and gas statistics, told newsmen at a briefing that they expect to find the explanation in some sort of statistical reporting error and did not think the discrepancy might represent any secret stockpiling of unreported oil.

In its analysis of this week's API statistics, the FEO noted that stocks of distillate fuel oils, including home heating oil and diesel fuel, totaled some 188.7 million barrels.

It called this "a level which assures a comfortable cushion for colder-than-normal late winter weather, or alternately, an opportunity to substitute distillate fuel for supply-short residual fuel, providing home heating oil customers continue their commendable conservation practices."

It also noted: —Imports of crude oil and refined products totaled some 4.9 million barrels a day for the week ended Jan. 18, just a little higher than the level expected with full effectiveness of the Arab oil embargo.

—Residual fuel oil "inventories, however, have been reduced more rapidly than was anticipated," the FEO said. The residual stocks totaled about 49.1 million barrels, some 3.6 million barrels or 7 percent lower than a year earlier.

No. 74-52-P

CLAIM NOTICE

Notice is given of the death of Clarence W. Ranson, of Jacksonville, Illinois. Letters of office were issued on January 22, 1974, to Robert Alvin Marshall, Executor, 904 South East St., Jacksonville, Illinois whose attorney is Wm. T. Wilson, 232 West State St., Jacksonville, Ill.

Claims may be filed within 6 months from the date of issuance of Letters of Office and that any claim not filed within that period is barred as to the estate which is inventoried within that period. Claims must be filed in the office of the Clerk of this Court at 2nd floor of Court-house, Jacksonville, Ill. and copies mailed or delivered to the executor or administrator and to his attorney.

Dated January 24, 1974.

JOE CASEY,

Clerk of the Circuit Court

(SEAL)

The deed was falsely dated more than a year prior to the actual date of signature, a spokesman added.

Deputy Secretary of State Thomas Quinn said principals involved in the case have told him the deed dated March 27, 1969, actually was signed and notarized more than one year later, on April 10, 1970.

A law that went into effect July 25, 1969 would have severely limited the amount Nixon could have claimed for a tax deduction from donation of the papers.

Quinn said the information came from Frank DeMarco Jr., Nixon's California tax lawyer, from DeMarco's secretary and from others.

Also, Quinn said his office has proof that the deed was typed on a typewriter that was not purchased by DeMarco's law office until July 1969, four months after the date on the documents.

The office of Secretary of State Edmund G. Brown Jr., a Democratic candidate for governor, has been investigating the case because it oversees notary public activities in California.

"The deed could not have been prepared before July of 1969," Quinn said in an interview. He said the April 21, 1969 date notarized by DeMarco was "obviously false."

DeMarco was not immediately available for comment. But he is tentatively scheduled to make a formal deposition next Wednesday in Los Angeles, Quinn said.

Quinn said DeMarco told the secretary of state's office that an original deed actually was executed in April 1969, before the expiration of the tax law that permitted Nixon to claim income tax deductions. But DeMarco said he had no copies of the original deed, Quinn said. The deputy secretary of state added that neither the original nor any copies had been located.

Free Rides Over For State Pols

CHICAGO (AP) — Illinois politicians will have to pay money at tollway system booths from now on, instead of flashing a pass.

The Illinois Toll Highway Authority has stopped issuing nonrevenue passes to an estimated 200 state, local and federal officials who used to get free rides on the 187-mile system, says Richard Blakley, executive administrator.

Blakley said the passes will be issued only to 1,200 tollway employees and officers of the authority, as well as drivers of emergency vehicles.

Energy Conservation State's Plan Not Working

By WILLIAM C. WERTZ
Associated Press Writer
SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — The state Capitol dome, once brightly illuminated at night, has been dark since November as part of a drive to save energy.

But the state's most recent electrical bill shows the energy conservation program isn't producing the desired results.

More kilowatt hours of electricity were consumed in November and December under the new directive than were used in the same months of 1972 — long before concentrated efforts were made to save energy.

"It is impossible to conclude from the data that there has been any savings in the electrical energy that can be directly attributed to our electrical energy saving program," said Warren B. Manker, administrator of buildings and grounds.

In a memo to Norbert J. Johnson, head of the department of physical services under Secretary of State Michael Howlett, Manker speculated that "the energy savings by turning off lights have been more than compensated (for) by the energy cost, both by the extreme cold weather and the return to Daylight Savings Time."

But Johnson said Daylight Savings Time could not have been a factor in the November-December period because it did not go into effect until Jan. 13.

And the National Weather Service said it was warmer in November and December of 1973 than in the last two months of 1972.

The average monthly temperature for November 1973 was 45.5 degrees, compared with 38.3 degrees in November 1972. The average temperature in December 1973 was 28 degrees, 1.3 degrees warmer than the corresponding month in 1972.

Manker's memo said the Capitol complex used 3.62 million kilowatt hours of electricity in November and December 1973 at a cost of $52,985. A year earlier, the bill for the same period was $52,723 for 3.58 million kilowatt hours.

"It looks like the program just isn't working," Johnson said.

The austerity program announced jointly in November by Howlett and Gov. Daniel Walker called for turning off all lights at the end of the working day except those needed for security, safety or maintenance. It also called for reducing to a minimum the number of lights kept on during working hours.

Install Church Officers At Ashland Sunday

ASHLAND — Newly elected church officers of the Church of Christ will be installed in the morning services Sunday, Jan. 27.

All elders and deacons are asked to be seated in the front, west section of the sanctuary. Those to be installed are Terry Blake and Claude D'Camp.

Mrs. Cora Stockton, who has been visiting for two weeks at the home of her son, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Stockton and daughter, Karla Michel, at Clarendon Hills, has returned to her home in Ashland.

Mrs. Ollie (Charles) Troxell, who was very ill at her home here the latter part of last week, was taken to St. John's hospital, Springfield, for observation.

Twenty-four were in attendance at the fellowship supper held in the basement of the Church of Christ recently. Prayer was said by Willard Evans. A social time was enjoyed.

Mrs. Irene Robinson of the Yatesville neighborhood has been visiting several days at the home of her sister, Mrs. Leona Meyers.

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Hinds and granddaughter, Jennifer, Springfield, visited at the home of the former's mother, Mrs. Rose Hinds, recently.

Michael John Bloomfield has returned to his studies at the University of Illinois at Champaign, where he is a senior, after spending the holiday vacation at the home of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bloomfield. He also visited in Jerseyville with his brother, Wayne.

Lilacs are suited to grow in all parts of the United States except the deep south where winters are too mild to give the plants the seasonal "rest period" they need.

There's an art to preparing a just-right loaf.
18-inch long loaf crusty bread, about 9 ounces

Large clove garlic, crushed

Make crosswise slanted cuts, each about 1 inch wide, in the bread, but do not cut through the bottom crust. Mix together butter and garlic; spread all cut surfaces of bread with butter mixture. Wrap tightly and leave at room temperature until serving time. Place unwrapped loaf on a sheet of foil in a preheated 425-degree oven until very hot through — 10 to 15 minutes. For easier serving, you may now cut slices through to crust; do this fast so you can serve bread hot.

Eskimo Or Spitz Dog Joins Others At PAL Kennel

A friendly white female dog spent several hours Thursday at the corner of Hardin and Morton avenues evidently trying to find its way home. An employee at one of the two service stations at the intersection telephoned PAL (Protective Animal League) about the dog. He offered to bring the dog to the kennel when he got off work.

The dog did not have a proper collar but did have a chain around its neck, and was dragging about 18 inches of chain with it, evidently pulled off in escaping confinement. The dog is either an eskimo, spitz or samoyed breed. She is friendly and sits up on her hind legs and begs. The animal is young and weighs about 25 pounds. After three days PAL will offer the dog for adoption. The PAL phone is 243-2625.

Case Of Missing Numbers Dismaying

By KENNETH L. WHITING

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (AP) — Phone users here were pleased when the 1973 telephone directory was finally issued — two months before 1974.

Pleasure turned to dismay for hundreds of subscribers, however, when they discovered their numbers had been inserted incorrectly or dropped altogether.

Doctors, popular restaurants, The Associated Press, auto dealers, golfer Gary Player's private company, a weekly newspaper, travel agents, the head office of South Africa's largest bank, a firm that bronzes baby shoes, a large advertising agency, drug stores and hundreds of private home numbers were completely left out.

Other insertions were scattered among the wrong alphabetical designations. One firm's phone never seemed to stop ringing after it was listed under the old number for the airport's information desk.

One morning newspaper cashed in by setting aside a special column printed in yellow in its classified ads for those willing to pay to advertise their correct number.

The post office operates telephones in this country and one of its spokesmen acknowledged between 300 and 600 complaints. Another said the number was probably "in the region of a thousand."

Jan Kamp, a burglar alarm manufacturer whose two business listings were dropped, was among those lodging a complaint. Kamp said his business slumped by 60 per cent because he was dropped from the directory.

The post office apologized and blamed the blunders on a computer used for the first time to compile phone books for Johannesburg and the outlying region. "But I think it's not so much the computer as the chaps who fed the computer," said Kamp.

He decided to rally the numberless and wrong-numbered in the No Phone Number Club. Newspapers will be from 2 to 4 p.m. in the Mt. Sterling American Legion Post building. Friends and relatives are cordially invited.

DR LAWRENCE E. LAMB

Coffee and your heart

DEAR DR. LAMB — A column of yours dealt with the subject of individuals who drink more than five cups of coffee per day being more prone to heart attacks, but that a decaffeinated product would obviate this problem.

In another column in the same paper a doctor disputed this statement by saying a collaborative drug study ruled out caffeine as being responsible for the increased heart attacks in those persons drinking over five cups of coffee per day.

Please clarify, as many persons are interested in the facts.

DEAR READER — I believe if you read my column carefully again, you will note I stated that scientists had reported this relationship in fact, they have. The latest report was in Lancet, a respected medical journal.

This is not the first time coffee has been reported as a factor in heart attacks. Dr. Paul of Chicago, and formerly president of the American Heart Assn., reported this relationship a number of years earlier. Other scientists have disputed the validity of the observation.

I don't think anyone can make a definite statement that can be proved without controversy on the evidence at hand. However, I do believe that coffee is harmful to the heart and circulation of many people.

It is true that a heavy coffee drinker will have a considerably faster resting heart rate than a person who does not use coffee.

It is true that people with resting heart rates over 80 beats per minute are much more likely to have a heart attack or drop dead than people with resting heart rates below 70 beats per minute.

It is true that coffee will stimulate the heart to have extra or skipped beats in many people who have these problems. All competent heart specialists recommend patients with these problems should avoid coffee and cigarettes. Individuals with serious heart disease who tend to have some of these types of irregularity are more likely to have a serious irregularity of the heart. However, many healthy people who have skipped beats do not have serious heart problems and in them these beats, although annoying, are not life threatening.

It is true that people who have burning in the pit of the stomach, ulcers, and often diarrhea all tend to do much better if they avoid caffeine.

It is true that people who are nervous do not need the additional stimulus from caffeine, a powerful nerve stimulant. It is not necessary to wash down tranquilizers with coffee or any other drink containing caffeine.

Now, if you don't have any digestive problems, are not nervous or tense, don't have any skipped beats, and your resting heart rate is well below 70 beats a minute, you probably can use appreciable amounts of coffee without harm. But if you have any of these findings, you would be better off with a decaffeinated drink, or none at all. These are the facts as I see them.

Driving Habits
DALLAS (UPI) — A few people in Dallas may be driving on freeways at 50 miles an hour but police have been hard put to find them.

City Councilwoman Adlene Harrison says the fuel crisis hasn't changed the driving habits of Dallas residents at all. The council says it may consider making 50 miles an hour the top legal speed on freeways.

Winchester Nips Beardstown In OT

By BUFORD GREEN
Sports Editor

WINCHESTER — The Winchester Wildcats won the third straight championship of their own tournament as expected Friday night, but it wasn't that simple. As a matter of fact, the top-seeded club had to go into overtime for a one-point victory and got that chance when a time-elapsed free throw was missed in regulation time.

The record book will show Winchester nipping upset-minded Beardstown 52-51 to claim the 52nd Annual Winchester Invitational Tournament, with few of the previous 51 title games more exciting. Both clubs flirted with turning the game around in the final six minutes of action before a standing-room-only gathering.

In a different-style game, with a different brand of basketball, North Greene swept third place in the meet with a resounding 104-78 count over Griggsville, with Bob Kirk and Dave Smith leading a blazing offensive show.

The championship game was a contest dominated by two strong defenses, causing a high number of turnovers. Beardstown, which entered the tournament with only four victories to show, came that close to pulling off the major upset, before seeing a nine-point lead vanish in less than two minutes in the fourth quarter.

Picking up the action in the fourth quarter, Beardstown scored twice to boost its lead, an advantage held from the first four minutes to the overtime, to 42-40.

Winchester, hampered all evening by cold-shooting (including an icy 25% first half) ripped off eight straight points in less than two minutes to get within a point at 42-41. Gordon McKinney, who scored all 16 of his points in the second half, had four of the markers.

The Tigers held their poise, however, and got a bucket from Eric Darnell and a free throw from Robin Lewis. Gordon McKinney hit two more free ones but was matched by Darnell with less than a minute remaining.

Mike Hainsfurther scored after a steal and Brian McKinney hit from the side to tie it at 47-47 with 1:28 showing. After a Beardstown turnover, the Wildcats ran the clock down to :22 before turning the ball over. The two teams exchanged the ball twice more in a hectic flurry. Winchester missed with :04 showing and Randy Ralston was fouled as time ran out. Ralston missed the free try and Winchester had another chance to pull it out.

Brian McKinney and Hainsfurther hit the first three points of the extra period but Ralston swished with :26 to play. After another exchange of turnovers, Gordon McKinney tipped in a missed free try for the winner as Dennis Coil came back to score at the final buzzer for the final one-point margin.

The hustling Tigers jumped in front 10-6 after the first eight minutes of the game, and ran it up to 24-19 at halftime, outshooting the hosts 43 per cent to 25 per cent. Lewis and Darnell boosted Beardstown up by nine midway through the final stanza and 38-33 at the final quarter stop.

Winchester finished shooting 33% to Beardstown's 47%, but made up for it with a 14-7 free throw advantage. The Wildcats held a 34-28 board edge, 17-10 offensively, and had 21 turnovers to 24 by Beardstown, 13 coming in the fourth quarter and overton. Gordon McKinney, the tournament's Most Valuable Player, led the winners, now 12-2, with 16, with three other teams hitting double figures. Darnell dropped in 15 and Tracy, who fouled out with 2:36 left, added 12 for the winners. Lewis, the Tigers' floor general, also fouled out, with :57 showing in the overtime.

North Greene showed plenty of offensive punch in downing Griggsville in the fast-paced opener. The Spartans, now 9-7 for the year, ripped the nets at a blazing 60% rate in the first half and 58% for the game. Griggsville, with Steve Rumble hitting his first nine shots in a 20-point first half, was able to stay with the Spartans for only the first quarter.

After leading only 23-20 after eight minutes, North Greene began to pull away. Bob Kirk hit 15 points in the second quarter as the Spartans hit a 17-2 streak to lead by 20 at one point and 54-38 at intermission.

Griggsville got no closer than 11 after halftime. Kirk, Smith and Bud Bunch boosted the winners to a 76-58 gap after three frames and North Greene led by 27 at 86-61 with five minutes showing, with the second team closing out. The Spartans hit the century mark on Kevin Blake's two free throws with just under a minute to play.

Kirk finished with 32, Smith 26 and Bunch 17 for the winners, while Rumble had 25, and Dave Brawdy 21 for the losers, now 7-11.

North Greene was out-rebounded 39-28, 12-8 offensively, and had 19 turnovers to 20 by Griggsville, which hit a final 39% rate.

Caracas Is Site For Norton Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — George Foreman will defend the world heavyweight championship against Ken Norton Tuesday, March 26, at Caracas, Venezuela, Video Techniques announced Friday.

Bill Brennan, chairman of the World Boxing Association Championship Committee said he received a telegram noting the elimination of a clause in Norton's contract which had stated that should Norton win, the promoter would have first refusal on his first title defense.

The telegram also stated the Foreman's contract had been changed so that Foreman would not have the right to approve the rules for the fight and, in the event of a dispute, WBA and World Boxing Council rules would prevail.

Brennan had said the contracts were not acceptable until the changes were made and added that the telegram said new contracts would be forwarded.

UMKC Nips Mac By 91-85 Count

The height of the University of Missouri at Kansas City took its toll in the second half as the MacMurray Highlanders lost its half-time lead and the game by a final 91-85 count Friday night at the Mac fieldhouse.

MacMurray, now 5-9, had the hot hand and jumped ahead early in the contest, leading by as much as 30-12 before UMKC puts its offense together. With six minutes remaining in the half, UMKC put on a scoring burst that brought the visitors back to only a 41-40 deficit at the half.

Heavy Favorite

Bruins, Walton Out For Revenge

LOS ANGELES (AP) — UCLA's Walton gang takes dead aim on Notre Dame's Fighting Irish Saturday night in a battle for revenge and the top spot in college basketball.

Bill Walton's recovery from a back injury plus the home court advantage at the Uclans' sold-out Pauley Pavilion makes the home club about a 14-point favorite over the Midwesterners.

That comes despite the 71-70 defeat hung on UCLA by Notre Dame just a week ago in a game which saw a record 88-game winning streak come to an end and the Irish become No. 1 in The Associated Press poll.

In that one, the 6-11 Walton, college basketball's Player of the Year the past two seasons, still showed effects of a severely bruised back suffered in a fall on Jan. 7 at Washington State.

Both John Wooden, the 63-year-old who has coached UCLA to nine NCAA championships in the past 10 years, and youthful Digger Phelps of Notre Dame said they plan to stick with their regular starting assignments at the 8:30 p.m. PDT tipoff.

The veteran UCLA mentor has stressed offense against a pressing man-to-man defense this week and improvement in rebounding. With Walton not at full strength, the board work of the Bruins sagged.

In the front court with Walton, the Bruins have Keith Wilkes, the silky smooth shooting star, and Dave Meyers. The guard spots go to playmaker Tommy Curtis and Pete Trogovitch.

Dwight Clay, the man who sank the winning field goal at Notre Dame, starts at guard for the Irish along with Gary Brokaw. John Shumate at 6-9 gives up two inches to Walton at center but proved he wasn't afraid to drive under the basket on offense. Adrian Dantley and Gary Novak open at forwards.

Pauley seats 12,589, although the record attendance stands at 12,961 when Pete Maravich and LSU played there four years ago. By midweek this time, student tickets bought for 25 cents were reportedly being sold for as high as $25 on the scalper.

Edinburg Tops Waverly 76-61

EDINBURG — The Wildcats of Edinburg High School jumped to a 13-point lead at the end of the first period and went on to down the Waverly Scotties, 76-61, in a non-conference game played Friday night.

Edinburg was led by Mark Lockwood with 24 points and Ned Dewhirst with 22.

Waverly, now 6-9 was led by Dan Staton with 22 points, Scott Ashbaugh with 15 and Ray Ratliff with 13.

Soccer Sellout

FRANKFURT, Germany (UPI) — Almost 75 per cent of all tickets for the 38 games in the 1974 World Soccer Cup championships have been sold.

The Organizing Committee said Brazil's reigning champions will be featured in the opening game in Frankfurt's 62,000 capacity Wald Stadium on June 13.

Tickets for the final, to be played inside Munich's Olympic Stadium July 7, were sold out last April, few hours after advance sales began. All seats for the game counting for third and fourth place in Munich on July 6 were also sold out in record time.

Notre Dame rooters were allotted only 300 tickets, but UCLA points out this is 92 more than the Bruins were allowed in the Irish bastion.

Wooden said he should have called time out at Notre Dame in the waning minutes to try to regroup his club, but at the time thought that would only give the Notre Dame crowd the opportunity to whoop into even more of an unsettled frenzy.

Kite Establishes Two-Stroke Lead

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Tom Kite pulled away from friendly foe Ben Crenshaw with a 70 and established a two-stroke lead over his former University of Texas teammate Friday in the second round of the $170,000 Andy Williams-San Diego Open golf tournament.

Kite, a 24-year-old tour sophomore gunning for his first victory, had a 36-hole total of 135, nine under par.

Crenshaw, the rookie sensation who has won once and had a pair of runner-up finishes in an infant pro career, could do no better than par-72 and fell out of a tie for the top spot with a 137 total.

The group at 138 included Bobby Nichols, Homero Blancas, Gene Littler, John Schroeder and Leonard Thompson. Schroeder had a brilliant 66 in the bright, warm sunshine. Nichols shot 69, Littler 70, Thompson 71 and Blancas 72.

Johnny Miller, who swept the first three titles on the tour this year, Jack Nicklaus, Lee Trevino, Tom Weiskopf and Arnold Palmer are not competing.

Kite, 24, and Crenshaw, 22, are both Austin, Tex., residents, once shared the national collegiate championship and have been rivals since their early teens.

Both played the 7,047-yard South Course at Torrey Pines Friday after matching 65s Thursday on the 6,667-yard North Course. The tougher South Course will be used for the final two rounds.

"It just wasn't a very good round," the stocky, powerful Crenshaw said. "I must have lipped out a half-dozen putts. I guess the greens were just getting back at me for what I did Thursday."

He matched three bogeys with as many birdies in a scrambling effort on the picturesque, seaside course. All the bogeys came after he missed the greens and failed on 10 to 12-foot putts.

The Sauks, now 10-6, were paced in defeat by Craig Beard with 25, while Mark Lord and Jeff Hammitt hit 15 and 13 points respectively.

Carthage led 24-19 at the end of the first quarter and outshot Pittsfield 25-17 in the second and 16-15 in the third period to pull steadily away.

Purdue Moves Out Of Loop Battles

Big Ten leader Purdue's occupation with nationally third-ranked North Carolina State leaves Conference action Saturday focused on the three once-beaten contenders chasing the Boiler-makers in the league's basketball race.

Purdue, holding a perfect 5-0 loop record and 12-4 overall, could stick a big feather in the Big Ten's cap by upsetting North Carolina State's powerful Wolfpack before a capacity 14,000 on the Boiler-maker court.

Meanwhile, defending champion Indiana and Michigan, tied for second in the conference chase at 3-1, take to the road against Northwestern (1-4) and Iowa (1-3).

The third once-defeated contender, fourth-place Wisconsin, carries a 2-1 league and 10-2 overall mark against invading Ohio State (1-2).

Saturday's only other conference battle sends Michigan State (3-2) to last-place Minnesota (0-3). In a nonconference skirmish, reeling Illinois (1-3) plays strong Jacksonville in a Chicago Stadium twin bill also including Chicago Loyola against sixth-ranked Marquette.

The Illini's third setback by an opponent scoring more than 100 points came at the Chicago Stadium Thursday night in a 105-88 pasting by Bradley. The previous Saturday, Illinois bowed to Wisconsin 101-75 and the Illini lost a season opener to Arizona 101-80.

Although North Carolina State, paced by heralded David Thompson, has been rolling along at a 90-point offensive clip, Purdue is not far behind with 88.8 led by John Garrett's 23.5 average.

New York Fines Ali, Frazier

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York State Athletic Commission hit Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier with $5,000 fines Friday, but the fighters' attorneys immediately let it be known that the action was just round one of a legal fight.

"This whole proceeding is hogwash and we're treating it as just that," said Bob Arum, Ali's attorney, of the commission action which stemmed from the Ali-Frazier showing match during the taping of a television show last Wednesday.

Commission chairman Edwin B. Dooley said, "Even if the whole incident was a 'put on,' as many believe, it was severely damaging to the best interest of boxing and its well being, and to the public interest."

Dooley also said one or both of the fighters could have been injured, necessitating the postponement of their scheduled 12-round heavyweight fight at Madison Square Garden Monday night.

The commission can hold up the purses of the fighters, which could be as much as $3 million apiece, until the fines are paid.

"But they won't do that," said Arum. "They know they can trust Ali and Frazier for $5,000. If we lose in court, we will pay. But there's no way we're going to lose."

James Fuscass, commission counsel, said he would ask the state attorney general to take the matter to court.

"Five thousand dollars isn't chicken feed," Arum said in telling the commission he would fight its action.

Bruce Wright, Frazier's attorney, said by telephone from Philadelphia that he "would pursue the matter vigorously."

Dooley also warned that both fighters would be fined another $5,000, the highest fine the commission can levy, if a similar incident occurs at the weigh-in Sunday.

However, John Condon, vice president of Madison Square Garden Boxing, Inc., said the fighters would weigh in separately although they would be in the building at the same time.

win this weekend," said Purdue coach Fred Schaus, "I'd pick it at Ohio State Monday in our conference. But, I'd say we have a good chance Saturday against North Carolina State."

Indiana takes an 11-3 season record against Northwestern, earlier a 72-67 loser on the Hoosier court. Although highly rated in preseason rankings, Indiana still is seeking pat starting five.

Hoosier coach Bobby Knight, striving to spruce up a sagging offense, thus far has tried eight different units, using 12 players.

The Big Ten race has abounded in tight games to date, 10 of 20 conference games being decided by five or fewer points. Particularly affected has been Michigan with none of its four loop starts decided by more than two points.

The Wolverines, led by top Big Ten scorer Campy Russell's 24.0 average, had to rally to edge Indiana 73-71 and Michigan State 84-82 while outlasting Minnesota 66-65. They bowed to Purdue Monday night in overtime, 85-84.

If Michigan and the Hughes twins-led Wisconsin Badgers successfully hurdle Iowa and Ohio State Saturday, their Monday night collision at Michigan may be a key contest in the early league going.

Hall Of Heroes Gold Medal To Roberto Clemente

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The Hall of Heroes Gold Medal will be presented posthumously Feb. 4 to baseball star Roberto Clemente, who died a year ago taking aid to earthquake victims in Nicaragua.

Clemente, now a member of baseball's Hall of Fame, is only the seventh person to receive the honor in the 20 years since the Chapel of Four Chaplains here has been in existence.

Clemente, star outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates for 18 years, died New Year's Eve 1972, in a plane crash shortly after his supply-laden plane crashed en route to Managua, Nicaragua.

The awards committee said "in a very true sense Roberto Clemente's life and death represents the spirit of the four chaplains of different faiths who gave their life-saving jackets to soldiers who had none when the S.S. Dorchester was torpedoed off the coast of Greenland on Feb. 3, 1943."

In its announcement this week, the committee further said "Roberto W. Clemente represents the highest ideas of sportsmanship, brotherhood and sacrificial service."

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst
NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Gaudin, the new chairman of the National Association of Manufacturers — NAM — describes himself as a professional optimist with an inclination to view the worst of times as the prelude to the best of times.

The present "down-at-the-moth attitude" of Americans, he maintains, is probably the gestation in disguise of brighter times, a period in which the nation's energies and resources are being gathered for another push forward.

"Democracy has moods and cycles," he said. "We seem to be either at the top of the world and to have all the answers or we fall to a point where everyone's confidence is shattered."

Gaudin's main job remains as chairman and chief executive of the Sybron Corp., a Rochester-based multinational heavily involved in the health care field, a rapidly growing company whose sales last year reached about $400 million. He will have the NAM spot for one year.

Two years ago, approaching 60, he relinquished some of Sybron's day-to-day activities to his president, William von Berg, and now can devote more time not only to NAM but to 15 other groups, three bank directorships and four industrial directorships.

Gaudin's interests are broader than one might attribute to the stereotype of a NAM man. He belongs to a small group called the "Philosophers' Club," for example, and is chairman of the University of Rochester. He believes that "the basic changes of society begin in academia."

"I can't be accused of being a Babbitt type — of only seeking profits," he said. "I believe business people must get a broader understanding and approach to social problems."

"In fact," he continued, "the reason I joined the NAM is that it had an image of super-Babbitts," an image he believes has changed and will continue to change. "We're not quite as narrow as generally portrayed."

He foresees "two or three years of high level economic chaos" — productive, but afflicted by inflation and shortages. But he is convinced that good will come of it.

The people are fed up with most existing leadership, he says, but believes this can lead to stronger

Oil Crisis May Doom Diesel Locomotive

NEW YORK (UPI) — The oil crisis may doom the diesel locomotive to extinction nearly as fast as it killed the old "steam hog," an expert in computerized transportation control said today.

"The railroads ultimately will have to go back to burning coal, but they won't use it to make steam. They will use it to generate electricity, and the nation will have to electrify its rail system at a cost of many billions," said David Jarrett, president of Computer Identities, Inc., of Westwood, Mass.

Collins' firm designs computerized container and vehicle identification and control systems for the railroads, trucking lines, the U.S. Postal Service, state highway toll departments and ocean shipping lines.

The steam engine began to disappear from American railroads before World War II and was gone by 1960, replaced by the diesel-electric and the diesel-drive diesel. The disappearance was so complete that when an English millionaire brought the famous steam locomotive Flying Scot to the United States for a tour a few years ago he had to make elaborate arrangements to get water and coal delivered to the engine on the way. All the water towers and coal chutes on American railroads had vanished.

Collins is not unsupportive in his opinion. Rep. Brock Adams, D-Wash., a House expert on transportation, recently told the fifth national transportation forum in Washington that he would introduce legislation to inaugurate a study of a proposal to electrify the nation's railroad system so coal could be individuals and a more fit country. "Leadership hasn't come up with the easy answers," he said. "It doesn't have any bumper sticker answers."

Disenchantment with leadership, he believes, now will force people back to solving problems themselves. "You cannot expect a messiah to do it for you. You have to solve problems yourself."

And so, after nearly four decades he believes we are coming to the end of a cycle in which Americans turned to Washington for solutions.

In his view, all segments of Americans have learned that Washington, try as it may, doesn't have all the answers.

Gaudin believes the biggest challenge to business is gauging public demand. "I think the public still makes the decisions," he said, explaining that you cannot force unwanted products on people but you cannot fail to recognize their needs and demands either.

used as the basic fuel.

However, Adams did not advocate immediate electrification of all the nation's railways. He said he had been told that only about 22,000 miles of trunklines had a sufficient traffic density to justify the expense now. The cost of electrifying these 22,000 miles could run to $3 billion, but he said electrification would produce substantial equipment maintenance savings and greater utilization of locomotives over a longer span.

Collins said that, as petroleum becomes more expensive and the demand for it expands, it will become feasible to electrify more of the rail system so it can use any basic fuel that becomes available as well as coal.

While electrifying the lines, Collins said, roadbeds on the mainlines should be improved, even if this has to be done partly at public expense.

American railway roadbeds often are inferior to European roadbeds even though they are expected to support heavier rolling stock.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP) — A few issues provided most of the activity on the stock market Friday as the popular averages closed the session much the way they had begun it.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, which wavered all day between Thursday's close and 5 below, finally ended down 3.69 at 859.39. Advances nudged past declines 733 to 702 on the New York Stock Exchange among 1,785 issues traded.

The Big Board's broad-based index of 1,500 common stocks dropped .06 at 51.66, while the American Stock Exchange's market-value index gained .37 to 96.88.

Continued uncertainties about the country's economic and political prospects contributed to the "indecisiveness and nervousness" of the market, brokers said.

Many large banks joined the move toward a lower 9 $\frac{1}{2}$ per cent prime rate Friday. Brokers said it had little impact on the market.

American Motors, back-ordered for small cars, was the Big Board's volume leader, up $\frac{1}{4}$ at 12.

Du Pont, which said it was phasing out dynamite production in favor of a safer explosive, lost $\frac{1}{2}$ to 155. General Electric, which announced record year-end earnings Thursday, dropped $\frac{1}{2}$ to 61 $\frac{1}{2}$.

On the American Stock Exchange, Campbell Chibougama Mines advanced $\frac{1}{4}$ to 9 $\frac{1}{2}$, while Day Mines was up $\frac{1}{2}$ to 17 $\frac{1}{2}$ and Giant Yellowknife picked up $\frac{1}{2}$ to 23 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Soybean, Grain Futures Advance To Limits

CHICAGO (AP) — Farm commodity futures advanced to limits for one session on the Chicago Board of Trade yesterday.

The limit moves followed a government report showing that wheat stocks were the lowest since 1952, corn stocks were 8 per cent lower on Jan. 1 than a year ago, and oats stocks were down 18 per cent. Soybeans in storage were up 35 per cent from a year ago, however. Wheat corn and oats opened on limits higher and remained locked there. All but two soybean options were locked, but there was some trade in the most distant options. Soybean meal and oil also advanced to limits, but trade later developed in the commodities.

The depletion of wheat stocks was caused mainly by last year's exports which totaled nearly 1.3 billion bushels, a record. Most of this wheat was sold to Russia. Now the government is negotiating to buy wheat from Canada.

After about 30 minutes a survey of the major pits disclosed that there were offers to buy 25 million bushels of corn in the six options, but no sellers. There were 10 million bushels of wheat and 5 million bushels of soybeans in broker's hands seeking sellers.

After about an hour, wheat was locked at 20 cents a bushel higher, March 5.75; corn was up 10 cents, March 2.94 $\frac{1}{4}$; oats were up 6 cents, March 1.66 $\frac{1}{2}$ and soybeans were up 20 cents, March 6.47 $\frac{1}{2}$.

Changing skyline along Hong Kong's waterfront.

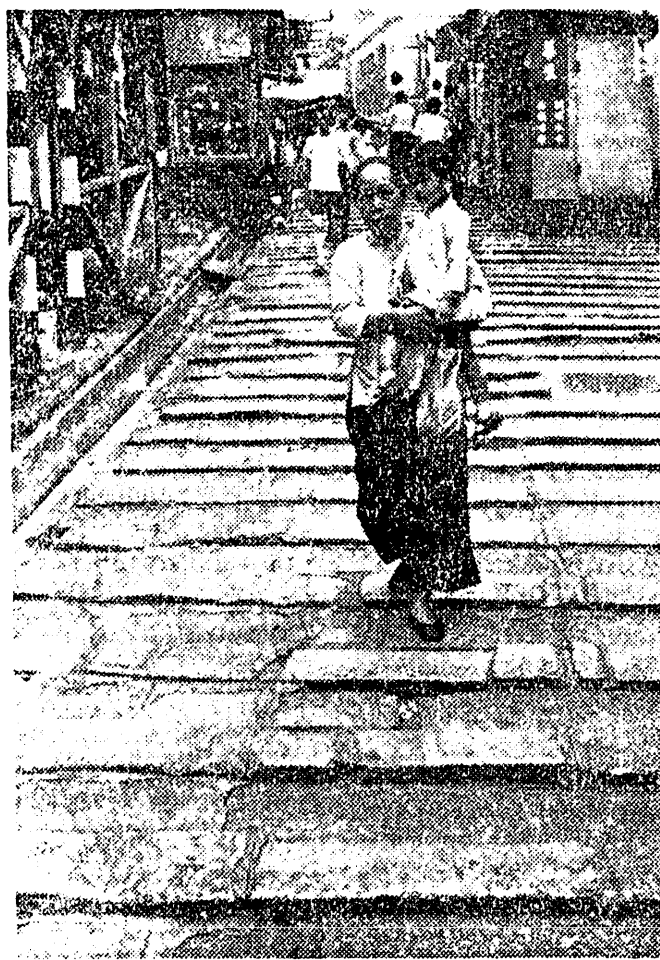

AP Newsfeatures.

HONG KONG

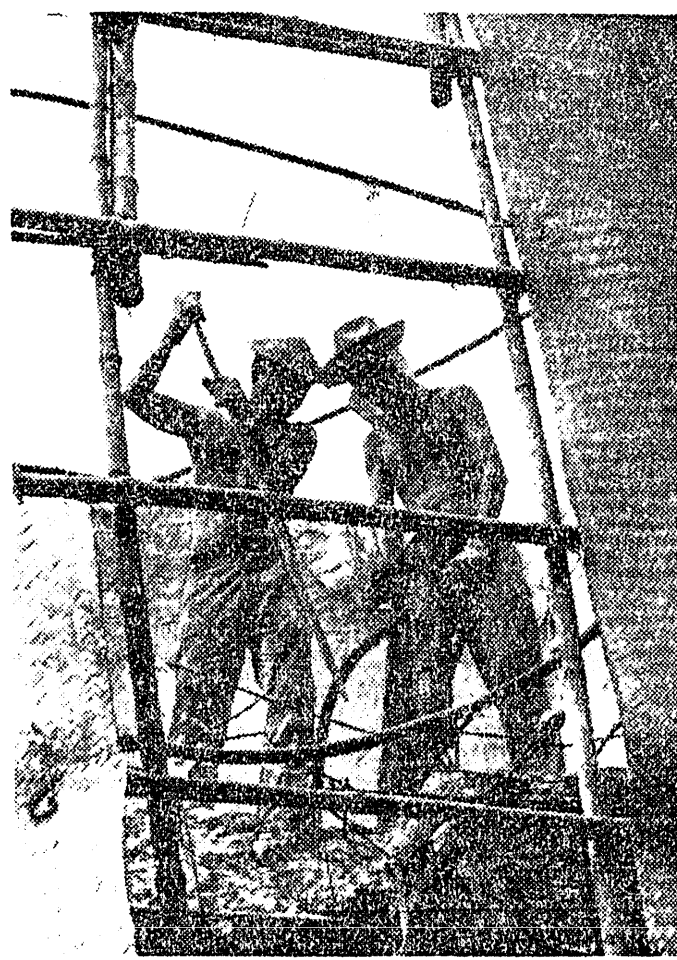

Urban renewal has come east. Some of Hong Kong's most picturesque back alleys are giving way to high rise buildings. There's a government drive to wipe out slums and raise the standard of living for hundreds of thousands of poor Chinese. Decrepit junk stores are disappearing in the name of progress, to be replaced with shiny new facilities for the rapidly growing numbers of tourists. It will never be the same again — to the delight of city planners and the regret of romantics.

Typical facade of older building.

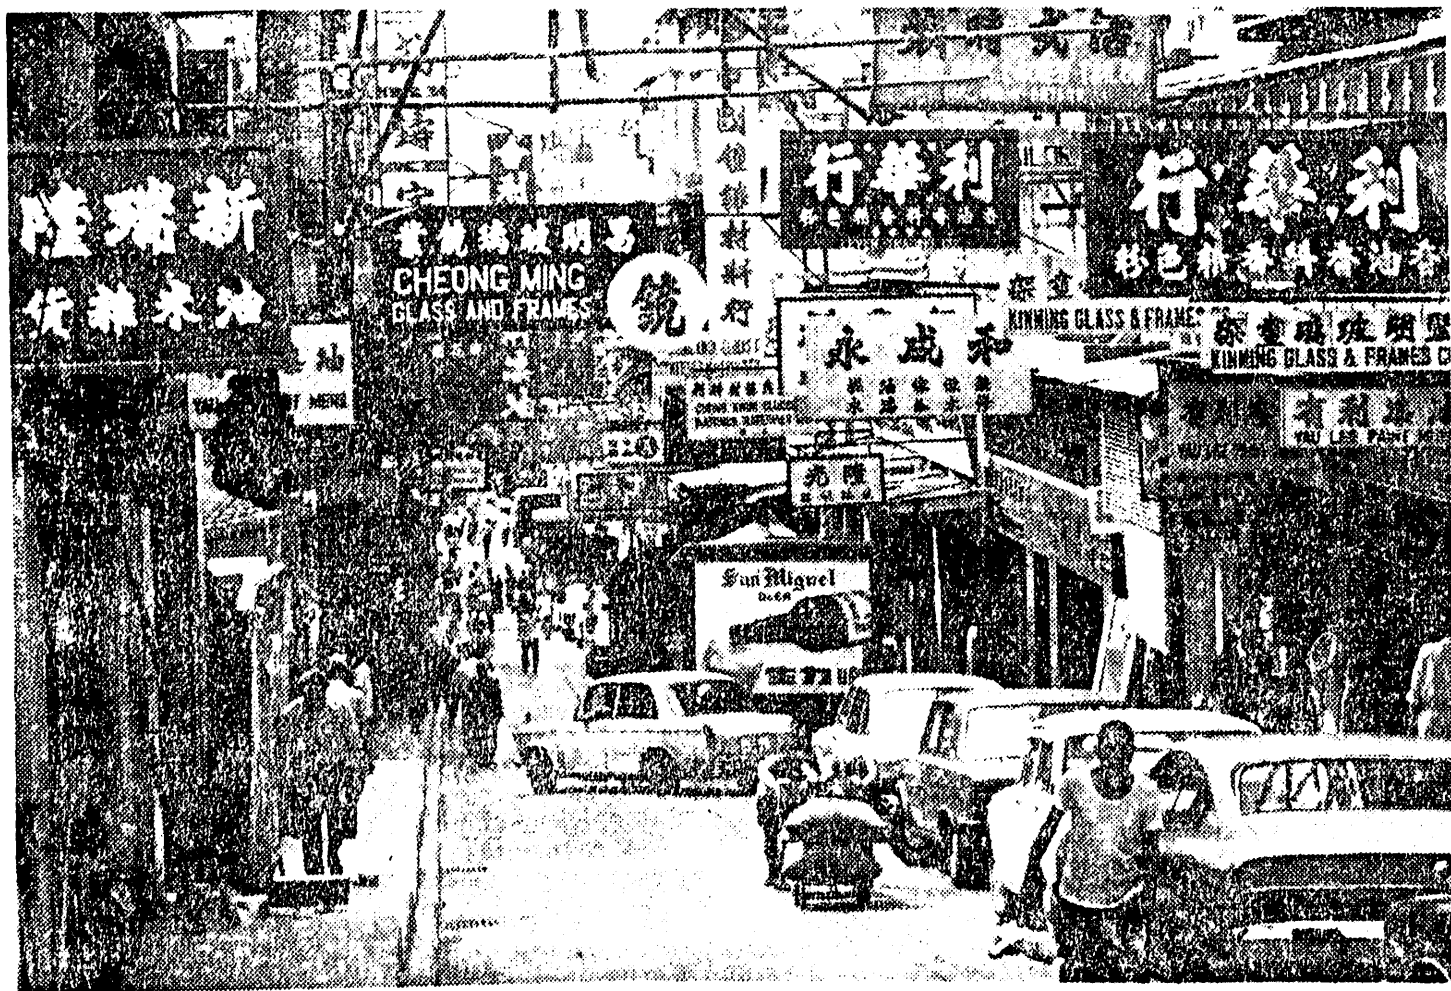

Alley of stone steps in old quarter.

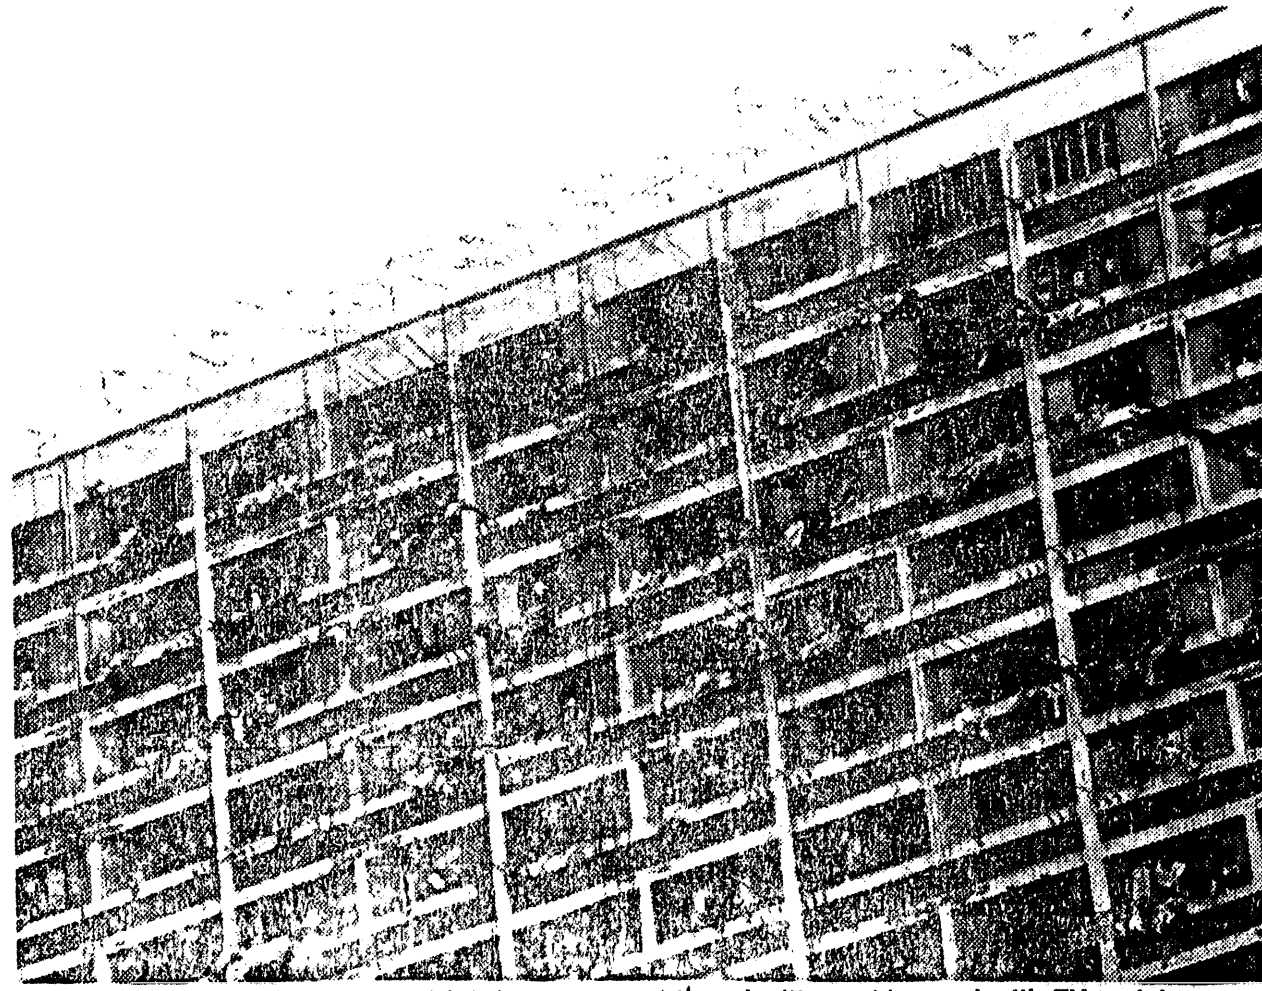

Making way for new construction.

Antique dealer in front of shop.

Bustling scene in shopping street: characteristic mix of old and new.

Geometric lines of new highrise are soon blurred with washing and with TV aerials.

Soap Opera Watching Turned Into Business

MOUNTAIN VIEW, Calif. (AP) — Bryna Laub watches 14 soap operas a day and usually keeps at least one of her six television sets on until the nighttime signoffs.

"I just love television," says the 28-year-old Boston University geology graduate.

Once warned by friends that "my brain was going to jell" from so much television exposure, Mrs. Laub has turned her hobby into a business.

Her "Daytime Serial Newsletter" summarizes soap opera plots for viewers who must miss a few installments of their favorites.

For $7.50 a year, the monthly newsletter provides facts readers need to keep abreast of developments.

Mrs. Laub says subscriptions are coming in at a rate of 20 per day, but "I won't mention total figures until it tops 10,000."

Beardstown Water Plan Council Ready To Decide Issue

By VIRGIL REITHER
Beardstown Correspondent

BEARDSTOWN — The hour of decision on Beardstown's proposed $1,200,000 water system improvement will be February 5.

That is the date for the city council meeting at which Bob Summey, mayor, says the matter will be voted on by aldermen.

He made the announcement at the regular meeting of the council January 22, expressing the view that Beardstown citizens apparently approve of the plan because there were so few of them on hand at the public hearing Sunday, January 13.

Free Tax Help In City For Next Three Saturdays

SPRINGFIELD — All Internal Revenue Service offices will remain open the next three Saturdays — January 26, February 2 and February 9, according to Leon C. Green, IRS District Director, Springfield.

"In addition to our regularly scheduled assistance, these offices will be open from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m., during which time taxpayers may receive personal assistance with their tax problems," Green said.

The Jacksonville location is the local Post Office, 301 East State street, which is also open each Friday, 9 to 11:30 a.m. and 12:15 to 3:30 p.m.

The new toll-free telephone service will also be available during these extended hours, Green explained.

Taxpayers needing help with their Federal income tax returns are encouraged to call the toll free number, 800-252-2921, or visit the nearest IRS office.

Residents in Springfield and nearby communities who have access to Springfield "local service" may call 789-4220. This is a special number installed to handle local inquiries.

Simon Pledges Energy Probe In Illinois

WASHINGTON (AP) — Federal energy chief William Simon promised Friday to send special investigative teams to Connecticut and Illinois to look into the fuel situation in those two states.

He made the promise in answer to requests from Sens. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., and Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., during a hearing by the Senate Permanent Investigations subcommittee.

The investigators will seek to determine the answers to these questions: Is the state getting a fair share of fuel? If so, is there a fair allocation within the state?

Ex-Highway Workers Patronage Suit Filed

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP) — Forty-five former Illinois highway maintenance employees filed a $1 million damage suit in U.S. District Court Friday, charging they were fired from their jobs for political reasons.

William Hanley, their lawyer, said the 45 employees, from about 40 counties, say they were Republican patronage workers who later came under the protection of civil service rules. They charge their dismissal denied them constitutional rights to free association and due process.

They also charged that although both part-time and fulltime jobs later opened in the department, they were not given first opportunity for re-employment as the State Personnel Code requires.

The suit named Gov. Daniel Walker, Transportation Secretary Lang-

Summey reasoned there were no businessmen, no representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, School Board or other organizations attending the session when Bob Benton of Benton Associates explained the proposals.

"I guess everybody is in favor," the mayor said, "so we will vote on the resolution at the first meeting in February."

There was little discussion of the proposal. Aldermen Virgil Dawson and Russell Hacker announced they had talked with several persons and found none was opposed. The other seven aldermen on hand were silent on the subject.

Main time-consuming topic before the councilmen was the exchanges between the mayor and Buck Lewis, who has the $17,000 contract to collect refuse in the city. Lewis said his men will be instructed to put lids back on garbage cans after collections are made in the future. He maintained this is not required as a contract specification, but the mayor and councilmen said their main complaints were about lids; the mayor indicated he felt putting the lids back on cans was at least an implied part of the contract.

Routine reports including that of the hospital administrator, were approved. Bob Donaldson, hospital board president, told the councilmen that a complaint about a service road at the hospital site has been taken care of to the satisfaction of those concerned.

Coroner's Jury Returns Verdict In Traffic Death

A Morgan County Coroner's Jury ruled Thursday that the death of Richard Wells, 60, of 7 Bellvue, was accidental. Wells was killed and his wife, Marian, 57, seriously injured in a car-truck collision west of Alexander on US 36 Jan. 9.

The jury's verdict cited "icy, snow-covered highway conditions" as the "major contributing factor in the death."

The verdict continued, "We recommend that the coroner initiate communication with District 6 Highway Engineer Harold Monroney urging him to take the action necessary to see that there is always an adequate supply of salt or chemicals available in this district to maintain highway safety."

The collision occurred in the aftermath of an ice storm which blanketed the area earlier this month.

The members of the jury were Foreman Donald L. Karcher, Jerry Symons, W. R. Kemp, Robert B. Wallace, Thomas E. Hone, and Kenneth L. Lowe.

You Can Drive On It In 1975

By JOHN B. MARTIN

A standing room only crowd of Rotarians and guests packed into the Beef and Bird restaurant Friday noon to hear the latest information on the Central Illinois Expressway, or FAS 408, depending on how sophisticated your knowledge might be of current road construction.

Harold W. Monroney, District 6 Engineer for the Division of Highways, Department of Transportation, told the Rotary Club noon luncheon crowd, "You should be able to drive on the Jacksonville to Springfield segment of four-lane, limited access highway in late 1975, or perhaps very early in 1976."

Monroney is directly responsible for highway construction, maintenance and other functions in 15 west central Illinois counties ranging from Springfield to Quincy.

$42 Million Segment Monroney said a total of $42 million had been committed for land acquisition and construction costs for the 27.9 miles of highway between Springfield and Jacksonville. He said the cost would compare with other interstate construction costs for four-lane roadways.

He said the completed highway would probably be designated as I-72 after the completion of the project to the Quincy area.

North-South Road He said FAS 413, the North-South highway that would run from Quad Cities area to the Alton and E. St. Louis area and intersect with the Central Illinois Expressway just southwest of Jacksonville is under study.

He said the corridor studies are under contract with consulting firms.

Monroney said the segment between Jacksonville and Springfield involves about 30 separate structures and most of them are under contract. He said the design problems for running the highway under the railroad near Curran have been worked out with the railroad and that he expects that structure to be placed under contract within a short time. He said he expected to have the entire segment of roadway and structures under contract by the end of the current fiscal year, June 30, 1974.

Winchester Part Next Monroney said he wished now he had included the extension of the Central Illinois Expressway to where it crosses US 36 north of Winchester. He said it would have been somewhat quicker and "would have relieved some of the heavy truck traffic on Morton Avenue" in Jacksonville.

Monroney said that he would expect the Jacksonville to Winchester segment to follow the Jacksonville to Springfield segment by about 15 to 18 months. He emphasized that it would be a two-lane road to Winchester, and to the Quincy area initially, until such time as funds become available for four-lane.

Monroney said he expected the right of way to be purchased for some of the Winchester segment soon. The design for the road is in process of being prepared.

The Winchester to Barry segment has been compiled and is in Washington awaiting approval. He said he expected final federal approval by late March.

The Barry to Quincy segment is still in the design stages and he said he hoped to have a hearing in March on that part.

He said the information has been forwarded to the State of Missouri concerning the expressway but that state has not responded. He said Missouri might favor a bridge over the Mississippi if it were nearer to Hannibal.

Valley City Bridge The Central Illinois Expressway will cross the Illinois River at a point near Valley City in Pike County. Monroney said the design of the bridge is underway because of the difficulty of getting approval from the division of waterways and the Corps of Engineers.

He said Governor Dan Walker has given the state until 1978 as a timetable to finish the east-west highway.

Questioned about the energy crisis, Monroney said he didn't think it would affect completion of the east-west segment primarily because it was on the government's priority list.

Monroney said approximately $8 million had been spent in the past four years for highway improvements in the Jacksonville and Morgan County area.

City Work

He said the state would install a flasher and resurface Route 78 from Walnut to the bridge over Mauvasterre Creek promptly. He said a new structure would also be constructed over the creek and that the state would keep a sharp eye on the airport activity with a possibility of improvement of the roadway to the airport turnoff if necessary.

He said approval had been granted to improve Morton Avenue with left turn lanes and widen the approach at Lincoln Avenue.

He said the intersection of Vandalia and South Main would also be improved and stop lights installed soon.

Monroney was introduced by Engineer Clair Hutchison to the Rotary Club.

President Vern Fernandez presided at the meeting which included the induction of Henry Aldridge as a new member of the club.

"Night At Opera" Here Reviewed By Fisher

Members of the Jacksonville-MacMurray Music Association thoroughly enjoyed an evening with Boris Goldovsky and an outstanding Opera Quartet Thursday evening at the third concert on this year's series presented at Annie Murney Chapel on the MacMurray Campus.

Appearing with Mr. Goldovsky were Diana Catani-Soviero, soprano; Theresa Treadway-Carroll, mezzo-soprano; David Sundquist, tenor; and Alfred Anderson, baritone, all of whom are most attractive young singers with fine voices and convincing dramatic ability.

Matching Mr. Goldovsky's congenial introductions and his incredible piano accompaniments, the four young artists brought to life scenes from six well-known operas, offering the audience the unusual treat of hearing traditional opera sung in English.

Each scene was well chosen to present an excerpt which was musically and dramatically complete, the most effective being the final duet from Carmen and the famous quartet from the last act of Rigoletto. Mr. Goldovsky is to be congratulated on his

Kerner's Tax Break Challenged

CHICAGO (AP) — The Internal Revenue Service is challenging a $21,658 tax deduction made by former Illinois Gov. Otto Kerner for donating personal papers to the state.

The IRS has filed a suit in U.S. Tax Court in Washington seeking an additional tax payment of $12,025 from Kerner's tax return for 1969, the year he deducted the papers.

A spokeswoman for the IRS Regional Public Affairs Office said the papers were examined in December at the Illinois Historical Society in Springfield by an IRS agent.

The papers — covering Kerner's two terms as governor between 1961 and 1969 — were originally appraised at $73,375 by Ralph G. Newman.

Newman, a Chicago rare book dealer, also appraised President Nixon's vice-presidential papers.

That appraisal is now being questioned by various federal agencies. Kerner was sentenced last year to three years in prison for bribery, mail fraud, conspiracy and income tax evasion in connection with a racketeering scandal. He has appealed the conviction.

Robinson Wins State AFL-CIO Endorsement

In a meeting held in Chicago Thursday, the Illinois State AFL-CIO endorsed Dave Robinson of Springfield in the Democratic Primary for the 20th Congressional District.

Robinson is one of three candidates seeking the Democratic nomination to face Congressman Paul Findley in the general election.

Robinson was previously endorsed by the 20th Congressional District COPE Committee of the AFL-CIO and the Sangamon County Democratic Party.

Robinson is running against Alan Ford of Jacksonville and former Congressman Peter Mack.

A story which ran in the Thursday Courier and Friday Journal concerning the death of James Turner incorrectly stated that Turner received a dishonorable discharge from the U.S. Navy. In fact, he received an undesirable discharge.

Unit 3 Discusses Bad Weather Plans

ROODHOUSE — The regular meeting of the board of education of the North Greene Unit District 3 was held Monday in the office of the superintendent. Mr. Schutz was chairman of the meeting. Also present were Ash, Dean, Taylor and Mansfield. Gary Wilder, representing the NGEA, was present.

Dr. Michael Bakalis, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, has granted more snow days if an extreme emergency arises. This emergency will have to be approved by C. K. Barnett, county superintendent.

Limited bus schedules were mentioned. It appears that most persons will try to get their students to pick-up points. The attendance has been very good during the bad weather.

Daylight Savings Time is an area that can only be discussed as it effects the total area, the board noted. No one district can help; different times would only complicate the problem.

Illinois Valley Asphalt was paid for their black-topping with certain reservations. The work must be observed in the future with adjustments being taken care of by the company.

A preliminary salary study was presented to all those in attendance. Extra copies were given to the NGEA representative.

Four In-Service days were discussed by the board. It was reported that the four days are Jan. 25, Feb. 22, March 29 and April 26. On these days, teachers meetings will be held in the afternoon and students will be going home at noon.

The letter written to fresh and frozen meat suppliers was read to the board. No responses have been received as yet. It was noted that the school district is satisfied with the quality of the meat, service and prices now being experienced. The reason for the study is informational in nature.

Plans for the April meeting for the National School Boards meeting were discussed.

Due to higher costs of everything, the Bueter Bakery prices were allowed to be raised slightly.

$10,000 Damage In House Fire

Jacksonville Fire Chief Harvey Dean estimated $10,000 damage to a house at 712 N. Diamond Friday morning after firemen spent 20 minutes bringing the blaze under control.

Firemen were called at 10:17 a.m. to the home owned by Ruby Lasley and occupied by Ethelyn Perkins.

Chief Dean said the fire was reportedly started by two young girls playing with matches. Structural damage was estimated at

The fire spread from the living room to a bedroom, bath and kitchen.

The living room was gutted and other rooms extensively damaged by flames or heavy smoke.

The two girls escaped injury in the blaze and were rescued by Dan Miller, who had his hair singed but required no treatment.

Firemen spent about 45 minutes at the scene.

Findley Urges FPC To Speed Hearing

Congressman Paul Findley Friday sent telegrams to the chairman of the Federal Power Commission and former Congressman William Springer, who is on the commission, urging immediate reconsideration of a hearing on the merits of the transfer of the assets of the municipal electric department to Illinois Power Co.

Findley sent the telegrams after it was learned that the FPC hearing scheduled Wednesday had been postponed by the commission to a date not yet set. There was no reason given for postponement of the hearing.

Mayor Milt Hocking contacted Findley asking that he assist the city in having the proposed hearing rescheduled.
